Telephone Strike Is On, But Area Service Continues

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 500,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Chris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

At the larger Bell office at 44 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, about 170 operators are affected by the strike.

There are four pickets assigned to the building. Each person on the picket line works a three-hour shift. Although union members said they have been told the strike will last at least two weeks, one picket said she heard yesterday morning that it would last at least a month. Members of the picket line in Arlington Heights did not seem to be particularly enthusiastic about the strike, but were supporting the union's action.

"I didn't vote for the strike," said Mrs. Marie Hermann of Des Plaines. I'm supporting a family, three kids and my mother who's retired."

HIGGINS ROAD construction has been causing traffic jams and problems for emergency vehicles. Village officials will begin this week to reroute traffic from Higgins onto Oakton Street further south.

Detour May End Jam On Higgins

The traffic jams on Higgins Road in Elk Grove Village caused by construction may be alleviated this week when village officials post detour signs to reroute traffic onto Oakton Street.

The signs, which will reroute both east-bound and west-bound traffic from Higgins Road to Oakton, are now being fabricated and will be ready later this week, Village Manager Charles Willis reported to the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees Tuesday night.

Several trustees expressed reservations about the detour, which will send through traffic down predominately residential Oakton, possibly causing other problems.

Police Chief Harry Jenkins said a police officer will be stationed at Arlington Heights Road and Oakton Street during rush hour to control traffic.

Trustee Edward Kenna said, "If the cure is worse than the disease, we'll stop the cure," but added he felt something had to be done about congestion in the area.

Earlier this month, the trustees directed Willis and Jenkins to find some solution to the traffic problem in the area because of the difficulty of moving emergency vehicles in the area to serve the industrial park north of Higgins Road.

The construction on Higgins is being done by the state and is scheduled to be completed by early fall.

Police Buy Aids At Fire Sale

The Elk Grove Village Police Department has added to its store of crime detection equipment thanks to a fire sale.

Police Chief Harry Jenkins told the board of trustees Tuesday night that he had bought the equipment, including finger-printing and casting kits and a microscope for the crime lab, for $397.50 from a salvage company.

The equipment had been through a fire in a community college in Joliet, he said, but was not damaged. "We're getting some good equipment," he said, adding that the same equipment would probably cost the department $630 ordinarily.

In addition, he said, the Jaycees have agreed to reimburse the village for the full cost of the equipment, so essentially it has cost nothing at all.

Sportsmen To Meet

Members of the Elk Grove Sportsmen's Club will meet today at 7:45 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Elk Grove Village Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd.

Start Rabies Shots Unless Cat Found

The two stray black cats who have been hanging around the Grant Wood School area of Elk Grove Village have disappeared and an eight-year-old boy may have to undergo treatment for rabies unless they are found soon.

The boy, Larry Bichford, of 361 Birchwood Ave., was bitten by one of the cats Friday, according to his mother and the cats have not been seen since.

She said the cats have been around the area for about a month. The police are looking for them.

Mrs. Bichford asked that Larry's doctor has advised that the family has until this weekend to find the cats or the treatments must be started.

Anyone seeing the animals should contact the Elk Grove Village Police Department.

Slate Crackdown On Zoning Violations

The Elk Grove Village board of trustees moved Tuesday night to crack down on two local industries who have allegedly been violating zoning laws.

The board directed the village attorney to send a certified letter to Reynolds' Radio and Electronics, 101D Kelly St., demanding that a 70-foot radio tower on the firm's property be removed.

The tower was constructed without issuance of a special use permit. Trustee Nancy Vanderweel said, and after the building department stopped construction in early May the company applied for a permit before the plan commission.

Since the first request May 12, no action has been taken, however, and no public hearing on the permit has been scheduled, she said. "It seems they don't like the standard fee for a public hearing," she said.

The tower is not yet in operation and no work has been done on it since early May, officials of the building department told the board.

The board indicated that if Reynolds did not comply with zoning ordinances soon it would initiate legal action.

In another case, the board directed the zoning board of appeals to notify Acme-Wiley Co., of 2480 Greenleaf, of a hearing on a variation on parking requirements and added that if the company did not appear at the hearing the request should be denied.

Mrs. Vanderweel first brought the case of Acme-Wiley's violation of zoning ordinances in parking to the attention of the board last week. She said the variation had been applied for a year ago and continuances had been granted while Acme-Wiley continued to park vehicles illegally.

Makes Dean's List

Susan J. Schlamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Schlamp, 553 Grosvenor Ct., Elk Grove Village, was on the Dean's List during the spring semester at Jacksonville University, Jacksonville, Fla.

To qualify for the Dean's List at the university, a student must attain or surpass a scholastic average of 3.5 honor points and be a full-time student at the university.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Rails In Game Of One-Upmanship

As the railroad industry rolls closer to the rail strike slated for 6 a.m. Friday morning, representatives of the carriers and the United Transportation Union (UTU) are playing the game of one-upmanship in their moves to resolve a labor dispute.

The Chicago and North Western Railway is one of three selected by the union for a "whipsaw" strike set for July 16. Others on the strike schedule are the Union Pacific Railroad and the Southern Railway.

A hearing was held late Wednesday afternoon before U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry, on a motion by the UTU to vacate the temporary restraining order slapped on the union Tuesday evening. Judge Perry's order, barring a strike until after a July 23 hearing, had been issued Tuesday evening from his Glencoe home, hours after the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington refused to bar the strike slated for Friday. "I found an emergency does exist," said Perry, "and since all the controversy is here in Chicago, I believe this court has jurisdiction in the matter."

The union filed a motion in the U.S. Appeals Court early Wednesday to issue a show-cause order. This would have required the C&NW to show cause why it should not be held in contempt of that court for taking the action it did, according to Tom Smith of Palatine, assistant public relations director for the C&NW.

The motion was denied.

Smith said a temporary restraining order was granted pending the hearing on a temporary injunction which could enjoin the union from striking; this could be followed by a move for a permanent injunction. "The reason we have taken these moves is that the union has not been willing to negotiate with us," Smith said. "We are still ready to negotiate."

Although the UTU has served notice it is seeking a national settlement with the railroad industry, the C&NW has broken away from the National Railway Labor Conference, representing most of the nation's rail lines. The local railway argues that if it is singled out for a selective strike it should be allowed to bargain individually with the UTU. A U.S. Court of Appeals decision in Washington earlier this week denied the C&NW petition to block the strike, but did not specifically forbid the union from bargaining with the C&NW, Smith said. The UTU indicated it would not bargain separately with the rail line because of an earlier U.S. Appeals Court decision which bars it from breaking up national negotiations.

The National Railway Labor Conference and the UTU were called back to the bargaining table in Washington on Wednesday by Assistant Labor Secretary W. J. Usery Jr., heading the government mediators in the dispute. The issues being negotiated include proposed new work rules, such as longer run crews. Engineers, brakemen and other operations personnel are included in the union membership.

The UTU originally called the strike following a June ruling by a U.S. Appeals court permitting the use of selective strikes, if it would not hamper that national transportation negotiations balance. Carrier representatives replied the work rules would be imposed nationally if the strikes were effected.

Retaliating to this announcement, the UTU said it will strike two other rail lines on July 24: The Southern Pacific Railroad and the Norfolk & Western Railway.

Methods Of Prevention For Brown Recluse Spider

Since the brown recluse spider re-emerged in the Northwest suburbs last week and bit a Palatine woman, a number of readers have inquired about the best methods for prevention and control of the spider.

The brown recluse spider bite is considered by health authorities to be more dangerous than the black widow spider bite. Furthermore, while the brown recluse is native to the South, the American Medical Association says once the brown recluse appears in an area, the threat of infestation is always present.

The following is a summary of methods of prevention and control of the brown recluse spider released by the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The best method for prevention of the brown recluse, the health department said, is to eliminate the conditions conducive to the development of insects and to destroy the insect population. Termites and Oriental cockroaches, as well as other insects, can provide a good source of food for the spiders in basements and crawl spaces.

For outside control of the brown recluse, the health department advises one of two insecticides. One is a mixture of 12 fluid ounces of 16 per cent dieldrin emulsifiable concentrate and three gallons of water. The second is a mixture of one pint 45 per cent chlordane emulsifiable concentrate and three gallons of water.

The diluted mixture should be sprayed with a small three-gallon sprayer to foundation areas, cracks and crevices, beneath siding and below porches and similar areas. Any remaining insecticide should not be stored for future use. The insecticide should not be applied near dug wells, cisterns, or other water sources.

For inside control, the health department stresses cleanliness inside the home and the diligent use of a vacuum cleaner in basements, closets and storage areas. Either of the following insecticides can be applied with a small one-gallon sprayer to cracks and crevices to aid in the control of spiders.

One of the insecticides is a mixture of 1.25 fluid ounces of Diazinon 4E with one gallon of water. The second is a mixture of eight ounces of 13.9 per cent Baygon concentrate with one gallon of water.

Any remaining diluted insecticide can be applied to the soil adjacent to the outside foundation.

The health department cautions that the brown recluse will rarely come out into the light, and often the ordinary house spider will be mistaken for the brown recluse. Positive identification can be made by sending the spider specimen to the Illinois Department of Public Health, Bureau of Environmental Health, Division of General Sanitation, 535 W. Jefferson St., Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Spraying with an aerosol container of ethyl chloride is the best way of immobilizing the brown recluse, the health department advises. Once the spider is immobilized, it should be placed in 70 per cent alcohol and sent to the department.

Bauer Gets Award

Hank Bauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Bauer, R.R.2, Lony Grove, recently received the Walter D. Hardy Scholarship from Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo. The award honors an outstanding student preparing for a law career.

Board Acts On Parental Responsibility Guide

Truck routes, purchase of a fire truck and parental responsibility were acted on Tuesday night by the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees.

The board passed the parental responsibility ordinance through the first reading, moving it toward final adoption at the next meeting.

The ordinance, modeled after one in Madison Heights, Mich., provides a penalty of a $500 fine or 90 days in jail for the parents who "fail to exercise reasonable parental control" over minor children.

Under the ordinance the police will notify the parents of a child who is arrested or detained for a criminal act and advise them of their responsibility under the ordinance.

The Madison Heights ordinance was passed in January, 1970, and officials of the Detroit suburb say it has been useful in dealing with the parents of habitual offenders.

MADISON HEIGHTS officials said so far no parent has been jailed under the law.

In other action, the board authorized the attorney to draw up an ordinance prohibiting commercial vehicles without special permits to use Elk Grove Boulevard and John F. Kennedy Boulevard.

The streets are already governed by a vehicle weight limit of five tons, police chief Harry Jenkins told the board, but the new ordinance "will make enforcement easier."

Jenkins recommendation to the board also included Landmeier Road, Oakton Street and Tonne Road, but the board deferred consideration of banning truck traffic on those streets to the attorney.

In addition the board approved a bid from Jack Trucks Inc. of $52,748 for a fire truck for the Elk Grove Village Fire Department.

The recommendation to approve the bid was made at last week's board meeting but was postponed at that time. The board met for an hour and fifteen minutes with Fire Chief Allen Huelett before Tuesday's meeting to review the needs of the fire department, village president Charles Zetek said.

Focus Donates For Indian Food

Focus, a Northwest suburban human relations organization, voted Monday to establish a $150 credit account at a local grocery store on behalf of the Indians camping at Big Bend Lake in Des Plaines.

"We had originally planned to buy coolers with the $150. But Chosa said they need food instead. They have already been given several coolers but he said they still need fresh meat everyday."

The $150 was donated to Focus for the Indians by the United Presbyterian Church of Elk Grove and the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club.

Chief Michael Chosa, leader of the Indian group, was invited to the Focus meeting but was unable to attend. Bob Bangert, a member of Focus, said he spoke with Chosa over the weekend.

"I told him about the money we had collected for his people and gave him some information about Focus," Bangert said.

"I told him we had a committee working now to promote low-income housing and he said 'It looks like I came at the right time.' He also asked me about getting baseball equipment for the boys out there," Bangert said.

JULIE SASS, Focus secretary, said

Clyde Brooks, one of the founders of Focus, said Chosa will be invited to join the organization. "We are working for the things he is working for. The rights of all minorities are our concern," Brooks said.

The Indians moved into the forest preserve site last week after being evicted from an abandoned missile base on Chicago's lakefront.

Indian Slashed By White Man's Razor In Camp Fight

A 28-year-old Indian was injured early Tuesday evening when he was reportedly cut with a straight razor by a white man at the Indian campgrounds at Big Bend in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines police said the Indian, Elwood DeCorra, of 1216 W. Oakdale, Chicago, was cut in the stomach by a white man who is living at the camp with his Indian wife and children.

DeCorra was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated and released.

DeCorra told police an Indian woman had told the white man she did not want DeCorra at the lake camp site. He said the man then attacked him with the razor, but that he was able to avoid injury until an Indian man struck him in the face.

DeCorra said that after he was struck the white man cut him with the razor.

Des Plaines Police Detectives Robert Zeimet and John Storm, accompanied by Sgt. Garry Vande Vusse said they went to the campgrounds to investigate the incident and spoke with Mike Chosa, leader of the Indian group.

VANDE VUSSE SAID that after Chosa was unsuccessful in having the alleged attacker come out of the camp, he met the man halfway — about 500 feet from the main campgrounds.

Vande Vusse said that after talking to the man, he believed the attack may have been partially justified, although excessive, because the man apparently was protecting his family and other small children from DeCorra, who was "acting aggressively and irrationally."

Vande Vusse said DeCorra apparently had threatened to throw the man's children in the lake and when the man's wife attempted to interfere, he struck her with a tree branch, knocking her to the ground.

DeCorra declined to sign a complaint against his alleged assailant, Vande Vusse said.

The police sergeant said DeCorra was escorted to a bus back to Chicago and was warned against returning to the camp site. The man at the lake was warned also, Vande Vusse said, and released.

Hospital Day Care Center Doors May Close

by KAREN RUGEN

Today, mothers working at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village don't worry about their children during the day. In September, they may have to.

For five years, female medical center employees have been using the day care center at the hospital as a baby-sitting service for their children between the ages of 2 and 5. On Sept. 1, the center is scheduled to close.

"The fees we charge for the center don't come close to the $10,000 a year it costs us to operate the center," said William Shields, administrative assistant for supportive services and director of the center.

Current fees are $3 a day for one child and $4.50 a day for two. Shields said it costs the hospital $21 a week per child to operate the center that is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

But cost is not the major reason for closing the center, according to Shields. The center will become part of a hospital expansion program begins in the fall. "The cafeteria is much too small," explained Shields. "We opened it with a staff of 174 and now we have more than 1,000."

"The only vacant space is the basement of the new addition scheduled to begin in the fall," said Shields. "According to the law, a day care center must be on the ground floor. It would now cost us $56,000 to build a new center, and we just don't have the money."

THE PARENTS OF 24 children who currently attend the center will have to make other baby-sitting arrangements and so will other Northwest suburban parents now on vacation who had planned to use the facilities of the center, which can take up to 40 children a day in two shifts, in the fall.

"We are trying not to have the center closed," said Maria Fernandez, a full-time nurse at the hospital. "We are starting a list of names of employees who don't want the center to be closed. We are then going to talk to hospital officials." Mrs. Fernandez said the list of names would probably not be ready until August since many mothers are now on summer vacations.

Mrs. Fernandez, a Bensenville resident, has two children. John, 5, currently attends the Day Care Center. She had hoped that Carla, now 18 months, would use the facilities as soon as she was two.

"The hospital has been providing a marvelous service for us. Our children are right there with us and it is relaxing to know that they are getting the best care," said Mrs. Fernandez, who has been using the center for 3½ years. "If we have to look for professional baby-sitters, we will never be to work on time. Most services don't start until 7 a.m."

Mrs. Fernandez, like many other hospital employees, begins work at 7 a.m.

Karen Green, an X-ray technician, is also worried about what will happen in the fall. She has been working at the hospital for seven months and her two children attend the day care center.

"I APPLIED for part-time work at the hospital, but I took full-time because of the center and a place to put the kids," said Mrs. Green, a Hoffman Estates resident. "The kids have made a lot of friends there. In fact, I feel guilty when I take a day off because I am afraid the kids will miss something."

"If I have to go through what I did during the first month I worked when I used baby-sitters and not the center, I'll quit," she said.

Mrs. Green and Iris Sizemore, a full-time X-ray technician with two children at the center, both hope that Mary Shallcross, a baby-sitter at the center, will take care of their children in September.

"I'm just hoping for that or I will have to send them to a nursery school," said Mrs. Sizemore of Schaumburg. "I'm not going to stop working — that's a fact."

Mrs. Shallcross, mother of 11 children, has been working at the center since it opened in June of 1966. She said yesterday that she has applied for a state license to hold a day care center in her home, which could take care of eight children. She said she has had a license in the past, and hopes to hear from the state this week.

"I FEEL VERY nostalgic about the center," Mrs. Shallcross said. "I don't know if I could do anything else but take care of children."

Taking care of the children has been her job along with one other full-time and a part-time baby-sitter. "We are not running a school," Shields said. "But we do have to keep the children busy because little children can get bored in half an hour."

Each day, the children in the center's sunlit room play games — by themselves or with other children. In good weather, they can play outside on the playground equipment set up on the hospital lawn. Or they can ride the tricycles the hospital provides. Between play times are snack times and a hot lunch from the hospital cafeteria. And each child is required to take a daily nap.

"The kids love it," said Shields. "They get discipline, entertainment and love. If a child needs a little cuddling, he gets it. But that's not molly-coddling."

The center opened with the hospital to attract mothers who otherwise would not be able to work. Today as well as when it opened, the center is one of the few day care facilities in the area provided directly for employees by industry.

According to Shields, the need for the center which is available to both full and part-time help is not as great now as it was five years ago. He said he does not think the hospital will lose staff because of the center closing.

Mothers won't be the only ones who will miss the center. Shields, who has six children of his own, is sad to lose his "hospital family."

"I go down and play with the kids every day," he said. "No two kids are alike. They all have their own personalities," he said.

But still the center must close, according to hospital officials. "The center answered a need for a few individuals and some need for the hospital," Shields said. "But you have to weigh all the needs of the hospital and the result was tilted."

CONSTRUCTING A "tall" building is one of Christopher Sizemore's activities at the Day Care Center at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in employee, will have to make other babysitting arrangements.

Exemptions System For Property Tax

by TOM WELLMAN
Even though suburban taxpayers will soon face assessment forms for the individual personal property tax, there's an exemption system which will cut the tax burden down to virtually nothing.

The system developed through 1970 legislation exempts one automobile and all home furnishings from taxation.

Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor, told the Herald that 25 or 30 township assessors are considering a plan to eliminate tax bills for many local residents.

Theroux said officials of his office are currently checking village automobile license records to determine how many cars each Wheeling Township family owns.

Residents with only one car might not even receive a tax bill from the township office, Theroux said, as their personal property tax would be virtually eliminated by the exemptions.

One of the factors which will influence the billing decision is the arrival of billing information from the county assessor's office, Theroux said.

Dennis Dunne, director of communications for the county assessor's office, explained that assessment forms will be sent out as soon as possible to county residents. Forms for corporate personal property tax have already been sent out.

Irving Rosenthal, head of the personal property division in the county assessor's office, said county residents do not need to file a new form to declare exemptions.

He explained that past returns will indicate if the resident claimed an exemption for an automobile.

The auto and home furnishings exemptions helped cut individual property assessment in the county from $105.9 million in 1969 to $53.6 million in 1970.

Questions about the payment of personal property taxes have been raised in the wake of an Illinois Supreme Court decision last Friday upholding collection of the personal property tax.

The corporate personal property tax collection in Cook County amounts to about $120 million, while only about $2 million out of a $20 million billing in individual tax has been collected.

The individual personal property tax was rejected in a referendum last November. However, the corporate tax was challenged in court early this year, with the Illinois Supreme Court's decision putting both taxes on the books.

There is no indication at this time whether the judicial decision will be appealed to the federal courts. Arnold Flann, attorney for the Lake Shore Auto Parts of Chicago, which filed one of the original suits, said he had not yet met with his client to determine whether to appeal.

BEEF
From a 1,500 pound steer, only a few rare pounds qualify as first cut prime tenderloin fillet. Broiled to pink perfection... smothered in a rich Bourguignonne sauce of sweet butter, meat juices, red wine, sliced mushroom heads, salted pork tips, pearl onions and slowly simmered...

Capitol Flag To Fly Over Clearbrook

A flag flown over the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C. will be hoisted over the Clearbrook Center Vocational Rehabilitation and Sheltered Workshop at dedication ceremonies Sunday.

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane (R-13) will bring the flag from Washington. Crane is guest speaker for the dedication ceremonies which begin at 2 p.m.

The workshop is located at 680 Lively Blvd. in Elk Grove Village.

Myron Birky, associate zone director of the State Department of Mental Health's Chicago area, will also speak.

Clearbrook Center provides educational and vocational training programs and classes for mentally and multiple handicapped children and young adults.

When the flag is raised over the workshop, Boy Scout Troop No. 293 at Queen of the Rosary Church will stand as color guard.

Elk Grove Junior Woman's Club will provide refreshments after the speech.

The dedication and reception are open to the public.

Thomas J. Foran, 46, who prosecuted the Chicago Seven as a U.S. attorney, has opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

A citizens' committee announced in Chicago yesterday the beginning of its election effort on behalf of Foran.

Sam Betar, an attorney from Wilmette, told reporters "more than one thousand citizens... have committed themselves to persuade the Democratic Party to state this outstanding man as its candidate..."

Party leaders, under the strong influence of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, are expected to choose between Foran, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon and State Auditor Michael J. Howlett as their candidate for governor. The party's choice who faces Chicago attorney Dan Walker, has said he will not seek approval of the slating committee, in a primary election.

Foran is a Daley protege who served six years as a city corporation counsel before being appointed U.S. attorney for 18 Northern Illinois counties by President Lyndon Johnson in 1968. He resigned following the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial last year after President Nixon appointed a Republican successor.

PRIOR TO HIS appointment as corporation counsel, Betar said, Foran specialized in governmental law, gaining experience "in every facet of state and local government, where he has represented every type of governmental subdivision in most areas of this state." Betar said Foran has represented the state, counties, cities, villages, towns, school districts, park districts and sanitary districts.

As U.S. attorney, he headed a staff of 40 assistants and 98 administrative employees, Betar said.

Veterans' News

Q — I HAVE National Service Life Insurance which has been in force on the Ordinary Life Plan since 1945. My children are grown now, and I am thinking of discontinuing the payment of premiums and taking a paid-up policy. If I do, will my dividends be discontinued?

A — No, but they will not be as large as those on your existing policy. If you take a paid-up policy, the amount of insurance in force will be less than the present face value of your policy. The dividends will be computed on this reduced insurance coverage.

Q — HOW DOES a veteran or serviceman go about getting a mobile home loan?

A — He should first obtain a Certificate of Eligibility from the nearest VA regional office. Then, he should find a mobile home of his choice which meets VA standards, arrange for rental or purchase of a mobile home lot, and apply to a private lender for a loan.

Q — MY FATHER served on the Mexican border in the U.S. Army before World War I. Is he qualified for a pension?

A — He may qualify for disability pension payments provided he served honorably for 90 days or more in Mexico, or in one of the adjacent states, or in Guatemala or British Honduras, or served at sea in the area of Mexico. He should contact his nearest VA office for full details.

Q — I AM a veteran who wishes to go in with a nonveteran to get a G.I. loan. Will VA guarantee such a loan?

A — Yes, but the amount of the loan on which the guaranty or insurance is based will be in proportion to the veteran's interest in the loan. It may be difficult to find a lender willing to make such a loan.

Q — I DRAW a VA pension as the widow of a World War I veteran, and my only other income is from Social Security. Since I am unable to perform household chores, will the VA give me an allowance to help pay the people who do my housework?

A — There is a law which provides an extra allowance for widows drawing death benefits if their disabilities are such that they require regular aid and assistance of another person. In order to determine your eligibility for this allowance, suggest you submit to the VA office having jurisdiction of your claim a report of a complete physical examination by your physician. Your eligibility for the allowance can then be determined.

Q — MY HUSBAND has not changed the beneficiary on his $10,000 National Service Life Insurance since our marriage. He says it is not necessary to change the beneficiary, since the insurance is automatically paid to the wife of a veteran. Is this true?

A — No. The Veterans Administration must pay the designated beneficiary of record. If your husband wants you to receive the proceeds of his NSLI policy, he must name you as beneficiary.

Teen GOP Groups Plan Conference

Suburban chapters of the Teen-Age Republicans and Young Americans for Freedom will sponsor a 13th Congressional District Youth Political Action Conference Aug. 7.

Featured at the conference at the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn will be James Evans, author of the book, "The Glorious Quest," and David Brown, Republican committeeman from the 13th District.

"The conference will cover all phases of political organization," said Steven Loewy, a national director of Young Americans for Freedom, nation's largest conservative youth organization. "Seminars will be held throughout the day covering various topics, from public relations to the formation of political youth groups."

Fee for the conference is $2. Persons between the ages of 13 and 21 may obtain tickets by sending the fee to Political Action Conference, Box 214, Mt. Prospect.

Rep. Crane Will Speak

Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, will meet with high school journalists at Northwestern University tomorrow afternoon and will be the guest at the summer party of the Crane for Congress Committee tomorrow evening.

The party is scheduled for 6 p.m. at Chevy Chase Country Club in Wheeling.

He will speak to the Medill School of Journalism's High School Editors Institute at 2 p.m. on the Northwestern campus.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, he will speak at dedication ceremonies marking the opening of Clearbrook Center's Vocational Rehabilitation Center and Sheltered Workshop in Elk Grove Village.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday, he will speak at the Swedish Retirement Home picnic in Evanston.

Social Security and You

Q — MY HUSBAND, 68, does not plan to retire for a while. I did work a few years myself, but that was almost 20 years ago. Do I have to wait for my husband to retire before I can get monthly social security payments?

A — Before you can get payments as a wife, your husband has to be getting his monthly retirement payments. However, you should call or visit your social security office to see if you might be eligible for monthly payments on your own work record. Many women can qualify on their own account even though their work was spotty or they have not worked in recent years.

Q — I WILL BE 65 soon and am now working only part time. I am afraid that I will lose my part-time job if my em-

Meet On Reapportionment

An eight-man Reapportionment Commission appointed by Democratic and Republican leaders in the Illinois General Assembly will hold its first meeting in Springfield today.

The task of redistricting state legislative districts fell to the commission after members of the legislature failed in their spring session to agree on a new legislative map.

Three of the party leaders in the legislature appointed themselves and their administrative assistants to the commission. They include Republican Rep. Robert Blair of Park Forest, House speaker, who also named J. Douglas Donenfeld of Springfield; Democratic Sen. Cecil Partridge of Chicago, president pro tempore of the Senate, who named Herman G. Bodewes of Springfield; and Democratic Rep. Clyde Choate of Anna, House minority leader, who appointed Douglas N. Kane of Springfield.

REPUBLICAN SEN. W. Russell Arrington, Senate majority leader, who is sidelined by a stroke, appointed his assistant majority leader, Sen. Terrel E. Clarke of Western Springs and former governor William G. Stratton of Chicago.

The commission is expected to elect a chairman and vice chairman today and adjourn until next week, although it reportedly will look at the latest in a series of "compromise" maps drawn by key party figures.

According to the new state constitution, the commission has until Aug. 10 to agree on reapportionment. If five members do not agree by that time, the state Supreme Court will nominate an additional member from each party, one of which will be named by lot by the secretary of state to cast a tie-breaking vote.

Hot Line For Drug Users

A drug users' hot line manned primarily by former drug users has opened in Waukegan.

The line, sponsored by the Midwest Drug Prevention Program, is open to young people from Gary, Ind., to Milwaukee, Wis.

Open 24 hours a day, hot line counselors provide reassurance and assistance to persons who call 336-1111.

Hot line is an outgrowth of the Jesus Movement which originated in California, where the original hot line was set up in Anaheim.

Locally, the program was established by 10 persons, including the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Schoy of Schaumburg.

Though drugs are the primary concern of the hot line counselors, advice is also given to any youth with family, financial, religious and sexual problems.

Counselors are familiar with effects of marijuana, amphetamines and heroin and often spend hours "talking people down," according to one counselor. If medical assistance is needed, hot line can get help for a caller.

Names and addresses are never asked for, since hot line workers try to protect the individuals who call.

The hot line center has been financed by individual contributions. Volunteer and community contributions of time and money will be needed to keep the line open.

Anyone interested in helping the program should contact the Midwest Drug Prevention Program, 2001 Sunset, Waukegan, Ill. 60085.

IBEW Strike May Cause Problems For New School

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers may again cause headaches for High School Dist. 214 officials working against time to complete Rolling Meadows High School for the opening day of classes Sept. 7.

Three years ago, Hersey High School opened with no telephones because of an IBEW strike. Now, with another IBEW strike, telephone lines may not be installed at Rolling Meadows High School before school opens in eight weeks.

Hy Miller, architect for the school, told the board of education Monday night panels have been installed inside the school, but lines outside the school have not been connected.

Unlike Hersey, though, Miller said construction at Rolling Meadows will be completed, with two possible exceptions.

Installation of flooring in the gym and the indoor track underneath the gym may not be completed when school opens.

"The academic areas are almost ready now. Carpeting in the academic areas is 85 per cent completed," Miller said.

Principal Robert Hoese will be able to move into the building in a couple of weeks, though his office will not be entirely finished.

The IBEW strike will be the second construction engineers at Rolling Meadows High School have faced since the school was started more than a year ago. Ironworkers struck last spring, slowing early structural construction.

Construction of the school, Dist. 214's seventh high school, has generally been on schedule, according to Miller, who has been making monthly reports to the board for more than a year.

Outside baseball diamonds and fields are ready for use, but the football field is still incomplete. Monday night the board approved bids installation of electricity to the field. Football lights contributed by the City of Rolling Meadows, a press box and scoreboard have yet to be installed.

Sculpture Will Be Part Of Scene At Woodfield Mall

It used to be that when you wanted to see works of art, you have to take a trip to a museum or a gallery. Rarely, in the past, have paintings and sculpture been an integral part of the American business scene.

In recent years, however, paintings have come out of frames and sculpture has stepped down from pedestals to walk among the people.

Sculpture makes a stand in many a civic plaza and public parks, with Chicago's Picasso one of the most dramatic examples.

And now, three massive metal sculptures will become part of public life when Woodfield, the regional shopping development now under construction in Schaumburg, opens on Sept. 9.

Rising up to 35 feet above the mall floor, three distinctive metal sculptures will be installed in the three Grand Courts of the multi-level, fully enclosed shopping complex.

Kenneth Snelson, whose works are in the permanent collections of many museums, including the Museum of Modern Art and Milwaukee Art Institute, has created a stainless steel sculpture of six 24-foot anodized aluminum tubes at various angles that form an open grouping which appears suspended in space. Secured by stainless steel cables, the 6-inch diameter tubes are 24 feet at the widest point, with an overall height of 35 feet.

SNELSON, 44, studied under Buckminster Fuller at Black Mountain College and Fernand Leger at the Academie Montmartre in Paris. In talking about his sculptures, Snelson says, "Structure to me is involved with forces, the stressing of pieces together, the kind of thing you find in a suspension bridge, for example. It is a definition of what is going on to cause that space to exist. The distances between things that are stressed comprise its form."

Robert Engman's sculpture of graceful, curved stainless steel will soar to a height of 24 feet. The polished arcs of the work, weighing approximately 3,500 pounds, are held in tension by stainless steel aircraft cable.

Engman, 44, is co-chairman of the Department of Fine Arts, Graduate School of Fine Arts at the University of Pennsylvania. He has been a visiting critic and lecturer at the schools of architecture of Princeton, University of Texas, and M.I.T. He received his bachelor of arts degree from the Rhode Island School of Design, and his master of arts degree from Yale.

Engman, who has exhibited widely, is represented in major public collections, including the Museum of Modern Art and Whitney Museum in New York.

Robinson Fredenthal has created a many-faceted sculpture of baked enamel steel plates that will tower 24 feet above the mall floor. The 6-foot square work will provide varying illusions from each viewing angle.

Fredenthal, 31, reports that he began to develop study models involving relationships between the five primary solids in 1965. "The sculpture that I designed for Woodfield has its origins in these studies," he said. He has also been commissioned to create a sculpture for the City of Philadelphia.

FREDENTHAL received his bachelor of arts and architecture degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

The three works have been especially commissioned by Woodfield Associates, a joint venture between The Homart Development Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co., and A. Alfred Taubman and Richard P. Kughn, board chairman and president, respectively, of The Taubman Company, Inc. of Southfield, Mich. Taubman, a noted art collector himself, personally selected the artists.

"I feel very strongly," commented Taubman, "that art should be a natural part of public life. I am delighted to see modern sculpture erected in public squares all over the country, and that the initiative of business has contributed so much in this regard."

Taubman has commissioned sculptures for many other regional retail developments developed and constructed by The Taubman Company, including Southridge in the Milwaukee suburb of Greendale. "It is our opinion that these sculptures contribute effectively to the quality and elegance of the interior design of our projects," Taubman said.

THESE GRACEFUL steel arcs will soar in the Woodfield Mall among other metal sculptures. The polished arcs of this piece by Robert Engman, weigh 3,500 pounds and are supported by stainless steel aircraft cable.

Survey On Transportation Needs Will Be Conducted

Fifteen hundred residents of the northwest suburbs will have an opportunity to describe their transportation needs when students from Harper College and the University of Illinois conduct home interviews beginning Monday.

The survey is part of a Northwest Municipal Conference (NWMC) transportation development project which is being undertaken jointly by Harper College of Palatine and the Center for Urban Studies, University of Illinois, Chicago Circle.

The home interview survey will be phase three of the eight-phase project and will give insight into resident transportation priorities.

Area residents will be chosen for interviews at random. Individuals are asked to cooperate for the 15 to 20 minute interview.

The home survey project will begin July 19 and continue for three weeks.

In this resident transportation priorities phase, the special needs of senior citizens, young families with small children, heads of households, and teenagers will be recorded along with all other individual transportation needs.

Communities in the Northwest Municipal Conference include Arlington Heights, Barrington, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Niles, Palatine, Park Ridge, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Streamwood and Wheeling.

The first phase of the transportation project concerned the study of existing transportation reports relevant to problems among the member municipalities.

In phase two, interviews were held with municipal and other governmental officials to establish the extent to which officials observed common problems and the extent to which particular geographic divisions have special problems.

Future phases of the project will deal with employer priorities, completion of the data and document base, identification of alternative solutions to the transportation problems, strategies for implementing and monitoring on-going developments and the emergence of new problems related to resident transportation needs.

Paquin and Kristie Paquin. They have been taking care of the birds and released two after they became strong enough to take care of themselves.

Saved Birds Will Try Their Wings

Some fuzzy little baby sparrows who almost came to a premature end will have a chance to try their wings in a forest preserve soon because of the efforts of some Elk Grove Village youngsters.

Tom and Robert Baker found the four birds who had fallen out of the nest last week and took them to their neighbor's home at 446 Birchwood.

There the four children of the J. P.

Paquin family got into the act and raising the birds became a "neighborhood project," Mrs. Paquin said.

"We have a hamster, a fish and two dogs so I suppose it was natural we get the birds," Mrs. Paquin added.

At first the birds, who are almost big enough to fly, had to be force fed, but they quickly learned they were safe with the children, she said.

The birds are kept in a box and, she said, "When the children open the box the birds open up their mouths for food."

In addition, she said, the birds are allowed to exercise in the garage so their wings will grow strong. Over the weekend, she stated, two of the birds were healthy enough to be released at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

And, before they were let go, the birds had become very tame. "They will just sit in the children's hands," she said. "Once they realize they won't be hurt they are very tame."

Suit Names Horseman's Group Leader

by TOM ROBB

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area.

Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complainant caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employers under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant, through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Sentence Bomb Hoax Caller

A former Prospect Heights volunteer fireman was sentenced to one year's probation yesterday for phoning a false bomb threat to a Dist. 23 school, last spring.

Judge Simon Porter, of the Cook County Circuit Court ruled yesterday that Marvin Keihl was guilty of disorderly conduct and assigned him to a probation officer and a psychiatrist. Keihl, 21, of 415 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, must report regularly to the probation officer and the doctor during the one-year period.

Keihl was freed on a $5,000 bond in March after he was arrested for phoning a false bomb threat to the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. In May Keihl pleaded guilty to the charge.

The false bomb threat that led to his arrest was made March 15. The call was the third received at MacArthur School within a few days. In the same time span, false bomb threats were also telephoned to two other Prospect Heights schools: St. Alphonsus Catholic School and Robert Frost School.

Keihl was suspended from the Prospect Heights Volunteer Fire Department following his arrest by Cook County Sheriff's Police. Keihl has been a probationary member of the fire department for about 2½ months when the incidents occurred.

If Keihl violates the requirements of his probation he must return to court to be sentenced again. In addition to visiting his probation officer and the psychiatrist, Keihl must work regularly and not leave the state without informing the court.

Roadhouse Joins Community Service

David Roadhouse, 26, has officially joined the staff of Elk Grove Village Community Service as a family and marriage counselor.

Roadhouse began his duties Monday night at the farmhouse at 700 Blesterfield Rd. He will counsel there part-time on Monday and Thursdays from 6 to 10 p.m. until October.

After October he will be placed on the full-time payroll at a salary of $9,000 per year, according to Jordan Rosen, Community Service executive director.

The new counselor is being paid entirely out of village funds. The Elk Grove Village board recently approved a budget of $83,500 for Community Service.

A Chicago resident, Roadhouse has had two years experience in counseling, at Presbyterian St. Luke Hospital in Chicago. He also has a master's degree in counseling, according to Rosen.

The addition of Roadhouse brings the Community Service staff to four. Currently the village-funded social service and mental health agency has three full-time staff members — Rosen, youth worker Tom Woodard and a secretary.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under the military pay scale recently approved by the Senate, recruits at the bottom would be raised to $5,328.43 a year in pay and allowances, plus such fringe benefits as free medical care, uniforms, commissary discounts and, in some cases, travel.

I don't know what this amounts to in terms of total income, but when you put them all together the adjective in "buck private" begins to take on new significance.

At least it does to anyone old enough to remember the song "21 Dollars a Day Once a Month."

Supporters of the increase said it would move the Army closer to volunteer status, and I don't doubt that. If military pay went much higher, there might even be difficulty getting enough people to volunteer for civilian life.

Perhaps the following futuristic news story will prove prophetic:

WASHINGTON — Selective Service headquarters announced today that 100,000 members of the armed forces will be drafted for civilian life next month.

Officials said the July call represented at 30 per cent increase over the number of servicemen inducted into civilian life during June.

They said the stepped-up draft rate was necessary to replace the growing number of civilians who are becoming permanently embedded in traffic jams.

It was the largest monthly quota since

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Julius Bengtsson leads a pretty good life. He is young, nice looking, makes good money and is constantly in the company of some of the most beautiful and famous women in the world.

Bengtsson, Canadian-born and a Swedish citizen (he grew up there), is a widely-known personal hair stylist who is based in Hollywood and, as such, numbers among his customers many regular and occasional television headliners, as well as prominent women in other fields. He has to be ready to travel, and he is.

Consider:

"Jack Benny," he says, "sent me to Europe as a surprise for his wife Mary. He was going to Europe to do two Des O'Connor television shows, and he wanted her to come with him. She had a bad back, and he wanted to make it easier on her so she wouldn't have to go out to a hairdresser. So he asked me if I wanted to go on ahead and wait for her in the lobby of the Dorchester Hotel in London when she arrived. He thought it would be a nice surprise. I did it. And I cut his hair too."

AMONG BENGTSSON'S other customers are Hope Lange who'll be in Dick Van Dyke's new fall series, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Pat Crowley, Rita Hayworth, Irene Dunne, Barbara Rush, Lainie Kazan, Anne Baxter and Nancy Reagan, wife of California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bengtsson describes some of his notable customers as follows:

—Miss Lange: "Very easy to work with. Basically conservative."

—Zsa Zsa: "Fabulous." She just wants to be very glamorous.

—Mrs. Reagan: "Conservative in her hair style. Her clothes are very stylish."

—Miss Hayworth: "She's been my favorite movie star for years, and it's a thrill for me to be doing her. She's exciting, unpredictable and a little wild. Before I do her hair, she may just put on a record and start dancing."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Z studied the dummy before calling for the ace of trumps. East showed out and Z remarked, "It is just as good that we are playing the Jacoby transfer. Something tells me that everything is going to be wrong with this hand. Nevertheless, I would have made game in Wilbur Whitehead's column back in the '20s and things are no worse today."

Z led a diamond to his queen at trick two. West produced the ace and continued with the 10 of trumps. Z won this in dummy and led a spade. Once more a queen fell to West's ace. Back came the nine of trumps.

Z won this with the queen and was ready to operate. He cashed the king of spades, ruffed a spade in dummy, led a diamond to his king, ruffed a diamond in dummy, cashed dummy's king of clubs, led a club to his ace and played his last spade.

West held the eight of trumps and the queen of clubs. Both were good, but there was no way for him to make more than one trick. If he ruffed the spade, Z would discard the club from dummy. If he discarded his queen of clubs, Z would win a trick with dummy's seven of trumps.

The Doctor Says

Learning Problems Need Prompt Attention And Treatment

Dear Dr. Lamb — My daughter has had two years of first grade, they assigned her to second grade she of course could not do the work. She would come home tense and then during the last half she started nervous things like jerking, jumping and moving her head from side to side I was worried. We took her to the doctor and he says it's not neurological, and that there should be no pressure on her. He gave me nerve pills for her saying he didn't think they would help. I don't like giving them to her all the time. I am so worried about her. Please tell me what is wrong or if it's something she will overcome. She is going to a special class in school.

Dear Reader — It is important that you understand exactly what your child can and cannot do. There are a number of problems that may be the cause. She may have minor brain damage that causes her difficulty in reading, writing and spelling — a pretty big handicap at any stage of learning. Some children outgrow this difficulty and with treatment can improve their learning ability until the condition improves.

There is always the possibility of a child having a limited ability to learn without brain damage and that may be a permanent lifetime problem. Then there is the gamut of emotional and psychiatric problems that can be and are also present in children.

It will be time-consuming and take money but it will be worth it to settle the treatment. She will have to have special question and, if indicated, get specialized and whether she has minor brain dam-needs psychiatric help.

I would suggest that with the help of your doctor you try to get the child examined by a child psychiatrist. In the course of evaluating the child's problem he can obtain all the necessary testing. I can't urge this too strongly. The health and well-being of the entire family can be affected by such an unresolved problem. Regardless of what the difficulty is, definition and understanding of the problem will go a long way toward helping (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

District School Board Upholds Attendance Policy

Incoming freshmen in High School Dist. 214 must attend the school in the attendance area in which they reside.

After several weeks of discussion brought about by a 1,000-signature petition from northern Arlington Heights residents, the board of education voted Monday night to stay with its present policy of allowing upperclassmen but not freshmen decide which school they want to attend when boundary lines are changed.

In their petition, the residents had asked for their area, located south of Palatine and west of Rand Roads, moved this year to the Arlington High School attendance area, to be moved back to Hersey. A suggestion that incoming freshmen with older brothers and sisters at Hersey should be allowed to attend Hersey was jointly investigated by administrators and residents.

Supt. Edward Gilbert recommended no change in the present policy, saying he was opposed to any plan which would put more students in an already crowded school. The board followed his recommendation in a 4-3 vote. Arthur Aronson, Raymond Erickson and Richard Stamm voted no.

IF THE POLICY had been changed to give incoming freshmen the option to attend the same school with an older sibling, three areas of the district besides the Hersey-Arlington area would have been affected. The other three were Arlington students moved to Rolling Meadows High School, Forest View students moved to Rolling Meadows High School and Wheeling students moved to Hersey High School.

The board also approved $2,800 for construction of a sidewalk on the north side of Golf Road near St. Cecilia Church.

The Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) was given permission to rent space in Rolling Meadows High School and the Dist. 214 administration center for the Data Processing cooperative.

The Police Counselor program for 1971-72 was approved.

Local municipalities have agreed to share in the cost of the program. Counselors salaries will be paid up to 80 percent by the school district during the school year. Municipalities will pay summer salaries and part of the school year salary.

BOARD PRESIDENT John Costello suggested Dist. 214 explore offering Elk

Grove and Forest View High Schools to Elementary Dist. 59 for use by civic groups. The Dist. 59 board recently announced it could not afford opening schools to civic groups during the coming school year.

The board discussed resolutions to present to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards. Updating the School Code, elimination of Columbus Day as a school holiday and repeal of the teacher tenure law are three issues the board will suggest for consideration.

Old-Timers Featured At Air Show

It was a weekend for aviation buffs, fledgling pilots and those who long for the wild blue yonder. It was the annual DuPage County Air Show, an event which is gaining more stature each year throughout the midwest as an air spectacle unrivaled elsewhere.

This year the skies above the airport were untouched by the scream of jet engines or the rolling thunder of high-speed military aircraft.

Instead, the air show concentrated on the grand, old propeller-driven planes which come sputtering across the horizon with all the nostalgia of an old movie.

Bi-planes, classic high and low wing monoplanes, and even a high-speed Mustang of World War II vintage were at the show.

At one point, during a daring automobile to airplane pick-up, one of the stunt men had a moment of uncertainty as the pick-up airplane dropped him dangerously low to the concrete. As caught by Paddock Publications Director of Photography Larry Cameron, the crowd held its breath as the stunt man climbed the flexible ladder as the airplane rose into the sky.

A TENSE crowd watched what could have been a serious mishap at the DuPage Air Show last weekend. A stuntman was almost in trouble as he performed the feat of transferring from a speeding automobile to an airplane trailing a flexible ladder. (Photo by Larry Cameron)

THE F-51 Mustang, one of the great airplanes of World War II came to the DuPage Air Show. The airplane is considered one of the best aircraft of the 1940's.

Jamaica! Land Of Mystery And Fun

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Gloucester Avenue in Montego Bay, Jamaica, is a far cry from Collins Avenue in Miami Beach.

But, then, that's one of the good things about it.

Gloucester Avenue is a narrow street — barely wide enough for the English imports to dart past each other on the "wrong side of the road." It winds its way about two miles from the Sangster International Airport to the business district of Montego Bay — the tourism capital of the Caribbean island just 90 miles from Cuba.

The thin blacktopped ribbon runs east and west along the north shore. There are puddles on the road, left from a late afternoon tropical shower. Pedestrians cross back and forth, trying to make the most of the narrow sidewalk which picks up on one side of the street only when it ends on the other.

On the north side of Gloucester Avenue the emerald waters of the bay, more clear even than pictured in travel magazines, licks at the shoreline only a few feet away. Only the famed Doctor's Cave Beach and a few small hotels break the line of white sand and crystal water, splattered with the brown and purple coral heads.

THE HILLSIDE jumps sharply upward from the road on the other side. Small, intimate hotels, souvenir shops and the huts of woodcarvers are sculptured into the base of the hill.

Higher up, more of the same hotels nestle among the tropical jungle.

Unlike Collins Avenue in Miami Beach, there are no super high-rise, ultra-modern, sterile slabs of concrete housing thousands of tourists in this area.

Rather there are hotels like Miranda Hill — a cluster of cottage-like rooms, individually decorated, and so tangled among the thick palms and "monkey trees" that guests can barely see neighboring units, the outdoor bars, dining room and swimming pool.

No flashing neon billboards here.

No 10-lane expanses of concrete where overpowered cars with monstrous tires roar endlessly back and forth.

No expressways, overpasses or left-turn bays.

There isn't even a traffic light in Montego Bay.

INSTEAD THERE is a quaint island village that changes little through the years, unspoiled by the steadily increasing tourist traffic.

But Gloucester Avenue is certainly not the only street in Montego Bay, and outside that immediate area is offered enough diversity to please any tourist.

A few miles out, on the road to Falmouth are several larger, more modern hotels, complete with a variety of nightclubs and private beaches.

A few minutes further, high on a hill and with an unobstructed panorama of water, sand and forest, is the Rose Hall Great House, — home of the island's greatest legends.

The Rose Hall Great House, center of a 6,000-acre sugar cane plantation, was built about 1770 as the finest residence in Jamaica.

It wasn't until 1820, however, that then owner John Palmer married Annie May Patterson and the reign of terror began.

Annie Palmer ruled Rose Hall for 13 years with a policy of fear, black magic, torture and death. The slaves believed her to be a devil with voodoo powers.

ONCE MANY YEARS ago, legend has it, a slave maid tried to murder the sorceress and following a trial, was beheaded for her efforts. Annie ordered a slave to carry the head in a basket the 10 miles from Montego Bay to Rose Hall and then had the head hoisted atop a long bamboo pole to fester and decay in the tropical sun as a warning to other slaves who might harbor similar thoughts.

Lovers, slaves and three husbands died mysteriously during Annie's rule. Countless others were said to be tortured. But in 1831 it ended suddenly when a slave strangled the "witch" in her sleep.

The mansion and grounds were abandoned then and fell into ruin. But today it is almost completely restored through the efforts and $1.5 million of John Rollins of the United States.

Only a few items remain of the interior of the stone mansion — but one is said to be the ghost of the White Witch of Rose Hall.

There's no limit to the things to do and see in Montego Bay and the surrounding area — from the banana boats to rafting on the Martha Brae River to the "Bird Lady" who calls thousands of tropical birds from the skies every day.

High on every tourist's list, however, should be Ross Kanaga's "Jamaican Swamp Safaris."

Kanaga, a 25-year-old half Florida Indian, is a for-real crocodile fighter who is deeply concerned about the mistreatment of all animals.

KANAGA DOESN'T have a glib presentation to go along with his show, and wouldn't think of basing his shows on tricks. "When you see a supposed crocodile trainer tell you he can hypnotize the animal, call him a liar," Kanaga tells his audience. "Turn a crocodile or an alligator on his back and he'll black out in seconds. Leave him that way for three minutes and he suffers permanent brain damage."

Bearing the evidence of scars from training crocodiles since he was eight years old, Kanaga calls the animals with a funny sound from his throat, feeds them out of his hand and wades into knee-deep water to pull them out.

But he's no wild man. Although he doesn't talk much during his shows, when he's out of the swamp he relaxes his concentration and converses articulately and politely with tourists, telling them his life story and virtually everything about alligators and crocodiles.

A Jamaican vacation is a curious mixture of the modern and traditional.

Aboard a sleek Air Jamaica jet, Jamaican stewardesses, clad in jumpsuits, serve rum punch and Jamaican liqueur while calypso music filters through the speaker system.

Jamaica Tourist Board guides, dressed in khaki shirts and shorts with pith helmets, chaperone the newly arrived tourists to cabs which race off in all directions.

MOST OF THEM head for Gloucester Avenue, and through the hotel area. From nightclubs Jamaica's answer to rock music, called "Rock Steady" and "Reggae," drifts across the street. From the hotels the sound is mostly calypso.

And in the middle of it all, somehow oblivious and unendangered by the surroundings, a donkey with a hatful of flowers on its head, ambles along ever so slowly pulling a canopied cart with two tourists aboard for a leisurely tour.

Montego Bay is probably not what many people expect when they fly out of O'Hare.

But that may be just what they like about it.

Closing Schools Was A Mistake

For the first time in many years, the schools of Elk Grove Township District 59 will be closed and dark at night.

In an unusual move, the district's board of education recently decided it would no longer allow the schools to be used by community groups after school hours. The board's decision is based on the members' conclusion that the district can no longer afford the custodial services necessary for after-hours use of the schools.

Although the board may be right in its assessment of the financial mess of the district, closing the schools to the community at large is a tragic mistake which can only serve to drive a deeper wedge between the school district and the people it serves.

The board's decision is doubly tragic because despite the money crisis of the district and despite the board's protestations that other cuts are far more serious to the educational process, the board's action to close the schools was carried out with what appeared to be a touch of vengeance.

Voters in Dist. 59 recently defeated a referendum aimed at providing more money to the district. In denying the district these funds — and thus defeating an increase in their own taxes — the voters were telling the district that cuts in the district's budget would have to be made.

Obviously, no cuts can be made without someone suffering the consequences. But in this move to darken the school houses, the people's will seems to have been turned back on them with swift and sudden retaliation.

For many years Dist. 59 has had a sliding scale of fees which helped offset the custodial expense of the district for late night community meetings.

Instead of revising the scale upward or charging all groups a fee, the board took action to close the schools to everyone. It is like turning away an entire community without first determining what segment is willing to pay its own way.

In its present financial dilemma, Dist. 59 cannot be expected to pay the added burden of after hours meetings. But at the same time, the district does not have the right to close its schools to a community desperately in need of meeting facilities without first giving each group a choice between paying the whole cost or meeting elsewhere.

Among the groups forced out of the local schools this fall will be Boy Scout troops, service organizations and two church congregations.

Perhaps it is a small thing to close out these groups when an entire educational system is confronted by major cutbacks, but the truth remains that without even a choice, the residents of Dist. 59 soon will see the lights go off in their schools at night.

Clogged Memories

If your problem is a poor memory, the trouble may actually be that you remember too much.

This sounds like a paradox but it isn't.

"Efficient remembering is clearly related to efficient forgetting," explains Prof. Robert A. Bjork, a University of Michigan psychologist. "The mind must set aside information it no longer needs to prevent it from interfering with new information."

Consider the short-order cook, he suggests. A waitress calls to him, "Scramble two, crisp bacon and an English: one over light on whole wheat." The cook not only has to keep track of the orders he's received but systematically forget the ones he's filled. If he doesn't, his memory will become cluttered to the point of paralysis.

A person has a limited use for most of the information he receives, says Bjork, who has tested over 600 individuals as part of a study of memory processes. He overhears a conversation of a passerby on the street or notices the price of a shirt in a store window. Somehow the brain sorts out such images from those it needs to remember.

Once we can specify the processes by which the mind sets aside information it no longer needs, he predicts, we will better understand how needed information is remembered.

And maybe even discover the answer to the question: What is it that a husband forgets his wedding anniversary in order to remember?

Timely Quotes

"We have to get at the cause of the frustration, anxiety or whatever may be leading the young to give up on the system and leads step by step into another world which may seem better but which turns out worse." — President Nixon, discussing America's drug problem with religious leaders.

"It's my pleasure to remind the audience that if you see one FBI director you've seen them all." — Martha Mitchell, joking with J. Edgar Hoover, the nation's first and only FBI director, at a dinner in her honor.

"We just tinkered with the problems of health, education, jobs and housing. You get justice when you really have a passion for it; you get equality when you really work for it." — Ramsey Clark, former attorney general, in a commencement address.

"The Nixon administration has a great deal more confidence in the judgment of the elected officials of this country than in the judgment of the New York Times. A country does not conduct its diplomacy on the pages of a newspaper." — Vice President Agnew.

Nothing Personal-It's Budgetary

U.S. Subsidies To Defense Contractors

The Pentagon And Its 'Kept' Firms

by RAY CROMLEY

Some insiders in the Nixon administration are more troubled than they will say publicly over what the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation case tells them about the unhappy and heavy interdependence of one important group of U.S. companies and the Defense Department.

Special Report

Involved in the overall picture, though little mentioned in the public discussions, are assorted subcontracts involving many smaller firms.

For the sad thing is that the Lockheed situation is not unique. For the past 20 years of Republican and Democratic administrations, the Pentagon has been actively engaged in bailing out companies, large and small, because to let them go down the drain would have endangered the national security, national economic stability or an administration's employment policies.

These past increases in funds for companies in trouble have not attracted the wide attention of the Lockheed case. But they have, in the aggregate, cost much more in government dollars.

Sometimes the problem has been solved by "price adjustments." Sometimes advance payments have been stepped up. Sometimes additional work has been thrown the way of the company. Sometimes loans have been managed through implied government guarantees. There are a multitude of ways to supply private firms with more federal funds.

So far as can be discovered, the decisions have been made by government men, largely civilians, operating in what they believe to be public interest.

It could turn out that a government-guaranteed loan to Lockheed is essential and in the best interests of the United States. But what has developed is deeply disturbing all the same.

If this were a simple matter of corruption, it would be easily correctable. Each new administration could sweep out evil men and public prosecutors indict businessmen involved. What has happened is more worrisome.

Over the years a select group of companies has grown used to Pentagon ways. They have acquired the know-how required to deal effectively within the Pentagon maze.

From the Pentagon side, working with people you know is more comfortable. Old shoes feel better.

Ray Cromley

There is a learning curve that companies go through in meeting government specifications and in following government procurement procedures and work practices. It is a complicated jungle that many companies run from and others go broke at.

Many firms prefer to stay away from the roller-coaster ups and downs of defense business but those which are successful spend much of their effort in mastering the techniques. Often they so alter their organization and business practices that they may lose their ability to compete in the non-government world.

All of these factors tend to keep some companies regularly tied to the defense business. They also operate to discourage new entries. Gradually the field gets smaller — at least in major areas.

The process is intensified by what might be called the Pentagon speed syndrome. The Pentagon is always in a hurry. Sometimes this is because Congress has waited so long to vote appropriations that the Defense Department must run to catch up with its program.

An official in a hurry favors a man he has dealt with before because he knows what that man can do, and what he can't. A company used to dealing with a particular type of weapon or equipment often can do the job more rapidly and with fewer misunderstandings and mistakes.

Thus, the Pentagon has over the years tended to concentrate its major contracts within a fairly tight circle.

This extreme dependence of some major U.S. companies on the Pentagon and the dependence of the Pentagon on these firms is bad for national defense and the free enterprise system.

In some instance the federal government has developed what might be called kept companies, with all the inherent inefficiencies, waste and narrowness of outlook this relationship implies.

Neglect, Apathy And Greed Despoiling Illinois

I hope the campaign to establish areas of "scenic waterways" in Illinois is successful.

I have read your (editorial) comments as well as other information about the proposed bill these past few months, and the concept appears to be both sound and advisable.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

At first glance, this may sound like "much ado about nothing" when compared with the great issues of housing, education, jobs, civil rights, drugs, welfare, taxes and the Vietnam war. But it takes on added dimension and importance when we consider that, actually, this is a concern for the well-being of many future generations.

The whole nation, including Illinois, confronts a tragic environmental crisis today. Neglect, greed, carelessness and apathy have tainted our water, polluted our air, destroyed our wildlife, raped our natural resources, robbed us of the peace and joy of natural, unspoiled beauty and surrounded us with noise. As these travesties were developing, I am sure past generations shrugged them aside then as "much ado about nothing" and left to this generation a legacy of growing horror.

God willing, we will not repeat past error.

There is an opportunity to set aside — and protect — a small segment of the Illinois environment that will be saved for all to experience and enjoy. Is this asking too much? I think not. For all over this state there is ample and painful evidence that the despoilers, industrialists, politicians, and polluters have extracted MORE than their pound of flesh — and added many pounds of cash for their pockets in the process. Cannot the PEOPLE now have preserved some small shred of what is left???

Police Should Enforce Law Equally

I am in partial agreement with "Disillusioned Resident's" letter to the editor in the July 6 paper.

What's good for the proverbial "goose" and so on. I've seen preference shown in several ways by our police department. It would seem we have some very special citizens in our lovely town.

If loud, boisterous, outdoor parties are out for some, so should they be for all. The fact that they are in local government shouldn't color the situation. City employees shouldn't be overlooked because it is more convenient to park trucks on the street all day and night. It is a hazard to little children who, no matter how often reminded or closely watched, dart quickly out after a ball and forget warnings in the excitement of play.

I'm sure my family and I have committed infractions of the law over the years. If our attention is called to it or a ticket received, I sincerely hope we all do our best not to make the same mistake again.

On the other side of the coin I can call to mind several pleasant dealings with the Rolling Meadows Police Department. Take the courteous, worried officer who got my two children out of a locked bathroom. Another was a speedy response to the report of a prowler. They gave sound and reassuring advice when it happened.

No town is perfect. There will always be the good and bad, the likes and dislikes of its citizens. Let us all remember there is room for improvement with everyone, every place.

Cooperation Key To Ambulance Solution

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Paddock Publications and Paul Greenfield for the recent in-depth coverage they gave to the medical transportation problems in Palatine. I would also like to state that I am sure these problems can be brought to a successful solution.

As a member of the Illinois Professional Ambulance Association and the Ambulance Association of America, and also as a delegate to the Emergency Health Services Committee of the Illinois Department of Public Health, I can assure you that much more serious problems throughout Illinois and the United States have been solved. But this can only be done through a concerted effort of all persons involved.

The legislation now pending in Springfield is a product of the Emergency

Health Services Committee, which was made up of doctors, professional ambulance operators, funeral directors, and representatives of the Illinois Hospital Association and the American College of Surgeons, with the assistance of representatives of fire departments, police departments, junior colleges, and public safety engineers. This committee was initially under the direction of James Diekroeger of the Illinois Department of Public Health, and later under Eugene Cowser of the Illinois Hospital Association. These men, along with Dr. Rose of the Department of Public Health, should be highly commended for their work in improving the quality of emergency medical services in Illinois. The committee and Dr. Rose reported to Dr. Yoder, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, who carried their recommendations to the Governor. With this same cooperation our local problems can be solved, and have been solved in many other areas.

I, of course, will certainly meet with any governmental bodies, civic groups, or interested persons at any time to maintain and improve the quality of emergency medical care available to this area. I will report back through your newspaper the results of any of these meetings.

From myself and all the employees of Delta Ambulance, we would also like to thank all those persons who have communicated to us their encouragement; and again to thank the Palatine Herald for this public service.

Business Today

by JOHN N. RIGOS

ATHENS (UPI) — Visitors to Greece often are surprised at the air of affluence in the country. They usually are unprepared for the number of cars in the streets, the well-dressed women, the popular nightclubs and restaurants, and the shops displaying merchandise comparable to any western capital.

In the last two or three years, in fact, a phenomenal number of "chic" shops have opened, offering the latest fashions, fun furniture, bright household accessories, trinkets and the like.

Adding to the air of affluence and a booming economy is the vast building program. Apartments, office buildings and public works projects are going up everywhere.

Four years ago, when the military-backed government took over, foreign and local prophets predicted the total collapse of the economy within months. What they did not take into account was the firm foundation for economic development laid by preceding administrations. It began to pay off when the colonels came along in 1967.

IN TRYING to score quickly and gain support from consumers, the colonels created a balance of payments deficit, according to Bank of Greece, figures for the first four months of 1971 the gap was $208 million, 44 per cent higher than last year. The gap was covered by $212.7 million worth of capital inflow, most in the form of risky short term credits.

The bank statement also showed that the government today pays $200 million a year in interest on suppliers' credits and loan repayments, the entire sum it earned from last year's tourists.

"We will have a deficit for seven to eight years, perhaps, after which Greece will probably become a creditor nation," Alternate Minister of Coordination, Emanuel Ethenakis, told UPI. "In the meantime, we are trying to face the problem through an active policy and active measures such as their increase of exports."

Economists don't believe the answer is as simple as that. One agronomist pointed out that agricultural exports already are down 15 per cent in the first quarter compared to 1970, while exports continued to rise 24 per cent in the same period.

The government recently set up a special committee to seek remedies for the balance of payments deficit. Apart from trying to find ways of bringing more money into the country, the committee is expected to suggest the curbing of luxury imports.

This might cause outright unpopularity among the general public and give the regime's opponents abroad another reason for finger-pointing. But it would be a step in the right direction. What the government really wants is long term investment.

Business Surge Hurt By Inflation

While business is on a recovery path, "the overall performance of the economy remains a source of considerable dissatisfaction," according to economists at The Northern Trust Company. The Chicago bank's July economic newsletter, Business Comment, cites a broadening upturn in a number of business indicators, mixed with the dampening effects of continuing high unemployment and inflation.

On the bright side, the economists note that signs of a business recovery are impressive. Nonfarm payroll employment climbed at an annual rate of 1.3% between February and May, compared with a 0.8% drop over the previous year. There has been a similar strengthening in industrial production, as shown by the Federal Reserve output index, despite the recent decline in automobile assemblies. Wage and salary payments have also gained considerable vigor since February, with a spurt in May reflecting jumps in the growth of employment and industrial output.

Unemployment, on the other hand, remains high. Related to the continuing joblessness are the cautious inventory policies of business firms and further reductions in military spending.

With steel industry production headed downward, whether there is a strike or not — and with a flat capital spending trend anticipated in the second half — Northern Trust economists say prospects remain slim for any significant improvement in the unemployment picture this year. Despite continuing softness in labor and product markets, steep wage and price increases persist. The consumer price index climbed at a "stunning" 7% annual rate in May, after showing a moderating trend earlier in the year.

It seems, according to Northern Trust economists, that the pent-up demand for autos, following last autumn's strike, has run its course, for the climb in consumer demand appears to have moderated in the second quarter.

The buyer has not yet regained confidence in the economy, a University of Michigan survey shows. Savings of households remain high, while the increase in installment buying is still relatively moderate.

Contributing to the slow growth in consumer demand are the unfavorable employment conditions and a typically shorter work week than prior to the recession. With further impact of higher taxes and inflation, real disposable income in the first quarter was only about 3% above the year-earlier level.

Summing up the mixed outlook, Northern Trust economists see consumer demand trending upward, fueled by the recent rise in social security benefits, and expected increase in military salaries, and rising private payrolls. In addition, the surge in housing starts this spring should trigger increased purchases of household durable goods.

At least partially offsetting these favorable factors are the dampening effects of both inflation and unemployment. In addition, any pronounced climb in interest rates could affect mortgage credit and dampen buying sentiments.

"Thus, even more than usual," concludes Business Comment, "the prospective vigor of consumer spending is subject to considerable uncertainty."

Hannifin Starts Program

In an effort to reduce shop accidents and resulting lost production, Parker Hannifin Corporation's Cylinder Division has implemented a Cash Award Safety Program at its Des Plaines facilities, and in its first three months it has proven very successful.

During recent ceremonies at the Des Plaines facilities, 27 cash awards were presented to employees under the new program.

Presenting the awards were P. J. Endebach, General Manager of Manufacturing for the Division, and D. M. Anten, Plant Manager of the Des Plaines facility.

Mr. Anten stated, "During the first three months the new safety program has been in effect in Des Plaines, lost production time has been cut 30% over similar periods. Enthusiasm for the new program is high and its initial success in Des Plaines is encouraging. We feel certain this program will continue to result in considerable cost-savings to the Cylinder Division," he added.

The Cylinder Division, which manufactures and distributes air and hydraulic power cylinders, has facilities in Des Plaines, Plymouth, Mich., Sebring, Ohio, Saddlebrook, N.J., Atlanta, Ga., and Oakland, Calif.

U.S. Paying Farmers To Destroy Crop Of Pot

by BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government experiment in cutting the illegal marijuana supply by paying farmers to eradicate wild-growing hemp has passed its first test, according to Agriculture Department officials.

No final evaluation of the experiment will be made until windup reports on the amount of hemp sprayed by farmers in 11 pilot counties have been assembled and studied later this summer. Marijuana comes from the dried leaves and flowers of the hemp plant.

But Ray Hunter, head of an Agriculture Department conservation unit which is operating the experiment with funds furnished by the Justice Department, said a preliminary report shows farmer interest in cooperating with the program was about in line with advance estimates.

Hunter said the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs had allocated $68,000 for cost — sharing payments to farmers under the 11 — county program this year. As of June 30, farm officials in the counties had applications from 966 farmers and already had approved payments of $64,500.

Actual spraying and other weed-killing operations got under way in the pilot counties in late May and will continue in a few areas through mid or late July, Hunter said. After operations end, he said, a final report on what the program has accomplished will be furnished to the Justice Department. Officials there will decide whether the results warrant continuing and perhaps expanding the operation next year.

The counties in which the marijuana eradication payments are being made this year include:

Illinois — Henderson; Iowa — Mitchell; Indiana — Kosciusko; Kansas — Marshall and Reno; Kentucky — Jessamine; Michigan — Cass; Minnesota — Meeker; Missouri — Andrew; South Dakota — Moody; and Wisconsin — Walworth. In addition, another $17,000 in drug control funds was funneled through the Agricultural Extension Service to officials in Champaign County, Illinois, to help fund a community drive against wild hemp.

Ask The IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) Are all the provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1969 now completely in effect?

A) No. Among some of the important changes still to come are increases in the personal exemption to: $650 for 1971; $700 for 1972; and $750 for 1973. Also there will be further increases in the standard deduction and the amount of income needed before you have to file a return.

Q) I don't think the agent who examined my return was right in disallowing some of my deductions. Is there anyone else at the IRS I can see about this?

A) You may request a district conference to discuss the disputed deductions. The way to do this is described on the notice you received explaining the proposed changes in your tax.

The conference provides you with an independent review of the questioned items, since the person representing the IRS at the conference is not part of the office that examined your return.

Q) I received a cash award from my employer because a suggestion of mine was adopted. Is the award taxable?

A) Yes. An award or bonus given employees for work achievements or for suggestions is taxable.

Q) I just sold my house for a profit. Do I have to pay the tax on the gain next year when I file my tax return?

A) The gain is not taxed at the time of sale if within one year before or after the sale you buy and occupy another residence, and the cost equals or exceeds the "adjusted sales price" of the old residence.

The tax is only postponed. Any gain not taxed in the year of sale is subtracted from the cost of the new residence, giving you a lower basis to be used in the event of a later disposition of the new house. Special provisions apply if you build the home. Additional details are contained in Publication 523, Tax Information on Selling Your Home, available free at IRS offices.

Q) Does the IRS automatically impose a penalty on a taxpayer who underpays his estimated tax installment?

A) A penalty of 6 per cent per year is imposed by law for underpayment of installments of estimated tax except in certain situations. The penalty does not apply if each installment is paid on time and (1) is at least 90 per cent (96-2/3 per cent for farmers or fishermen) of the amount due on the basis of the tax shown on the return for the taxable year, (2) is at least as much as would have been paid if based on the tax shown on your 1970 return, or (3) is based on a tax computed by using your income for last year and this year's tax rates and exemptions. For additional exceptions in unusual cases see Form 2210, Underpayment of Estimated Income Tax By Individuals, available at your local IRS office. Farmers and fishermen should use Form 2210F.

Contributions To The Center Fund Half-Way To Goal

The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center approached the half-way point Wednesday in its effort to raise $7,500 by Aug. 2.

If the family service agency succeeds in reaching this goal, it will be eligible for a $7,500 "matching grant" from a private foundation.

The combined funds will enable the Center to meet a $15,000 deficit in its 1971 operating budget and abandon plans to curtail service to Northwest suburban families.

To help the Center reach its goal, the Herald is asking readers to donate a dollar or more to a special emergency fund. Thus far, 856 readers, nine churches, and two business firms have contributed a total $3,114 to the fund — leaving a balance of $4,386 to be raised during the next two weeks.

"As more and more people become aware of the need for the Center and the urgency of its financial crisis, response to the fund increases," said Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor in chief. "We are encouraged by the support and generosity of our readers thus far and are hopeful of achieving our goal."

The Austin Chapter of the International Order of DeMolay will sponsor a gimmick road rally Saturday.

Registration will start at 6:30 p.m. in the west parking lot of the Golf-Mill Shopping Center on Golf Road. Registration fee is $5 per car.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers and dash plates will be provided for all cars.

DeMolay is an organization open to all boys between the ages of 13 and 21. The group is directed by an advisory council of Master Masons, but Masonic affiliation is not a requirement for DeMolay membership.

Students At Harper 'Run Supermarket'

Harper students participating in the 1971 spring Supermarket Management Program had the opportunity to learn about supermarket sales, advertising and personnel and then apply their knowledge to decision making.

Harper instructors Donald Holland and Gerald Tapp divided the class into four competing supermarket management teams.

During six periods, each one duplicating a week of store operations, the participants were required to make decisions about their "supermarket" including profit margins for each department, merchandise ordering, and financing.

A computer supplied financial data feedback, showing effects of the decisions. This information was used in helping plan the next week of "operations."

The class members concluded that, although this activity did not entirely duplicate the real supermarket decision-making situation, they appreciated the opportunity to test their abilities and judgments.

Late Palatine Rally Hands Lions First Setback

by LARRY EVERHART
Hold everything, fans.
The American Legion Ninth District pennant race was considered by most to be dead a long time ago. But somebody forgot to tell that to Palatine.
The race has begun to make stirrings in its coffin and the final nail has not yet been pounded in.
That is the sudden uneasy situation for the Logan Square Lions — runaway leaders until now — after they dropped a thrilling, come-from-behind battle to Palatine, 7-3 Tuesday evening on the winners' home field.
Sure, the Lions' lead will still be hard to overcome. They have a three-game cushion in the loss column with seven to play (Palatine has just four remaining). The margin is a game and a half.

But contrary to what seemed to be the case, Logan Square is not invincible in league play. Tuesday's loss was their first after 10 straight victories.
And Palatine has suddenly stolen the area limelight from the Lions. They have won 16 of their last 18, 11 in a row, and are now back in contention with a 10-4 league slate. Overall, Palatine is 24-10; Logan Square 37-5.
Figures like those would indicate a red-hot battle when the two clubs met.

and that's just what Tuesday's contest was — one of the most exciting of the year.
Prime ingredient in the big win was a four-run jolt by Palatine in the sixth inning to break a deadlock (they had trailed 3-0 in the fourth inning). Highlight was Bill Arkus' two-run double to break the tie.
It was all made possible by the steady pitching of Rick Peekel, who notched his fourth win in six league decisions on a five-hitter. Just one run against Peekel was earned.
Logan Square's flamethrower, Mike Pettenuzzo, was tagged with the loss, and it was no fluke. Palatine ousted the feared Pettenuzzo in the big sixth and got eight of their nine hits off him. Pettenuzzo had struck out eight but issued five walks. All seven runs were charged to him, two unearned.

Logan Square broke on top 2-0 in the second with two gift runs, both scoring on an error after infield hits by Steve Smith and Joe Bombicino.
The Lions made it 3-0 in the fourth when Bombicino lashed another hit, stole second and scored on Stan Bobowski's single.
Then Palatine went to work, getting one of the runs back in the fourth on Dave Hauswirth's double, Mike Honel's single and Rich Gawron's fielder's choice. Andy Knotek belted a ground-rule double but no more runs scored.
The hosts forged a tie in the fifth, getting just two runs on three hits and two walks. Peekel and Steve Garoutte singled, Arkus walked to fill the bases, and Hauswirth's groundout brought in a run.

Honel hit a pop-up that was wind-blown and lost in the sun to refill the sacks. The tying run was walked in but Pettenuzzo bore down to strike out the next two batters.
But the tie was explosively broken in the sixth. With one out, Peekel struck out but was safe at second after the third strike escaped to the backstop and a throw to first also got away.
Steve Garoutte walked and both runners scored on Arkus' shot to deep left center. Hauswirth walked, bringing on reliever Terry Smith. Arkus scored on a delayed double steal, Honey singled and another fielder's choice by Gawron scored the final run.
Peekel set down the side in order in the seventh.
And suddenly, the Ninth District race wasn't such a yawner after all.

Ali Doesn't Like Hassle Anymore

There was a religious atmosphere, but the pictures of Pope John XXIII, St. Theresa and Cardinal Stritch didn't make it so.
There was a political atmosphere, but the pictures of all the presidents, several larger shots of John Kennedy and an election poster of Mayor Daley didn't make it so.
And there was a theatrical atmosphere, but the presence of comedian Dick Gregory along with pictures of John Wayne, Fahey Flynn and Joel Daley didn't make it so.
One man made it so — Muhammad Ali.
This part minister, part politician, part actor and total fighter was preparing for his July 26 showdown with Jimmy Ellis. As he whipped himself into shape last week in Chicago, he was surrounded by a small group of people and paper memories boxed them in on all four sides.
The aforementioned pictures were in the minority as fight publicity posters, tacked on top of one another several times over, blanketed most of the walls.
It was Coulon's Gym — a very small, modest third floor establishment located on the south side of the city.
Champions, potential champs and also-rans have been coming to this spot for 48 years. The place was founded by Johnny Coulon, Bantamweight champion from 1910 to 1914, who left the business in his wife's hands after he retired.
The aging, crumbling sign outside the entrance once told all that this was a very special place: Johnny Coulon's Gym... Keep in Trim... Learn to Box. Few come anymore.
A small crowd paced the 67th Street pavement next to the entrance, flanked by the Universal Army Department Store and the Bravo Food Mart.
About 1 p.m., a black limousine cruised in with Ali and his retinue. Up the stairs they went. The worn wooden steps had felt the soles of many — Dempsey, Tunney, Lewis, Marciano — and now Ali.
At one time all the floors were used but now rusted padlocks block the way to all but the top floor door. And it only opened to those few who had clearance.
Ali, dressed in navy blue shirt and slacks, had to go through formalities with some well-to-do, highly influential people first. Somehow they had managed to get in with their kids and false handshakes and posed pictures needed to be taken. It was a very embarrassing moment.
While a handful of other boxers — some of them his sparring partners — worked out, Ali donned his white and black trunks, familiar white shoes and black gloves for an hour and a half of punching and skipping. No sparring was done that day.
The entire workout was geared around a clock which had a bell connected to it. Every five minutes it would ring and all the boxers would take a brief break.

Ali crunched the big bag for quite some time, pounding an indentation on one side as if it were an opponent's stomach. The bag's chain appeared ready to fall with each blow, for the plaster surrounding the connection was gouged out. It stood up to Ali's ammo, however.
Then it was on to the little speed bag, used for perfecting one's timing. Ali, bare-fisted now, made his target sing. He was a master at it. His steady smacking resembled the rat-a-tat popping he gave Joe Frazier's face last spring.
Finally, rope in hand, he stood before a mirror. He slashed through various routines with that same old footwork that had dazzled his opponents before his title was taken away.
Although the gym is located near enough to the lake to benefit from a cooling breeze, the room was plenty warm, a real sweat shop. The floor attested to this fact; its dusty wood surface was bloated with tiny perspiration pools.
During the breaks Ali would talk with his family, friends and outsiders. And, from time to time, he'd put on a brief act or mock fight with youngsters, black and white.
One could see that he still wasn't in top shape, especially in the stomach. Although everything else about him seemed the same, he had changed in those layoff years.
He said he came to Coulon's to escape the 2,000 that attended each of his workouts at Navy Pier. He admitted that he was tired of the constant flashing of camera bulbs, the demanding mob which wanted his best show every day, the crush for autographs and the souvenir seekers who ripped his clothes.
That was what the old Ali loved, constantly being in the spotlight.
And so he sought refuge in this building overlooking the elevated tracks and the ghetto; a place that has hosted the greatest fighters of the century.
He enjoyed the echo that crashed off the poster-laden walls and ceiling when his punches popped. He still had his audience, but it was a respectful one. There was no hassle here.
This was the different Ali, the new Ali.
Last Saturday his party moved its base of operations to Astorhall, a plush place just next door to the Astro Dome. Ali would have preferred Jimmy's place instead.
The black prince of his people is something to see, but his boxing days are numbered. A year from now his dancing may be over, his piston punches that produce such sweet sounds may be silenced and his gloves may find their way to some sports shrine.
I'm glad I had the chance to see this artist in action, live in both black and white and color, instead of just looking at his picture or poster in some old gymnasium a couple years from now.

Arlington Rises From Dead To Win

There's an old sports superstition that the third victory of a team in a three-game series is the hardest.

Lloyd Meyer, Arlington Heights' legion coach, would agree with that and add that the first two games weren't that easy either.
Nobody was on base, there were two outs in the top of the seventh and Park Ridge was leading the visitors 4-3 in a Ninth District clash at Maine South Tuesday. Arlington's hold over its hosts appeared to be over.
Then Steve Koch hit a grounder to short and it was booted. Chuck Fill, running for Koch, was driven home by a Jim Locascio's double down the left field line. Meyer had held Fill up rounding third but the outfielder had trouble picking up the ball, so he sent him home. There was a perfect throw to the plate but the catcher took his eye off the ball. Tie score!
This was a real boost to Arlington's morale. They then erupted for three runs in the top of the eighth to win the game, 7-4.
Dave Lundstedt opened the inning with a single, went to second on a sacrifice by Gabino Galindo and was joined on the bases by Russ Kirchhoff who walked. Chuck Dillon then came through with his second game-winning hit in two games — a sharp single to center. Following another out, Mike Wilbins cracked a two-run triple to right-center but was tagged out when he rounded third base.
Arlington played catch-up baseball the whole game. Down 2-0 heading into the second, Bob Leja singled in Lundstedt.
The score was tied in the fourth when Dillon walked with the bases loaded.
After Park Ridge mounted another rally, Mike Moffo replaced starter Jim Kopkins. Moffo, who was the winner, shut out the hosts 3 and 2/3 innings and Lundstedt blanked them in the eighth.
Bruce Frase brought his team to within one again in the fifth. After Koch had reached on an error, he doubled down the right field line.

SCRAMBLING BACK safely. Palatine baserunner Randy Jones manages to get back to second base ahead of a pickoff attempt to Wheeling's Ken Morales. Palatine came from behind for a big victory in the American Legion Ninth District fray.

Moffo was tested fully in the bottom of the seventh. After two outs, Don Gibe tripled to left-center field. However, the Arlington righty made the next batter ground out.
"I'm afraid of them," said Meyer afterwards. With (Larry) Gawaluck (the starter and loser), (Gordie) Frano and (Larry) Teschner for their pitchers they could win the (Ninth District) tournament.

"Hopkins deserved a better fate than what he had," Meyer continued. "There were two ground balls that took bad hops and a bloop double hurt him."
Meyer was exceptionally pleased with the work of Dillon, his center fielder. "He's doing the job for us," he added.

Split Decisions In Successive Days

Falcons Turn Tables On Hawks

Forest View hosted Maine South for Northwest Summer League games on consecutive days this week and the results were as different as day and night.
The Falcons crushed the Hawks on Tuesday, 7-4, to make up for a humbling 8-0 setback the day before.
Four batters had two hits each in the recent victory and Craig Stiles went the distance for the pitching win.
The impetus for victory might have come in the first inning when the locals mounded a mini rally. After two were out, Dale Schoenbeck walked and was doubled home by Tom Mueller.
The Falcons scored a pair of runs in each of the next two innings. Gregg Fink singled in the second run and the third came home with a strange assist from Fink. He hypnotized the pitcher to try and tag him off first base and Ed Katzman, who had reached on a fielder's choice, walked home from third before Fink was put out.
Randy Jerspers singled home the first run in the third inning and, two outs later, Bob Bergadon knocked in another.
Maine South came within one, 5-4, before the Falcons tallied two more in the sixth. After two outs, Stiles singled and scored on a double by Schoenbeck. An error brought in run No. 7.
Stiles walked six and had a like number strikeouts. Fink (2-for-4), Stiles (2-for-4), Schoenbeck (2-for-3) and Bergadon (2-for-3) and paced the hitting attack.

There was hardly any offensive punch in the Monday game, however. The scattered hits were registered by Rich Lisinski, Millner and Sobieski, the losing pitcher.
Sobieski coasted along until the sixth inning when the Hawks tagged him for five runs. They knocked in three more in the seventh before Jack Lloyd's relief work stopped the rally.

Of the 10 hits the visitors collected, there were three homers, three triples and two doubles.
Sobieski was charged with seven earned runs, five walks and four strikeouts. Lloyd walked one.

Stewart 3-Hits Arlington Elk Grove Gets 12th Win

Jeff Stewart didn't bring his strikeout pitch to the ball park Tuesday, but he certainly had his control. He went out and threw a three-hitter at visiting Arlington as Elk Grove won its 12th game overall, 6-1.
Two of the Cardinals' hits figured in their lone tally of the contest as Dan Cunningham singled after one out, Wayne Geyer walked and Rich Kolari chased one home with a single to left-center.

By then, however, Elk Grove was also on the scoreboard via a single by Bob Price and Tony Tringali, a hit batsman and a passed ball for a 1-1 deadlock.
The Grenadiers broke the pitcher's duel open in the fourth when Tom DeWitt reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and waited for John Romano to coax a pass from Arlington starter and loser Ed Carpenter.
Tony Tringali responded with a two-run triple and scored moments later when Steve Schollen ripped a single to right. A two-run sixth put icing on the cake as Bob Chen singled, Tringali walked and Scott Pruitt cracked a double.

Literate Athletes
Scott Day and Bob Leja were among 50 Northeast Missouri State College athletes who received spring sports letters.
These two talented freshman baseball players starred in the Herald area, Day at Wheeling and Leja at Arlington.
Letter Winners Named
When Buffalo Braves' general manager Eddie Donovan (who helped build the New York Knicks into a championship team) signed No. 2 draft choice Fred Hilton, the 6-2 guard from Grambling asked for a professional rules book.
"The only other athlete I ever signed who did this was Willis Reed," said Donovan. (Reed was also from Grambling where, apparently, athletes are also taught to read, unlike some other institutions of higher learning.)
Dislikes 'Change'
Harry Hooper, who played outfield for the Boston Red Sox and White Sox beginning in 1909, will be inducted into the Hall of Fame this August. He is 84. Asked about the modern game, Hooper said he still doesn't like night baseball: "They're trying to change the game all the time. Wish they'd leave it alone."

Waukegan Has 2 New Winners

There were two new feature winners at the Waukegan Speedway Saturday night as defending champion Ray Young of Dolton won a close 30-lap main and Mrs. Cheryl Arndt of Milwaukee won her first hobby feature ever.

Young, who won the late model crown at Waukegan in 1969 and 1970, got his first win of the year at Waukegan as he won the trophy dash and then took the feature lead in the fourth lap. For the final 20 laps Bob May of Gurnee, the current point leader, pounded at Young's rear bumper trying for the lead, but Young held out for the win.

In the final lap May hit Young hard enough to push a protective bar into Young's rear tire and smoke billowed from Young's car in the final half lap. Waukegan's Jim Cossman was right behind Young and May just waiting for either to slip.

The race was stopped in the fifth lap after early leader Dave Stirsman of Highland Park crashed nearly head-on into the homestretch wall. Tempers were hot as Stirsman figured Gary Zobel of Mundelein had intentionally run him in the wall.

In the 100 lap race a week previous, these two had collided with Zobel seriously damaging his car. Several other incidents between these two drivers prompted officials to issue warnings to each driver.

There were two serious appearing accidents as the rain clouds hovered over the Speedway. In the first late model heat race Roy Acuff of Chicago jumped over the rear tire of Tom Credit of Melrose Park. Acuff's car became airborne while Credit's car spun. The front bumper of Acuff's car came through the driver's window and door knocking Credit's seat loose. There were no injuries.

In the first hobby stock heat race, Rip Tucker of Park City was rushed to St. Therese Hospital with a painfully sprained ankle and leg cuts as his left leg was trapped between sheet metal and the clutch when the driver's door was ripped off. Tucker later returned to the track on crutches.

Two other cars were involved with Floyd Burdick of Racine being momentarily knocked out.

The hobby feature experienced several delays, but when it was all over Cheryl Arndt scored a narrow win over Edwards of Zion. Bob Klemm of Gurnee finished third in the race.

Al Gutche of Bristol won the third late model heat race and finished fourth in the 30 lap feature. Holiday feature winners Tom Jones of Northbrook and Carl Major of Chicago finished fifth and sixth in Saturday's main event respectively.

VW Team Tops Bainbridge, Pads First-Place Margin

After a layoff last Friday, Des Plaines Volkswagen came back to defeat Bainbridge to pick up 7 1/3 points and maintain its hold on first place in the Mount Prospect Country Club Friday Night League.

Leading the No. 1 team was Bert Johanson who shot a 38 gross and a 31 net on the par 36 back nine to pick up three points. Johanson birdied No. 14. Bob Bracken, who had low net honors with a par 35 on the front side, birdied both No. 4 and 8. Don Campbell had a one-underpar scores on No. 5 and 7. Chuck Lynch was the low gross champ among the regulars with a 36 over the par 36 back side.

Don Odbert had both low gross and low net honors with his 43-36 on the front.

25-Mile Race At Santa Fe

Santa Fe Speedway defending champion and present point leader Dick Nelson of 1139 N. Lamon in Chicago goes after his fifth feature win this Saturday night, July 17, as the southwest side clay oval hosts the "Santa Fe 50," a 25-mile late model main event on the half-mile clay surface.

More than 30 of Chicagoland's top clay oval chauffeurs will try to halt Nelson's bid for his third half-mile-show triumph in three races.

Santa Fe Speedway also will present a stock car program on Sunday night, July 18, spotlighting 25-lappers for late models and sportsman on the quarter-mile clay oval.

The Saturday program will start at 8:30 p.m.; the Sunday night races will begin at 8 p.m. Time trials precede both programs by one hour. Crowd-pleasing "spectator races," featuring speedway fans becoming "instant" drivers using off-the-street autos, will be held both Saturday and Sunday night. Again, between 25 and 30 spectator racers will compete for trophies in this bizarre Santa Fe Speedway exclusive.

Nelson, piloting a 1971 Chevelle, is seeking his sixth speedway title. He has competed at Santa Fe Speedway for approximately 15 years, a record of longevity matched only by late model pilots Clem Lewandowski of Joliet, Don Waldvogel from Lockport, and Bill Van Allen of Waukegan, Wis.

Muhammad Ali — Black, Proud, Princely And Pretty

Memories Of Past Champions Are Ever Present

His Rocketing Right Explodes

Ali Finds Hideaway At Coulon's

"The Champ" was in Chicago the last few weeks toning his muscles for the first fight since he lost his heavyweight title.

Muhammad Ali, still No. 1 to many boxing fans, escaped from his first training site — Navy Pier — after the crowds disrupted his workouts. He moved to Johnny Coulon's Gym, a secluded spot on the south side of Chicago.

It was here that he tried to whip his 29-year-old body into shape for the upcoming meeting with his former sparring partner, Jimmy Ellis, in Houston.

All dances and stings less; he now prefers to use more of the flat-footed approach and slug-it-out tactics.

His style is different, his character has changed and his image is different. Still, he can ignite a crowd by just entering a room.

Women's Lib? Not For The Lutheran Church Leaders

by REV. LESTER KINSOLVING
Special to Padlock Publications

Milwaukee — Women have been denied the right to ordination in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in a resolution reminding them of Bible admonitions to "keep silent in church" since "Adam was formed first, then Eve... who became a transgressor."

The 3,000,000-member denomination's biennial national convention here, voted 674 to 194 for the resolution that "the word of God does not permit women to hold the pastoral office or serve in any capacity involving the distinctive functions of this office."

Delegate Cyril Wismar of Marblehead, Mass., told the convention, "I thought the Lord said he would protect the church against the gates of Hell, not against women." Other delegates questioned what would happen to Sunday Schools if the women kept silent.

But the Rev. Karl Barth of Milwaukee seemed to express the majority sentiment in affirming, "We are going to have to decide whether or not we will uphold the authority of scripture."

THE ACTION was taken despite the protest of a 40-member Lutheran Women's Caucus which held a press conference and distributed a publication entitled "Adam's Rib."

"We have been told to keep quiet for years and the convention committees are stacked against us," said Milwaukee Atty. Mary Buss who chaired the press conference with four other caucus members — one of whom was unidentifiable since she was enclosed entirely in a bag entitled, "Bad Sack."

The Rev. Ronald Redder of Cincinnati distributed a satirical pamphlet contending that "Eve was really taken from Adam's foot rather than his rib," and "when Eve offered the fruit to Adam, he really said: 'No thanks, I just had lunch'."

The convention also passed a resolution rejecting published statements accusing the denomination's president, the Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, of "managing news, thought control, suppression of free speech, and an unconscionable repression of those who disagree with him..."

The resolution deplored as "resulting embarrassment of the Synod," that "journals and news letters originating in our church have permitted the secular press and the religious press to publicize their criticisms."

PRESIDENT PREUS' current investigation of allegedly heretical teachings at Concordia Theological Seminary in St. Louis, drew a standing room only crowd to an open hearing. The Rev. Richard Koenig of Amherst, Mass., testified that his congregation has 50 PhDs. "Never in their academic careers have they heard of anything like this investigation which is beyond the bounds of academic history. They are appalled by Preus' action," said Rev. Koenig.

But Martin Kirsch of Yorktown, Iowa replied: "For 79 years my simple child-like faith has been resting on God's infallible word," and he compared President Preus to an Old Testament prophet. And Mark Junge of Rochelle, Ill., testified emphatically, "I have been waiting 20 years for this investigation. When you have a fire you let the firemen put it out quick. You teach what you are told to teach! There's no such thing as academic freedom!"

'Friendly Town' Program Is Seeking Host Families

Thank you for your cooperation in publicizing the Friendly Town program. Your articles throughout the years have motivated many area families to offer a two week vacation to dozens of inner city children. And this is what Friendly Town is all about — giving a less fortunate child a summer vacation.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

The Friendly Town program is no attempt to integrate the suburbs. It is no attempt to teach middle class morals and manners to ghetto children. But the Friendly Town program is sharing your home and your family with a child from Chicago's crowded neighborhoods. The Friendly Town program gives these children something that each of us looks forward to — a vacation.

Because some suburban families care, some of these ghetto children will be able to escape from the oppressive heat of crowded buildings for 2 weeks. They won't have to stay in hot apartments all day while their mothers work — forbidden to play outdoors because the streets are not safe. They won't be forced to watch television all day because in many crowded areas, there is literally "nothing else to do."

The Friendly Town program asks nothing spectacular from host families. It only asks you to invite a child to share your everyday summer living with your family. What is so routine to all of us — the evening barbecues, the city or home pools, bicycle riding, park district craft programs, air conditioners, ice cream on a hot evening, volley ball games in the yard, swimming lessons — may well be "firsts" in the lives of these children.

There is no need to plan a 2 week program of entertainment. Your own children and their normal activities will keep your guest thoroughly occupied. And park districts in the area have been very gracious about accepting Friendly Town children into their summer programs.

The first session of the Friendly Town program in the northwest area begins this Sunday, July 11. But there are still 30 children registered through Faith Community Church on Chicago's west side who are hoping to be placed for the second session beginning Sunday, July 25.

Friendly Town is never a one way street. You cannot give without also receiving. Friendly Town can be a way of putting into practice some of the theories on sharing and equality that are being preached to our children.

Anyone interested in helping a less fortunate child may call me, 250-1188 or Mary Ann Reiter, 392-2654. Either of us would be happy to arrange a Friendly Town sharing experience for a suburban family. Right now my own children are eagerly anticipating and planning for our Friendly Town guests who will visit later this summer.

Glasses Stolen, Too

Somewhere in the Elk Grove area, there is a boy riding a $150 bicycle. He has it because he stole it (locked) from the store where my son had just parked it. Wouldn't you think that his parents would wonder where he suddenly acquired this bike?

I wish they would, because, in the meantime, my son is having difficulty in getting to and from summer school and his job. He is also having difficulty with his sight, for you see, the boy stole his glasses when he stole the bike.

Readers Back Center Fund

Following are reader comments excerpted from letters to the editor in response to the Herald's emergency fund appeal in behalf of The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center:

"The Herald took on a tremendous responsibility when it decided to help save The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center. It did a beautiful job in informing the public of the Center's past and present services and needs to the community. I congratulate the Herald for doing its public service as a newspaper is supposed to do." — Mrs. Joseph Rauschenberger, Mount Prospect.

"We're glad to have the opportunity to help The Salvation Army continue its Community Counseling Center. Since both of us work in community service organizations — the local school district and police department — we are cognizant of the great need for the services provided by the Center. We are looking forward to the day when they are able to open their proposed Schaumburg Township branch. Good luck in your campaign — we hope you reach your goal." — Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Scholler, Schaumburg.

"Wish we could give $50,000. No organization would use it more efficiently or honestly than The Salvation Army. Prayers and friends be with you! Thank you, Herald, for your part." — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Zietlow, Palatine.

"My I congratulate you for supporting this excellent community center. Your encouragement of community endeavors illustrates the need and power of a 'local' newspaper. Keep up the good work!" — Rev. Thomas Fielding, St. Colette Catholic Church, Rolling Meadows.

"Although I personally have had no experience with this family service agency, I can definitely see the need for this type of service in the Northwest suburban area." — Mrs. Michael A. Rovella, Palatine.

"The Salvation Army has always been dear to us and one of our MUST contributions." — Mrs. Leonard S. Harmer, Arlington Heights.

"Please accept our small contribution to help save the Center. Thank God for

Oh Nothing—Just Looking Around Laments Ban Of Mini-Bike

I felt very sad upon reading that the kids will no longer be able to ride their mini-bikes on that empty farm land. It is not such a personal matter with me, no one in our family owns such a bike.

I had watched the kids riding many times and I felt happy for them and thinking "Gee! that must be fun." For the life of me, I can't remember any overwhelming noise or dust. However, knowing only too well the narrow-mindedness of most people in our suburbs, I guessed that the fun could not last long. Have they ever been young themselves? One wonders.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

I do remember vividly some real noise and dirt. That was during World War II when some bombs were dropped on our heads. There would have been a real reason at that time to call the police or sign petitions. That WAS real trouble.

The people who are forever calling the police on small infractions make me sick. There must be a hell for them, or possibly they are creating their own.

Don't use the gimmick of "safety." Everything is dangerous including laying in bed, taking a bath, etc. . . . If that is the excuse, then why not stop all cars on the highways . . . and the traffic noises are pretty annoying too, infinitely more so than the bikes.

So much blood was spilled in the name of freedom and liberty, and now we can't think of enough rules, ordinances and regulations to ensnare ourselves.

Reliefers Unwelcome

As if there weren't already enough problems in the forest preserves, now along comes yet another. That is the suggestion to take reliefers and put them to work in the preserves as part of their working off the welfare payments.

I don't want to take my family to the preserves and have them subjected to lord-knows-what-kind of people imported from the welfare dole! We already have pot-smokers, sex fiends and long-hair hippies roaming at will through the preserves and creating havoc with law enforcement controls. What will we invite with this latest ploy?

If the welfare rollers are able to work in the preserves, they should be able to work in plants. Why aren't they doing honest work instead of living off the public dole?

I am tired of having my taxes used to subsidize the shiftless and am outraged at the prospect of having this ilk infiltrate the forest preserves. When will the public call a stop to all this boondoggle??

Youths Employed

May I express the appreciation of the many young people in Elk Grove Township who are working because of the excellent press coverage the youth employment service has received.

The personal interest of Wandalyne Rice and Tom Jachimiec has been gratifying.

Many young people in the township filled out the blank that was published. Many people with jobs to be done responded to the articles.

Wrong People Are Alienated

As president of the District 59 Parents' Arts Council, I work with officers of the parent organizations from nearly all District 59 schools. These same officers are the core of the group that, in each school, has long supported the school board and the administration. These are the people who most certainly did support the recent referendum. They work very hard for their schools, whether to conduct a Great Books program, be a picture lady, help on a field trip, volunteer to work in the school library, teach recorder classes, etc. In each school it is the same group of people who, over and over again, volunteer to help wherever they can.

Now we all agree that the district is in a financial crisis, and the parent organization of each school would surely be ready to help out even more than they have in the past. But the recent decision of the school board to close all schools to after school activities really shuts off the line of communication between parents and the school, and tells the PTA or PTO, as the case may be, that their help is not wanted! The school board has alienated the one group that has repeatedly proved that they do care about the schools and their problems, and above all about the education of their children.

The parent-teacher organization at each school is such an important part of the school's activities that, at the very least, these groups should be given the option to decide whether they are willing to pay janitorial fees in order to use the schools. Unless the school board reconsiders this decision, there will be no effective parent teacher organizations at many of our schools, and this will be a further step backward for District 59.

Sandra Qureshi, President
Dist. 59 Parents' Arts Council
Elk Grove

Gee, Don't You Know Better?

Golly, I sure go along with the Herald Editorial of July 9th, "Birch Float Ban Was Ill-Advised."

Someone should get a protest group organized. After all, next year, somebody may want to enter the Fourth of July Parade with a float depicting dead American soldiers, blown apart, lying in a pool of blood. Personally, I think that would be a real keen realistic type float. As your editorial states, " . . . that a Fourth of July Parade . . . should include and encourage everyone to exercise their basic right to demonstrate love of country — and what it stands for — in a personal, individual manner."

You sure tell it like it is in your editorial — and I'm for telling it like it is. Let's not have so much mammy-pammy idealistic KID stuff next year in the Fourth of July Parade. Everybody, just everybody, knows that celebrating our country's Independence Day with non-controversial marching bands, non-political floats and with cars draped inately with red, white and blue — is really trike.

That dumb Sam McGoun didn't have any respect or understanding of what kids, everybody's kids, should be able to see at a July Fourth Parade when he banned the Birch Society float. I'll bet he's the kind of man that wouldn't even let his kid go see a nudie movie.

I don't know what this country is coming to when selfish jerks like him are allowed to make stupid judgements about Fourth of July Parades and distress, " . . . all persons who respect and understand what this country and the Fourth of July stand for."

Don't be know about Freedom?

Game Reports Rapped

I am 13 years old and interested in sports, particularly in baseball. Every day I look in the Herald for the Mount Prospect Little League report, only to find Waycinden, Wheeling and others, some of which I have never heard of.

Even when these reports do come in, they are late, sometimes more than a week.

I'm sure that the majority of the people in Mount Prospect, especially the parents who have their boy(s) involved in Little League, would like to know what is going on in their town. After all, it is a Mount Prospect paper.

Jeff Bejcek

We Dropped The Ball

You really dropped the ball. Each day our family has anxiously awaited the paper to see what you had to say about the Greenbrier championship baseball game which was held Thursday, July 1st. Preceding the game you even had an article on the first page telling about the game and the parade to be held in connection with it.

This game was well attended by the residents of Greenbrier and the enthusiasm was high. There was an excellent turn-out for the parade and the picnic which followed the game.

We were told that your paper would cover the event — you did. You buried it completely. Today you finally ran the score of the game — eight days later. How's that for being current.

My boy was a participant in this game and the event will always be memorable to him. Unfortunately, the memories will not be supported by the printed word.

Bike Caution In Error

In a recent letter to the editor titled "Teach Bike Safety," Mrs. Sue Paulson advocated teaching children to ride bicycles on the left side of the road. Riding a bicycle on the left side of the road is contrary to the Rules of the Road governing bicycles in the State of Illinois, contrary to the safety policy of the League of American Wheelmen (a national bicycling organization), and contrary to the conclusion of the National Safety Council Report No. 169, September, 1969, that found riding on the left to be more hazardous than riding on the right.

I agree with Fred DeLong, League of American Wheelmen Safety Chairman, who wrote in the League of American Wheelmen Bulletin, December, 1969:

"The sight of a vehicle approaching head on at a very slight distance from his path is enough to strike terror into even an experienced rider, far worse for the more nervous and less experienced rider, who is likely to lose control more easily. It is widely known that an inexperienced rider tends to steer toward an object at which he is looking."

Also, consider a car traveling 40 mph and a bicycle traveling 15 mph. In the unfortunate case of a collision, if the car is approaching from the rear the impact speed would be 25 mph (40-15) which, although serious would be preferable to a head-on collision where the impact speed would be 55 mph.

I agree with Mrs. Paulson on one point. Teach your children the safest way to ride their bikes! Be certain they can ride in a straight line before allowing them on the road. Be certain they know and use hand signals before allowing them on the road. Be certain they have a light and reflector before allowing them to ride at night. And be certain they know and understand the correct safety regulations governing bicycles.

Richard Dexheimer, President
Wheeling Wheelmen Bicycle Club

People Display Goodness

Over near Barrington, on a six acre apple orchard, you will find a low pressure, high quality school for handicapped children and a sheltered workshop for handicapped people over the age of 16. If you happen to be acquainted with it, you will know that the buildings are not architectural masterpieces although we do wish we could have some. There is no swimming pool, although in the summer camp, children get transported to neighboring pools thanks to the people who control the pools, and we aren't able to accept all the applicants that we have.

But we have managed through the help of a contractor and people who so generously support us to construct three cement block well lighted and heated buildings that have enabled us to increase the enrollment.

We do not think the staff of the school could be improved upon in quality or enthusiasm.

I happened to be acquainted with a member of the International Aerobatics Pilots Association. We explained our situation and suggested a benefit airshow. His answer was, "When?" Now let me tell you what has developed out of this little conversation.

A "Rilly Big Show" thanks to all these people and friends. The Aerobatic Pilots Association, who are going to fly upside down and sideways for you. And to our grumpy old friends in the Antique Pilots Association who know you will appreciate the effort spent to preserve and resurrect the airplanes of the past.

And to our experimental friends who have their own opinion of what an airplane should look and fly like and would like to know what you think about their ideas. Thanks also to the Clipped Wings, an association of former United Airlines Stewardesses, and the Crystal Lake Pilots Wives who are working at sales and publicity. The 99er's are also involved.

There are various individuals who are working very hard to help us — among them — Joe Carnes and Andy Maduza of Crystal Lake. We have received from many of the local banks and Savings and Loans (who provide advance ticket sale outlets) and the newspapers and radio stations all the support we could reasonably expect from them.

If it weren't for all these people, we wouldn't have our airshow to help someone with a problem.

So don't tell me "People Are No D—n Good."

At Palisades State Park

Civil War To Be Relived

Shades of Gettysburg and Shiloh, Lincoln and Douglas with artillery cavalry and infantry. The Civil War will come to life once again on July 31 and Aug. 1 at Mississippi Palisades State Park near Savannah.

"The Illinois Department of Conservation is inviting everyone to participate in a living memory of the Civil War as we hold the Second Annual General Grant Civil War Cantonment," said Henry N. Barkhausen, Director.

Last year eight reactivated Civil War units were in attendance for the Cantonment. This year the Department expects twice that number. Many more activities will also be included for this year's program.

"The units will set up their tents in company streets just as they did in the Civil War days," said Dean Campbell, supervisor of the interpretation-recreation section of the Division of Parks and Memorials. "Visitors will be invited to tour the streets and observe the regiments. There will be a blacksmith demonstration in the company street area. We are inviting all visitors to wear period dress costumes, although it is not necessary. There will be judges present and prizes are to be awarded on Sunday."

After the tour of the camp street there will be a quarter mile cavalry race between members of the 9th Illinois Cavalry and the Carroll County Mounted Police. There will be musket and cannon competition, a Gatling gun demonstration, massed company parades and retreat ceremony, and saber drills.

"ONE OF THE demonstrations that drew a lot of interest last year was the competition of muskets firing against a National Guard unit," Campbell said. "The accuracy of these musket shooters is astounding. They gave the National Guard, who were using modern rifles, a real run for the money."

In addition, the National Guard Unit will have an area set aside which will have displays of the new modern weapons in comparison to the weapons of the Civil War era.

Campbell also praised the accuracy of the Civil War cannons. "They shoot the balls at a 12-inch circle placed 100 yards away. It isn't uncommon for them to place seven of ten rounds in the circle," he said.

To lend a more authentic touch to the celebration, several new events are being planned. There will be Lincoln-Douglas debates, with professional actors reenacting the famous debates of 1858. A group named "The Noisy Minority" will tour the grounds in period dress singing folk songs of the Civil War era. There will also be a special attraction, the Camptown Revue. This will be a "Laugh In" type stage show, with the material all coming from the mid-1800s. And everyone should enjoy an old-fashioned greased pig contest with men from the various regiments participating.

On Saturday night, visitors will be entertained by a fireworks display and for those wishing to go, a moonlight steamboat ball on the Mississippi River.

"The kids haven't been forgotten," Campbell added. "For them there will be various types of races, and a pie eating contest."

CIVIL WAR CANNONS fired in competition proved remarkably accurate in the 1st General Grant Cantonment, held at the Mississippi Palisades State Park near Savannah. This year's event will be held July 31 to Aug. 1.

A GATLING GUN demonstration shows why the gun was one of the most feared weapons of the Civil War era. A demonstration of the device will be part of the two day festivities.

REALTORS INSTITUTE of Illinois sessions are slated for Nov. 28-Dec. 4 in Peoria. The series of three courses is sponsored by the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards. After successfully completing all three courses, a student is awarded the GRI designation (Graduate, Realtors Institute). Among the instructors will be Arthur Pipenhagen of Arlington Heights based Smith-Pipenhagen Inc., Realtors; and Harold J. Carlson, executive director of the Randhurst shopping center in Mount Prospect.

STRONG PERFORMANCE in May is keeping the Baird & Warner, Inc., sales division moving at a record-breaking pace, according to John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager. The diversified real estate firm chalked up 337 sales participations for the month, an increase of 23.4 per cent over 23 sales last year. Dollar volume was nearly 10 per cent higher, as the firm's 27 offices rang up $14,291,771 compared with $13,042,151 in May of 1970.

MEMBERS OF the Training Development Division of Union Oil recently met with Township High School District 211 officials to discuss implementation of a work/study program with Union 76. Elements of the fall program were clarified and approved by Union Oil officials who were represented by M. J. Siebenhausen, and by school officials represented by Don Howard, Vocational Coordinator for the district, who are jointly producing materials needed in the program. Thirteen students are expected to be placed in the program. They will be certified in Union Oil 76 Auto Care service and given program indoctrination on Aug. 27, prior to reporting to work for the "trainee dealers." On Aug. 19 officials from Union Oil and school officials will meet with participating Union dealers to discuss the program, and will meet the school coordinators.

GRAND OPENING was held recently at the Pavilion center, Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominium project in Buffalo Grove. The Pavilion features a swimming pool, whirlpools, sauna and other recreational equipment. Built by the Richard J. Brown firm, the development is located on Dundee Road between Rt. 83 and Arlington Heights Road.

APARTMENT COUNCIL of Metropolis-

Terrace Hosts Grand Opening

Grand opening activities are in progress at the Terrace apartments in Elk Grove Village. The week long celebration, including a champagne party, started June 10.

The Terrace, at Kennedy and Elk Grove Bvds., contains 30 two and three-story garden apartment buildings on more than 20 landscaped acres surrounded by single-family homes. There are 748 apartments in the complex.

Three model apartments were unveiled for the grand opening. They are furnished by Jean Lee.

Eight new buildings now being leased contain 144 convertible one-bedroom, 134 one, and 120 two-bedroom apartments ranging in rentals from $175 for the convertible one-bedroom apartments, to $245 for two-bedroom units. All apartments are air conditioned and feature gold shag carpeting, all-electric kitchens and drapery rods. Each apartment has a patio or terrace.

Two swimming pools as well as a children's wading pool are part of the Terrace's recreational complex. Shuffleboard courts, a community building that houses sauna baths for men and women, an equipped exercise room, card room, and hospitality room with an equipped kitchen are also featured.

Gas-fired outdoor barbecues along with park benches and picnic tables are also featured.

The Terrace is inaugurating its private courtesy bus system that will transport residents to and from the Northwestern Railroad station in Arlington Heights at peak morning and evening commuter hours, as well as to major nearby shopping centers during the day.

The management is by Baird & Warner, Inc.

EXCLUSIVE AGENT for the 32 acres of industrial land at the corner of Mount Prospect and Algonquin Roads in Des Plaines is Gottlieb/Beale & Co. The property is owned by Universal Oil Products Co.

GLADSTONE REALTY of Franklin Park and Elk Grove Village announced that it has named Fran Wollack and Associates as its advertising and public relations agency. The Gladstone firm has residential, commercial and industrial sales divisions. The company is developing the Medill Industrial Center in Franklin Park and an apartment complex in Lake Geneva, Wis.

SALES OF four new model homes at the Sheffield Park East project by Levitt and Sons reached $1.3 million in the first two opening days, reported Bob Craig, director of sales and marketing. This reflects 42 transactions. The development will include 700 units. It is located on Schaumburg Road east of Barrington Road.

REPRESENTATIVES OF American automobile and truck manufacturers, as well as major overseas passenger car makers, recently met in Chicago to draw for exhibit space in the 1972 Chicago Auto Show. The event will be held Feb. 26-March 5 next year in McCormick Place. Chicago Automobile Trade Association is the sponsor of the show.

GENERAL OFFICES AND STUDIOS of the new WYEN-FM station will be located in the O'Hare Lake Office Plaza, reported Dennis Buren, resident manager for the leasing agent Arthur Rubloff & Co. Edward Walters is president and general manager of the 50,000 watt station, slated to begin broadcasting late this summer. Its transmitting station will be located in Arlington Heights. The first four buildings of the office complex are completed, and the fifth building of the 60-acre office park is under construction at Devon Ave. and Tri-State Tollway, Des Plaines. Developer is Arthur J. Rogers.

Ease Sewer Regulations

William L. Blaser, director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), recently announced the easing of its policy concerning new sewer hookups in municipalities where the sewage treatment and sewer transport systems are inadequate.

He said the sales of anti-pollution bonds in June and the passage of legislation authorizing payments from these proceeds, makes the funds available to municipalities for such construction. Blaser said that as rapidly as the needed construction is completed, other building activity can resume in the those areas.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency had previously denied permits to "install and operate" sewer extensions in several communities in the Chicago Metropolitan area. This caused a slowdown in residential, industrial and commercial construction in those areas. The agency recently modified its operations to include the issuance of an "install only" permit, in an effort to shorten the construction lag in areas lacking adequate sewage treatment facilities. This would be issued only if the municipality had acquired a permit from the state agency to complete the necessary work and signed contracts for the project.

A permit to operate a sewer extension will be issued only when the additional treatment facilities are in operation and can handle the additional load, Blaser said.

The Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC) calling the EPA move a step in the right direction, recently assessed the effect of the recent sewer bans in Chicago area communities. Bob Faganel, vice president of the organization and chairman of its Sewer Emergency Task Force, said such a study was completed by Seymour Kroll & Associates. Faganel said the study shows a $1 billion loss in those communities affected by sewer bans. He urged home builders to cooperate with the EPA to resolve water treatment problems.

An amendment to the EPA House Bill 2457, recently passed by both the Illinois House of Representatives and the Senate, provides that at least 60 days' notice must be given by the state Pollution Control Board of any order affecting the use of public utilities. A hearing on its social and economic impact would be required.

The Home Builders Association of Illinois (HBAI) will conduct a seminar on Aug. 27 to acquaint builders with the sewer emergency task force work on both the state and local levels. The National Association of Home Builders also plans an Aug. 17 seminar in Washington to discuss the problem.

The first of several hearings on the new water standards for the State of Illinois was held last month in Evanston. Two builder spokesmen will present testimony before a later session slated for next fall: Bruce Blietz, president of HBAGC and Ralph Smykal, president of HBAI. The state Pollution Control Board will use the information presented in these hearings in its new standards.

In addition to Blietz and Faganel, HBAGC members working on the Sewer Emergency Committee include: Dave Comeau, Lou Ansel, Terry Hector, Fred Hillman, Smykal, Bob Widdicombe, Mayer Singerman, Al Riley and Jack Hoffman.

Scholarship Goes To Murray Smith

Murray S. Smith of 233 Trowbridge Rd., Elk Grove Village, has been awarded a scholarship under the Walgreen Employee Pharmacy Study Program.

Smith is a third year pharmacy student at Ferris State College in Big Rapids, Mich., and is scheduled to graduate in June 1974.

He works in a Walgreen Drug Store at 955 Grove Mall during summer vacations and school semester breaks as studies permit.

The Walgreen Study Program has been growing steadily since its inception 24 years ago, say company officials. They expect 120 employees to participate this year.

Gaffney Promoted To Field Manager

William H. Gaffney, of Bartlett, formerly assistant field sales manager, has been promoted to field sales manager — film and coating for Chemplex Co. Rolling Meadows.

Gaffney joined Chemplex in 1967 after having been a sales representative for DuPont. He was promoted in December, 1969 to assistant field sales manager.

An Alumnus of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, he holds a B.S. in international trade and marketing.

A House-Hunting Tool Saves Time

An increasing number of Realtors across the country are using a computer in their operations.

A Realtor in Michigan reported recently that a prospective purchaser called about a home advertised for sale. The house did not fit his needs, but, through the use of the computer, the Realtor was able to provide in about four minutes a list of homes which were suitable.

"The prospective purchaser was so satisfied and impressed that not only did he buy one of the homes from us, but he listed his former home for sale after receiving a market analysis from the computer," he added. "The house sold within a week."

A data bank of homes for sale is that operated by the Realtors Computer Service (RCS), a subsidiary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Currently real estate data on over $10 billion worth of property is recorded on the random access disks for instant retrieval anywhere there is a telephone, according to Ebby Halliday, Dallas, president of RCS which has subscribers in 566 cities in every state.

Any Realtor who subscribes to the service can, with the aid of a personal computer terminal, tap the resource of information. Armed with the computer terminal, about the size of a lady's hat box, a Realtor can retrieve real estate information over any standard telephone.

The information is presented by voice or print-out or on video screen, whichever the Realtor prefers, by Realtron Corp., which provides the computer memory bank and computer equipment in Detroit.

The Realtor can find houses in a city or suburban community, within a one-square mile or nine-square mile area, or even a school district. Features such as air conditioning, and family room can be fed into the computer.

The Realtron Computer also relates prices of comparable properties sold during the past year. This enables the Realtor to assist a seller who may be doubtful or misinformed in establishing a realistic price on a home to be sold.

The computer service provides similar data on vacant land, and commercial, industrial, farm, and ranch properties. The local board of Realtors controls all listings.

One of the most recent services provided to Realtors is the investment analysis service. Income property projections are developed by the computer.

Included in the investment analysis on a property are projections on market value, total loans, equity, net operating income, interest payment, depreciation, taxable income, gross spendable, income tax, annual net spendable, net equity income, net equity income rate, and adjusted cost basis.

The response then shows cumulative totals for taxable income, gross spendable, net spendable, and net equity, grouped for comparison.

The latest concept added by RCS/Realtron is the national listing exchange. This concept allows Realtors to exchange information on properties with a national market such as factories, businesses, farms, resorts and property which is investment oriented.

It is also possible for an employee to get a preview of the real estate values in the city into which he is being transferred. He is able to compare values in his home town with the values in his new job location.

Winters Honored At 3-Day Meeting

Richard G. Winters, of 222 N. Salem Ave., Arlington Heights, and David M. DeHart, of 418 Cardinal Ct., Mundelein, were honored recently at a three-day business meeting of top general agency representatives of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. which was held at the Lake of the Ozarks, Mo.

Both men are members of the Ivan M. McFadden General Agency, Arlington Heights, and of a select group who qualified to attend the convention on the basis of their outstanding sales and performance records during the past year.

Some 140 John Hancock representatives from 86 general agencies in the company's Great Lakes, Mid-East and Southeast divisions attended the meeting held at the Lodge of the Four Seasons.

Richard Winters has been associated with the John Hancock since March of 1969 and was the top producer for the McFadden Agency during 1970. He was recently promoted to agency supervisor. Winters is active in community affairs and is a director of the Arlington Heights United Fund.

David DeHart has been associated with the McFadden Agency since March of 1970 after nine years service in the Marine Corps. DeHart won the Rookie of the Year award for 1970 in the McFadden Agency. He is active in the Marine Corps Reserves and several community relations programs of the Marine Reserves such as Toys for Tots.

Census Surveys Finances

The second phase is underway in the Survey of Residential Finance being conducted by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, as part of the 1970 census.

In this phase, questionnaires have been mailed to lending institutions and individuals who have financed mortgages on residential properties. Earlier, homeowners and the owners of rental properties were surveyed — a scientifically designed sample of about 66,000 housing units across the entire Nation.

The 1970 Residential Finance Survey will update the statistics collected in the comparable surveys of 1960 and 1960. It will provide lending institutions with a comprehensive package of basic statistical data relating to the current financial status of the Nation's investment in residential properties. Since 1960 there has not only been a tremendous increase in outstanding mortgage debt, but changes have also occurred in the characteristics of that debt, the pattern of institutional participation, and — to a limited extent — the mode of operations.

One type of information of interest to lending institutions, which the survey will provide, is the volume of inter-regional flow of funds.

Among the new items covered in the 1970 survey is the purpose of first mortgages which are not used for buying or building properties. This will provide information on the extent of the use of mortgages for such reasons as renewal or extension of loans, securing lower interest rates, obtaining funds for additions and repair to the property, for investment in other real estate, or for education or medical expenses. The survey will also provide statistical information on the extent of participation by holders of the first mortgages in the property income and the frequency in the use of variable interest rates in mortgage transactions.

Other subjects included in the survey are: government insurance status, outstanding debt, term of first mortgage, interest rate on first mortgage and method of payment, current status of payments and extent of junior mortgage liens.

From the survey data, a number of ratios will be developed. Among these are purchase price in relation to income, annual housing costs as a percentage of income, and outstanding mortgage debt as a percentage of the market value.

Results of the survey will be published in the bureau's official report on the 1970 Census of Population and Housing. Information will be tabulated for the nation and for four major census regions: Northwest, South, West and North Central; as well as for metropolitan areas and the central cities and suburban rings within the metropolitan areas.

Residential Finance Survey information is used by economists and financial analysts, in the guidance of those home and apartment builders, officials in financial institutions and certain investors.

Information collected in this survey will receive the same confidential treatment required by law in all Census Bureau operations.

Among the Illinois counties being surveyed include Cook, DuPage, Will, McHenry and Lake.

Appraisers Gain New Designation

The new Senior Realty Appraiser designation of the International Society of Real Estate Appraisers was awarded to two local residents, Richard C. Sorenson and Albert L. Gundelach. The announcement was made by the society's board of governors.

Sorenson is chief appraiser, The First National Bank of Chicago. He is a resident of Elk Grove Village.

Sorenson has 13 years experience in appraising residential, commercial, industrial property and eminent domain. He received a B.S. degree from the University of Wisconsin and has completed appraisal courses sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and holds its MAI designation. Sorenson is a member of the Society's Chicago Chapter.

Gundelach is partner of Marktech, Gundelach & Associates, in Arlington Heights. He is a resident of Des Plaines.

Gundelach has 16 years experience in appraising residential property. He has completed appraisal courses sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and also holds its MAI designation. He is qualified as an expert witness in the Circuit Court of Cook County. Gundelach is past president of the Society's Chicago Chapter and is also a member of the Chicago Real Estate Board and the American Right of Way Association.

Both men completed educational courses in the appraisal of income-producing properties, (apartments, office building, etc.) They have passed written examinations on appraisal subjects and have demonstrated knowledge in the appraisal of various types of real estate.

The International Society of Real Estate Appraisers is the largest independent association of professional real estate appraisers and analysts in North America. The organization has 18,000 members in 182 chapters in the United States and Canada; is dedicated to the education and training of real estate appraisers and analysts and to the establishing of high standards of professional practice and conduct.

Use Affects Land Demand

Intensity of the strong demand for land in the path of urban growth will continue to vary widely between different types of intended use, predicted Bill N. Brown, Albuquerque, N. M., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB).

His comments were based on the latest study of the real estate market by the NAREB Department of Research, and he observed that "prices will be far more closely aligned with the expected time lag between purchase and development, or purchase and anticipated sale."

"For example, if the current trends persist during the second half of the year, as appear likely, sales of land for residential subdivision will be brisk while those for industrial development will by comparison lack luster."

"Ownership of unproductive land, particularly in metropolitan areas, has become more and more costly," he said. "Real estate taxes have risen steadily. Interest rates are high, and whether they are paid on a mortgage loan or are equated with the return on an alternate investment, their price is the same."

"In consequence, land sales today are more frequently for immediate or near-term use and less often for long-term speculative holding," Brown said.

Turning to specific findings of the NAREB study, Brown said expectation that a brisk sales market for single-family homes will continue has increased the demand for land suitable for residential subdivision. This demand was reported to be greater than last year in 55 per cent of the country, is relatively unchanged in 29 per cent, and is less in 16 per cent.

"In contrast, with plans for plant expansion weak, demand for land for industrial expansion or development lacks vigor," Brown said. A majority of reports (54 per cent) indicates that demand is relatively unchanged from last year, and the remainder are equally divided between areas for which space for industrial use has increased and for which it has declined.

Investor interest in sites for commercial construction has increased somewhat, the NAREB study found. Although demand is relatively unchanged in 54 per cent of the country, it is greater than last year in 31 per cent, compared to 15 per cent in which it has declined.

The NAREB president noted that, as in the past, there is vigorous demand for sites for recreational use. "Both developers and individuals are interested in purchase of this type of property. Demand has continued to rise and currently is reported to be greater than last year in 50 per cent of the country and stable in 36 per cent. It has lessened in 14 per cent."

Data from the study show that the price of land for non-agricultural use has, on average, risen steadily, but Brown noted, "There are, as there were last year, far more reports of stability than there were two years ago."

"Properties are often held in strong ownership, and the inclination to sell is weak. A major exception is the property that was acquired as a speculative holding for future urban growth," he said.

He said that, although price increases are more frequent than price reductions, "the overall trend has changed dramatically over the past two years. As observed earlier, costs of holding have risen, and real estate taxes in particular are said to be restricting land speculation in many urban areas. Prices of land acquired in expectation of future urban growth are about the same as they were last year in 51 per cent of the country, higher in 33 per cent, and lower in 16 per cent."

This is a change from two years ago when an upward trend was characteristic of a majority (53 per cent of the areas), and a decline was confined to 8 per cent.

The NAREB study indicated that, with the sustained interest in recreational properties, prices, on the average, have continued to rise. Reported to be higher in a majority of areas (52 per cent), they are about the same as last year in 42 per cent and are lower in only 6 per cent.

"Confident that the boom in home construction will continue, purchasers of land for residential subdivision are paying more for appropriate property than they were last year, although the upward price movement is not as widespread as it was in 1969. While prices are currently higher than last year in 50 per cent of the areas, a similar trend was reported for 68 per cent of the country two years ago," Brown reported.

With the lack of growth in demand for industrial land, prices stabilized in many areas (60 per cent). Where change has occurred, an increase (31 per cent) is more frequent than a decline (9 per cent).

Sites for commercial construction are priced about the same as last year in a majority of areas (52 per cent). They are up in 39 per cent and down in 9 per cent.

Brown said transactions of land destined for residential subdivision exceed by far the level of a year ago. They are higher in 51 per cent of the nation.

"Activity in the market of properties for recreational use is also greater than it was last year. Stable in 46 per cent of the areas, it is up in 38 per cent, compared to 16 per cent in which it is lower."

"The volume of transfers of sites for commercial properties and land purchased as speculative holding for future urban growth is relatively unchanged from last year," Brown said, and he reported also that, on the average, market activity involving land suitable for industrial expansion or development has declined somewhat."

Bredchoff Honored For Leadership

Lambert W. Bredchoff, 2280 Longacres Ln., Palatine, was honored by Chicago Heart Association for his leadership as 1971 Heart Fund business division chairman.

He and 12 other top campaign leaders received meritorious service awards at a special luncheon July 1 hosted by Arthur Rubloff. The afternoon was highlighted by the announcement that this year's campaign was the most successful in history, netting $1,865,112 in Cook, Lake and DuPage Counties. The amount exceeded the $1.7 million goal by 10 per cent and surpassed last year's total by $222,800.

Bredchoff is senior vice president of Harris Trust and Savings Bank.

Contributions raised through the Heart Fund Drive support heart disease detection programs in schools and industry, stroke rehabilitation programs in 15 area hospitals, 46 research projects, home care services, medical seminars and heart disease prevention programs for the public.

Service Station

Recently Opened

A new Standard Oil service station, offering complete automobile service 18 hours a day, has opened to serve the Buffalo Grove-Long Grove area.

Twin Grove Standard, on the corner of Rte. 83 and Buffalo Grove Road, opened for business July 1, according to Gene Gaines, a part owner in the new business venture. Gaines lives at 514 Arbor Gate Ln. in Buffalo Grove.

Gaines, who runs the business with David Fishman and Fred Herrick, recently completed a three-week service station management course conducted by Standard Oil.

The station is open from 6 a.m. to midnight daily.

Newest Hyatt Hotel Open

Brandt Named New Service Manager

Walter H. Mossner, manager for the Porsche Audi Division of Volkswagen North Central Distributor, Inc., 287 Northfield Road, Northfield, has announced the appointment of Peter J. Brandt as district service manager.

Brandt, a native of Bergen, Germany, was previously employed at Volkswagen North Central Distributor, Deerfield, as a quality control specialist and a technical instructor in the service department. Prior to this, he had seven years experience in Volkswagen dealerships.

Brandt, his wife and son live in Arlington Heights.

The grand opening of the Regency Hyatt House in Rosemont was held in June. The hotel opened its doors to the public April 1.

The $30 million hotel complex has 750 guest rooms. It occupies 17 acres just south of the Kennedy Expressway on River Road.

Rising 10 stories above the main level, the lobby resembles a Roman court or atrium. Ivy plants, silk oak trees and flowers are featured at the lobby floor, the balconies and walkways.

The facility was designed by John Portman & Associates of Atlanta, Ga., and is derivative of Portman's Regency Hyatt House-Atlanta. Portman is also responsible for Atlanta's downtown Peachtree Center. His Regency Hyatt House-San Francisco will open in 1973.

The Regency Hyatt House - O'Hare is the first to be completed of the six new Hyatt properties presently under construction in the U.S. The nine-year-old Hyatt Corp. will have 30 hotels and 43 lodges by 1973 for a total of 15,000 rooms.

The Regency Hyatt House - O'Hare is a square structure with cylindrical glass towers at each corner. On the inside an air-conditioned atrium is 160 feet long, 160 feet wide and rises 120 feet. It is topped by a revolving lounge, the Polaris.

The atrium features thousands of live plants and trees. They are under the constant supervision of a team of six gardeners.

Rooms on the sides of the square look down from terraces with a view of the lobby, the registration area, the open dining in the court and the main level.

The elevators are glass cages traveling upward from the center of the court to open walkways. These, rather than the conventional closed corridors, provide direct access to the guest rooms.

The hotel features three restaurants: the Garden Terrace, an inside sidewalk cafe in the atrium; Hugo's, a gourmet dining room; and the Polaris, for lunch and cocktails. A domed year-round swimming pool, a night club (The Blue Max) and a health club are also available.

Ballroom capacity is 1,200 for dining and 1,500 for business meetings. An exhibition hall can showcase 200 booths. Free parking facilities will accommodate 1,000 automobiles.

There are 35 meeting rooms named and decorated for major airlines, acknowledging the hotel's proximity to O'Hare airport.

Mini-buses transport persons arriving at O'Hare to the Regency. These minibuses include a portable registration desk in the form of a Regency hostess. She registers all who have made reservations, assigning them rooms and passing out keys while in transit.

The Pritzker family of Chicago heads the Hyatt Corp. Jay Pritzker is chairman; Donald Pritzker is president and chief executive officer; and another ex-Chicagoan, H. M. Friend, is executive vice-president and managing director.

Hyatt is placing its major emphasis on group business, according to Pat Foley, regional vice-president and the man directly in charge of Regency Hyatt House at O'Hare. He asserts that the major emphasis of the hotel is to cater to the needs of the businessman and his meetings, estimating that as much as "70 per cent or more of our business will be in that category."

The use of space by the Portman architecture fits that plan, according to Foley. Board and other corporate meetings, for example, can be held in a board meeting room outfitted with built-in tables, executive chairs and an adjacent private dining room. Most meeting rooms have been placed on the ground floor.

The hotel already has lined up advance bookings of more than $9 million.

Headquarters Is Near Completion

ARTIST'S DRAWING SHOWS how new Nelson-Westerberg headquarters office and warehouse at 1201 Arthur Ave., Elk Grove Village, will look when construction is completed this August. New facility, to cost $460,000, will provide 4,250 square feet of office space, 16,000 square feet of storage area. The new facility was designed by Thelander, Nelson & Associates, Chicago, and is being built by J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., Des Plaines.

Construction of a new $460,000 domestic and international headquarters for Nelson-Westerberg, Inc., an agent of Atlas Van Lines, Inc., is nearing completion in Elk Grove Village. It is located on a three-acre site at 1201 Arthur Ave.

Situated in Centex Industrial Park, the new Nelson-Westerberg facility will provide 16,000 square feet of warehouse space for the containerized storage of household goods in stacks three containers high under the 30-foot roof, plus an additional 4,250 square feet of office space. All of the company's current Chicago, Park Ridge and Elk Grove Village offices will be consolidated in this facility.

When completed in August of this year, the new facility also will provide 100,000 square feet of asphalt-paved parking space for Nelson-Westerberg's current fleet of 54 vehicles. A 55-foot truck scale having a 125,000 pound capacity will be included, as will tanks and pumps for up to 12,000 gallons of diesel fuel and gasoline. Complete facilities for drivers, including showers, lockers, rooms and rest areas also will be provided.

The warehouse will provide a hydraulic "levelator" dock enabling automobiles to be loaded onto vans at its loading and unloading area. Three loading docks, enabling moving vans to be loaded from either an end or a side, will be included, as will a security fence for the entire loading area. A ground-level drive-in door will afford entrance to the building, which also will be served by a North Western Railway siding.

Designed by the Chicago architectural firm of Thelander, Nelson & Associates, the new facility is being built by J. Emil Anderson & Sons, Inc., Des Plaines.

MODULES STACKED atop one another are used in modern high rise buildings. This and other applications will be discussed at the Industrialized Building Exposition and Conference to be held this fall in Kentucky.

Koretke Appointed New Vice President

William F. Koretke, an Elk Grove Village resident, has been appointed vice president of Oz Food Corp., a Chicago based food manufacturer. The announcement was made by Dr. John A. Maselli, president of the corporation.

Koretke, 35, joined Oz Foods in January, 1971, as manager of operations. Previously, he had been with the Glidden-Durkee Division of SCM Corporation.

He was graduated from Loyola University, Chicago, and attended the University of Illinois and Illinois Institute of Technology. He is a member of the Elk Grove Village Housing Commission.

Oz Food Corporation produces and packages peanut butter for the industrial and consumer markets. Recently, the company introduced powdered peanut butter for use in the confectionery, bakery, and snack food industries.

Doucette Elected To Junior Staff

Norman E. Doucette, 510 Parkside Circle, Streamwood, project coordinator in the production control department of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake, has been elected to the junior staff of the company.

The junior staff provides experience in administration and management. It also serves to improve the company's operating efficiency through recognition of problems and recommendations of effective solutions.

Doucette joined the communications and electronic systems manufacturing company in 1967. He has worked as a dispatcher, scheduler and expeditor. He has held supervisory positions in the production control organization since 1960.

A native of Central Falls, R.I., Doucette attended Sacred Heart Academy in that city. He studied at the Illinois Institute of Technology and Wright Junior College.

Industrialized Building Shown

Industrialized building methods will be used increasingly for high-rise construction, said J. Anthony Villar, editor of Building Design and Construction. He contends that industrialized building systems will make their greatest impact in the multi-story construction field.

"The high-rise pattern — duplication of similar units, stacked one above the other — lends itself readily to the application of systems technology," he said.

In addition, "professionals concentrating in high-rise design are schooled in engineering concepts that tie-in with various aspects of industrialized construction." Because of this awareness, "manufacturers of building products and equipment find in these professionals an audience receptive to the possibilities of industrialized building techniques."

These design professionals, as well as general contractors, owner-developers and building product manufacturers, will be among the more than 15,000 representatives of building and allied businesses expected to attend the second Industrialized Building Exposition and Congress, Oct. 31 to Nov. 4, at the Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville.

INBEX/71 is sponsored by the Cahners Co. building and construction publications in cooperation with the National Association of Building Manufacturers. The congress will offer more than 60 hours of seminars, workshops and panels on all facets of industrialized building and its application to housing, and low-, middle- and high-rise construction. Exhibits will include total structures, building systems, subsystems and demonstrations of products and equipment.

Bayer Attends Workshop In N.Y.

Palatine life insurance specialist Richard F. Bayer, CLU, 488 Creekwood Drive recently attended Mutual of New York's advanced workshop on Business Insurance and Equities at Rosemont.

Attendance at the seminar was restricted to an elite group of specialists, and required a special invitation. The workshop program included discussion of estate conservation, equity products, and professional corporations, with emphasis placed on the importance of insurance protection for specific situations.

The program, conducted by two Mony attorneys, also covered recent tax law developments.

Sales leaders from Mony's central region attended the conference.

Windows Can Offer Escape

Windows can serve as emergency fire exits.

Most architects and builders take into account the role of windows as potential emergency exits. It is now recognized, for instance, that windowless schools or offices, or buildings which lack operating windows, not only impede escape from fire but can prevent ventilation of smoke. On the other hand, strategically located operating windows can add to a building's overall fire safety.

The Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a window manufacturer, points out that the key fire safety factor in a window is whether it will make a practical exit. This means it must open easily and be low enough and large enough to get out of.

Casement windows made excellent fire exits because they swing to a 90-degree angle and open full height. Patio doors and gliding windows are also good exits because of their easy operation and "full" openings.

In order to take advantage of fire exits, however, it is necessary to be able to reach them quickly under adverse conditions — darkness, smoke, excitement, fear. Andersen urges parents to work out family escape plans for their homes, just as schools and businesses do. These steps are recommended:

Make a floor plan of the house, marking all windows, doors, stairways, porches and porch roofs.

If there are very young, elderly or sick people in the house, assign someone to assist them in case of fire.

Agree to get out of the house fast, not to search for pets or belongings, to assemble in one place outside, and only then to call the fire department.

Explain the escape procedure carefully, especially to children, and hold occasional day and night-time fire drills.

Stetz Celebrates 30th Anniversary

Celebrating his 30th anniversary with Western Electric, manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell Telephone System, is Ernest S. Stetz of Buffalo Grove.

Stetz, a service coordinator to the telephone company, is working at the Central Region headquarters, 3800 Golf Road, Rolling Meadows.

He started with the company on July 21, 1941, as a bench hand at the Hawthorne Works in Cicero.

MAP TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS

FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING
REAL ESTATE SERVICE

Important Things To Consider When Home Shopping!

When making that all important home selection, there are many important things to be considered that are sometimes overlooked.

For example, if you have a school age family you should investigate the local school district as well as the location of the schools to the home. Not all school districts have the same pupil to teacher ratio or the same annual per student expense ratio. These important facts can have a great bearing on the ratio of pupils per class and the corresponding capacity of the actual classrooms. It is also wise to investigate the academic rating of the school districts to assure an acceptable level of available learning standards.

The balanced pupil teacher ratio and the high academic standards of schools in the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate area are among the best and highest in the country. This general school condition is one of the many reasons the Northwest Suburban area served by MAP Real Estate offices is one of the most desirable living areas in the country... and another reason why people enjoy life more in the Great Northwest Suburban Chicago area.

Realtors Favor Rate Increase

An increase in the permissible interest rates from 7 to 7½ per cent on mortgage loans insured by the Federal Housing Ad-ministration and guaranteed by the Vet-erans Administration was urged by Bill N. Brown, Albuquerque, N.M., president of the National Association of Real Es-tate Boards, in a letter to President Nix-on.

Such a move would assure a contin-uous flow of funds to the mortgage mar-ket and "ameliorate the serious financial burden borne by sellers of moderately priced homes whose market relies pri-marily on FHA and VA financing," he said. Brown urged that the proposed tan-dem plan, which involves a federal sub-sidy, be rejected.

The National Association of Real Es-tate Boards represents about 500,000 people in the real estate field. This in-cludes its more than 95,000 Realtor mem-bers and their sales and other personnel.

"Developments in the financial market since my visit with you on June 15 reflect a degree of competition for capital and higher yields on alternative investments that are imperiling the home mortgage market," Brown said in his letter. "The interest rates on FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed loans are far below the level needed to attract investors."

High discounts on these mortgages at current rates, will adversely affect both the volume of new home production and sales of existing properties, Brown said. "It is a grave injustice to home owners seeking to sell their homes to pay discounts dictated by interest rates on FHA and VA loans which today bear little re-semblance to economic reality," he said.

"It has been suggested by the Depart-ment of Housing and Urban Development that the disciplines of the market place be neutralized by authorizing its con-stituent, the Government National Mort-gage Association, to purchase FHA un-subsidized new home mortgages at a price above the market and sell them to the Federal National Mortgage Associa-tion at a market price with federal funds employed to pay the difference. We respectfully suggest that this so-called 'tandem plan' represents an unwar-ranted, as well as unnecessary, ex-penditure of federal revenues," Brown said.

Jannotta Gains Appraisal Honor

Nicholas C. Jannotta has been awarded the M.A.I. (Member, Appraisal Institute) designation by special mail ballot of the Governing Council of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers at its recent meeting in Chicago.

This designation admits Nicholas C. Jannotta to the highest level of membership in the Institute. Over 4,200 appraisers have qualified for this coveted designation since the institute was founded in 1932.

To receive the M.A.I. designation, Nicholas C. Jannotta had to have at least five years' full-time appraising experience. He also had to write two appraisal reports to demonstrate an understanding of various depreciation factors and the proper use of the three principal approaches to value involved in the appraisal process. He had to pass a minimum of two technical examinations, and had to have the recommendation of other appraisers familiar with his work.

Jannotta is a vice president and director of corporate counseling for Real Estate Research Corp., a national real estate firm of land economists. He resides with his wife and three children in Arlington Heights.

Mary Kaler Now Head Of Department

Miss Mary Kaler, RN, of Buffalo Grove, has been promoted to head nurse of the surgery department at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. The appointment was announced by Mrs. Joan Bullas, RN, director of nursing.

Miss Kaler has served as a staff nurse in surgery since January, 1970. Previously, she had served as a staff nurse anesthetist at Resurrection Hospital in Chicago. She is a graduate of Mercy Hospital School of Nursing, Urbana, Ill.

Post Sales In Palatine

Nineteen property sales in Rolling Meadows topped activity in the mid-summer Palatine township real estate transfer report from Cook County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

One sale was recorded in Barrington Park, in addition to one in Inverness and 53 in Palatine and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. International Crisis Probed

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, in its monthly review, Business Conditions, probes the background of the recent international monetary crisis.

The bank said that, in a sense, the many factors contributing to the May upheaval in the international monetary system derive from a common denominator: reconciling national interests in a multinational world. The present international payments system is clearly beneficial to all participating nations, and its continued smooth functioning requires timely elimination of imbalances in the international accounts of the nations experiencing them the bank said. Yet, on many occasions, eliminating such imbalances may entail policy measures that interfere with the attainment of the country's domestic economic goals of full employment, stable prices, and growth, the bank said. This causes, in the long run, the persistent failure of some countries, out of concern for domestic consequences, to eliminate imbalances in their international accounts; in the short run, the failure of some nations to temper domestic monetary and fiscal stabilization policies with international considerations.

The Fed believes that there is a lesson to be learned from the events of this past spring. To avoid further disruptions, all nations that participate in and benefit by the present international monetary arrangements must work together to harmonize their international economic policies and their divergent domestic economic goals to accommodate the covenants of the system — or they must work together on modifications of the system so that it can accommodate national diversity, the bank said.

Clubhouse Underway

Children's play facilities were recently completed at the new Dutch Hollow Lake second home development near LaValle, Wis.

The 1,200 homesite Branigar Lake Properties of Wisconsin development features Kiddies' Zoo. Bob Kessler, firm vice president, reports that rabbits, lambs, horses and other animals are featured. A pond has been stocked with trout where children under 12, accompanied by parents visiting the Lake, may fish. Buckboards, pulled by a team of horses, take passengers on mini-tours of the property.

Five miles of roads have been completed, and the new 5,500 square foot Dutch Hollow Clubhouse is under construction. Some 1,200 homesites will be sold on the 2,350-acre development, with over 500 acres set aside for the greenway system of woods and meadows.

All homesite owners will have access to the lake. Potation piers will be built at various points. All access roads, stemming from the main perimeter road, will be dead-end cul-de-sacs.

Homesites, starting at $4,300, range from one-half acre up to one-and-a-half acres, Kessler said. Immediately upon purchasing a homesite, a buyer becomes a member of the Dutch Hollow Property Owners Association.

Dutch Hollow Lake can be reached by taking Route 23 and 33 from the Reedsburg-Lake Delton 1-94 turnoff and following the signs from LaValle. Sales offices and recreation facilities are open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk.

Small Investors Can Participate In Syndication

A new book offered through the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers explains how syndicates provide ways for small investors to participate in real estate developments.

Stating that syndicates raise large sums of capital now needed to finance real estate projects, the third edition of Federal Taxes Affecting Real Estate explains that the way a syndicate is taxed depends upon whether it is a corporation, partnership, trust or a real estate investment trust.

One development in syndication is the formation of limited partnerships with the bulk of capitalization provided by junior mortgage bonds and participation interests. Each participation interest represents an undivided economic interest in the limited partner's interest, thus entitling the holder to a ratable share of the taxable gain or loss attributable to the limited partner as well as a ratable share of cash distributions.

To provide liquidity for those purchasing the bonds and participation interests, an over-the-counter market plan was established to permit easy transferability of interests. While the plan is not without its disadvantages, such as Blue Sky Laws in certain states, and the uncertainties of the open market, developers have succeeded in raising many millions of dollars without incurring excessive dilution of their equity position, the book said.

The current edition of the book, initially prepared in 1964 for the National Institute of Farm and Land Brokers, an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, discusses the provisions of the tax laws as they affect real estate. The book has been expanded to include discussions of the 1969 Tax Reform Act and the tax aspects of real estate investment trusts and offshore real estate funds.

Some of the other topics covered in the book include: investment in low income housing, casualty losses, minimum tax, income averaging, hobby losses, depreciation, soil and water conservation expenditures, sales and leasebacks, involuntary conversions, and tax effect of dealer versus investor.

The chapter order of the book follows a normal cycle of ownership from purchase through ownership to sale as it would concern individuals, corporations, syndicates, and brokers.

Discussions compare old and new methods of computing tax liability in particular situations, as well as discussing various tax treatments of the same situation.

Federal Taxes Affecting Real Estate was prepared by John O. McCoy, Harry A. Olsen, Charles H. Reed, Robert Sandison, and Robert F. Wright, partners in Arthur Andersen and Co. It can be purchased for $15 by writing the National Institute of Farm and Land Brokers, 155 East Superior St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

THE VILLAGE THAT NEVER CHANGES

Can you imagine a village where you will not see a single garbage can? Where there are no property line fences? Where the smallest homesites are an acre? Where there is no industry? Where no two homes are alike? Where every home must receive architectural approval? These are just a few of the unusual features of Inverness that are protected by prudent deed restrictions to jealously guard against changes in the character, value and way of living in the community. How much does it cost to join this exclusive 450-family village? Our acre-or-larger homesites start at $12,000, with only 20% down and an annual percentage rate of 7%. We also have a portfolio of homes for sale for immediate occupancy due to executive transfers. Prices range from $60,000 to $200,000. Drive out today; or, if you prefer, send for a free brochure.

Our picturesque 4-Silo office is open daily on Baldwin Road, just west of Northwest Highway (Rte. 14) between Palatine and Barrington. Convenient to Northwest Tollway (north from Rte. 53 exit).

*Example: $12,000 purchase - $2400 down, 120 monthly payments of $111.48.

Legless Vietnam Veteran Doesn't Seek Any Pity

(Ed. Note: This is one of a series of reports by Tom Tiede on America's 2.5 million surviving Vietnam veterans.)

by TOM TIEDE

MERRIMAC, Mass. — As he remembers it, George Tucci shouldn't have been on that Vietnam convoy in the winter of 1965. He had been a half year in the war, wounded twice, and was overdue for a week's furlough-rest. But they said the convoy would be important, they said they needed experienced men along, and so the then Sgt. Tucci mounted a tank in the middle of the line and set off with the rest.

It was 1 p.m. on Highway 13, northwest of Saigon.

"I remember the time, because my watch stopped. What happened was the enemy rigged a couple of 155mm artillery shells in the middle of the road and detonated them just as my tank was going over. I was way back in the line, all kinds of vehicles had already gone by safely, but . . . blooey! It blew my tank to hell. My gunner and my loader were killed right there. And I got it pretty bad myself."

SBT. TUCCI got it more than bad. His feet were shredded with iron fragments, his body was pitted with pieces of debris, his left arm was mangled and snapped — and his back was busted in six places. He was evacuated to immediate emergency surgery where he nearly died. His condition was so serious he lost 85 pounds of body weight in the first 13 days following the explosion. He remembers nurses looking at him and shaking their heads. He remembers thinking even himself that he was gone.

But he lived. What was left of him, anyway. He stayed in hospitals for the next three and one-half years, underwent a total of 38 operations, and was finally released — without legs, without any feeling from the waist down, and in a semi-spastic condition which, if he's jarred in the wrong place, can leave him shaking out of control.

Talk about the readjustment difficulties of Vietnam veterans. As a paraplegic, George Tucci faced the worst. The nation has not been able to easily absorb even the physically sound returning soldiers, much less those in wheelchairs.

AND WHILE at present there are almost 500,000 Viet vets who are either out of work, on drugs or having other serious problems, it's the physically handicapped among them who are in deepest depression. A guy without a work skill can be trained, a junkie can be rehabilitated — but the legless, armless or blind veterans often (if erroneously) feel there is no future at all for them in the nation.

At times during his agonizingly long recovery period, George Tucci had the sinking too. He wondered how his wife would take his paralysis, he dreaded the curiosity of his young son. He's seen others like him in the wards, some who'd been there since former wars, and he dreaded even quick thoughts about such existence.

But, as it happens, Tucci is not the type for prolonged self pity nor can he allow himself less of life than he can grab with his hands. Call it courage, or tenacity, but those are silly, inadequate words. Today, George Tucci, now 27, is a self-employed, respected, even admired citizen of his community — and is a fellow who is simply too rambunctious to be defeated by difficulties.

Tucci owns a Mobil service station here in Merrimac, a tiny community, "the birthplace of John Greenleaf Whittier," in northwestern Massachusetts. And though an occasional motorist will still drive up, see Tucci in his wheelchair, and get out to help the man — the man does not need help. Tucci needs no legs to pump the gas, check the oil, wipe the windows or, to be sure, take the money.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Elegant Desserts

For A Mid-Summer's Night Dream

The long twilight evenings of summer inspire many "dessert and coffee" occasions. So why not invite special friends to share a glamorous, cooling dessert.

These desserts all begin with pancake mix. Even summer's new brides can try them with confidence, for their elegant appearance conceals easy preparation.

Cloud Nine Blueberry Torte

Filling:

2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup water
1 cup fresh or fresh frozen blueberries

Pancakes:

1 cup pancake mix
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon melted or liquid shortening
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup marshmallow creme

For filling, combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and nutmeg in saucepan. Gradually add water, stirring until combined. Add blueberries. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened and clear.

For pancakes, place mix, milk, egg and shortening in bowl. Stir lightly until batter is fairly smooth. For each pancake, pour about 1/2 cup batter onto hot, lightly greased griddle to make 4 pancakes. Sprinkle each pancake with 2 tablespoons chopped pecans before turning. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once.

Spread 2 of the pancakes with marshmallow creme. Dot the 2 remaining pancakes with butter; spread each with 1/2 of the filling. To assemble, stack pancakes on cooky sheet, alternating layers, beginning with blueberry topped pancake. Spoon 2 tablespoons fresh or fresh frozen blueberries on top of stack. Broil about 2 minutes or until marshmallow creme turns a delicate golden-brown. Cut into wedges to serve.

Makes 6 servings.

Cherry Carrousel Cake

Cake:

3 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup pancake mix

Sauce:

One 1 lb. 1-oz. can pitted black bing cherries
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup brandy
Vanilla ice cream

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees).

For cake, beat eggs until thick and lemon colored. Slowly add sugar, beating constantly. Stir in milk, vanilla and pancake mix. Pour batter into greased and floured 6 1/2-cup ring mold. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) about 25 minutes. Cool about 5 minutes; remove from ring mold.

For sauce, drain cherries, reserving 1 cup juice. Combine cornstarch and sugar in saucepan. Gradually add reserved juice, stirring until combined. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened and clear. Remove from heat; stir in cherries.

Heat brandy very slowly. (Do not boil.) While brandy heats, fill center of cake with spoonfuls of ice cream. Pour warmed brandy over thickened cherry mixture; ignite. After flame burns out, stir to combine thoroughly. Serve warm sauce with cake and ice cream.

Makes 8 servings.

Celebrity Strawberry Crepes

Filling:

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg yolk, beaten
1/2 cup dairy sour cream

1 cup sliced fresh strawberries, sweetened

Crepes:

3 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup pancake mix
Brown sugar

For filling, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Gradually add milk, stirring until combined. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture comes to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and cook about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in vanilla.

Stir a small amount of hot mixture into egg yolk. Slowly add egg mixture to hot mixture, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly about 5 minutes or until thick. Remove from heat. Stir in sour cream and strawberries. Cover with waxed paper. Cool.

For crepes, combine eggs and milk. Add pancake mix; beat with wire whisk or rotary beater until smooth. For each crepe, put small amount of batter in small fry pan; heat until butter bubbles. Pour in about 1 tablespoon batter; immediately tilt pan to coat bottom evenly with thin layer. Bake until delicately browned on under side; turn and bake on other side.

Spoon a heaping tablespoonful of filling across center of each crepe; roll up. Sprinkle with brown sugar.

Makes 6 servings.

Park Avenue Plum Pancake

Filling:

1 lb. fresh plums
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Dash salt

1/2 cup pancake mix
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Dairy sour cream
Brown sugar

Shell:

3 eggs

For filling, cut plums in half; remove pits. Place plum halves in saucepan. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt; sprinkle over plum halves. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently about 10 minutes. Remove from heat.

For shell, beat eggs until thick and lemon colored. Alternately add pancake mix and milk, a tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition. Add almond extract. Place butter in 9 or 10-inch ovenproof skillet; place in preheated oven (450 degrees). Then beat egg mixture vigorously about 3 minutes. Pour into hot buttered skillet. Bake in preheated oven (450 degrees) about 15 minutes.

To remove shell from skillet, slide a spatula around edge; tilt skillet and gently slide shell onto serving plate. Spread filling in center of shell. Top with dollops of dairy sour cream; sprinkle with brown sugar. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Satisfy Sea-Sharpened Appetites

One Dish Meals From The Galley

For many weekend sailors, dishing up a galley dinner can be as much of a challenge as navigating a channel. So to lend a hand, The R. T. French Company's Test Kitchens, have created two recipes that can be easily prepared in cramped quarters with a minimum of utensils.

Get the flavor that's knocking Chicago for a loop.

Put the bite on us.

What's more, both are hearty enough to satisfy those sea-sharpened appetites.

Seafood-Rice Combo is an all-in-one meal of chunks of fish fillets, shrimp and rice zestily seasoned with an envelope of seasoning mix for sloppy joes. Easy to tote and to store, small foil packets of pre-mixed seasonings are the ideal way to give simple food invigorating flavor.

Complete and filling too, is the Ship-shape Fish Chowder. Thickened with an envelope of instant mashed potato granules — another first-rate mate for boat galleys — the soup is nourishing and flavorful.

Either of these dishes, served with rolls and topped off with fresh or canned fruit and cookies and a glass of milk provide servings from each of the basic four food groups needed daily to maintain the vigor and energy needed by sailors and landlubbers too.

SEAFOOD-RICE COMBO

- 1 envelope (1½ ounces) seasoning mix for Sloppy Joes
- 2 cups water
- ¾ cup raw rice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 pound boneless fish fillets
- ½ pound raw shrimp, shelled and deveined
- Grated Parmesan cheese
- Parsley Flakes

Combine contents of envelope of seasoning mix and water; pour half into large skillet. Stir in rice; bring to a boil. Add butter and salt. Arrange fish and shrimp on top of rice; pour remaining liquid over fish. Return to boil and simmer, covered, over low heat 20 minutes or until rice is tender. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and parsley flakes. 5 to 6 servings.

FISH CHOWDER

- 5 slices bacon or ¼ pound salt pork finely chopped
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 can (3 ounce) sliced mushrooms, if desired
- 2 tablespoons onion flakes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon black pepper
- 3 cups water
- 1 pound boneless fish fillets, cut in bite-sized pieces
- 1 can (13 ounce) evaporated milk
- 1 envelope (5-servings) French's instant Mashed Potato granules
- Parsley Flakes, if desired

In a large saucepan, cook bacon until crisp and golden brown. Add celery, mushrooms, onion, salt, pepper, and water; bring to a boil. Add fish; simmer 10 minutes. Stir in milk and return to a boil. Stir in potato granules. Garnish with parsley flakes. For thinner chowder, stir in a little more water. 6 to 8 servings.

The Knife And Fork May Be Killing You

by FRAN HECKART

Helen Homemaker never once thought about suicide, but she was slowly killing herself and family with the affluent American's disease, malnutrition.

Helen's dilemma is not an unusual one. Like thousands of homemakers, she lacks accurate nutrition information. Her family never went hungry but simply consumed the wrong kinds of food.

"How To Enjoy Eating Without Committing Suicide" by Charles D. Ewart of Arlington Heights explains the basic steps toward reducing suicidal tendencies by knife and fork.

According to Mr. Ewart, this is one of the first times specific values of popular foods have been presented to the home-maker.

While involved in product marketing, Mr. Ewart found that average homemakers possess very little specific nutrition knowledge. About four years ago he began a comprehensive study of nutrition for background in developing better food products. Mr. Ewart said he began to discover that housewives did not have the ability to understand the nutritive values of food.

Since the nutritional product idea was not selling, Mr. Ewart decided to sell the information. "How To Enjoy Eating Without Committing Suicide" is a concise summary of basic nutrition. "The information is available to anyone who wants to spend hours and hours of research, but I've done the work of compiling the data," said Mr. Ewart.

Rather than dihard rules, the author presents logical reasons for eating the right foods. He doesn't preach to women concerned about breakfast, but shows a specific reason for getting a complete protein three times a day.

The book offers solutions for two important nutrition problems. People need to know in specific terms what the nutrition requirements are and exactly how much of a contribution a standard serving makes to that requirement.

The language is simple and concise. In 70 pages, Mr. Ewart explains nutrition and the basic requirements. Essential information about carbohydrates, fats, proteins, vitamins, minerals and water produces a clear picture of what basic nutrition is all about.

mitting Suicide" can provide a comprehensive understanding about human nutrition that is a sufficient guide to complete diet plans.

Water soluble vitamins cannot be stored in the body so the requirements must be fulfilled every day. Fat-soluble vitamins can be stored several days. Nutrition jargon can be easily understood.

Because of what Mr. Ewart terms a general lack of understanding and confusion about protein, he gives a detailed explanation of complete and incomplete protein. He points out that cheaper cuts of meat are often higher in protein content than more expensive ones.

The book tells it like it is. "A calorie is a calorie... a martini, steak, cottage cheese, cake or celery." If you don't believe this, the author suggests throwing the book away. If you choose to read on, you'll find an enjoyable nutrition short course.

Readers may obtain "How To Enjoy Eating Without Committing Suicide" by sending $2 to Nutrition Information, Inc., P.O. Box 971, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006.

Consumer Tips

PREPARE A TWO-LAYER gelatin salad with salmon on top and green split pea puree on the bottom. Serve on a bed of cole slaw. Garnish with sliced dill pickle and tomatoes.

EGG WHITES WHIP more easily and give greater volume at room temperature than when first taken from the refrigerator.

LIKE ALL OTHER fresh meats, lamb should be stored either unwrapped or loosely wrapped in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Use it within a few days after purchase. Uncooked lamb can be stored in a freezer for 6 to 7 months.

WHEN BUYING a fresh pineapple, look for one that is plump and as large as possible. The larger the fruit, the greater the proportion of edible flesh. Fresh deep green crown leaves are a good sign. The pulse with which these leaves can be pulled out is not a measure of quality. Ripe pineapple should have a fragrant odor and be slightly soft to the touch.

Youth Sets New Restaurant Style

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Youth resents being made to feel uptight. Also, youth wants to dress informally, either dungarees or a sports shirt or the latest in mod clothes. They resent being reminded of how they look.

This same attitude applies to restaurants. They like to be served by other young people, their peers, who are lively and good-looking. The professional waiter is no longer in their books, the kind who carves alongside their table or who flambes their dessert. They welcome style but their kind of style. They love color and space so that they can move about feeling uncrowded. They like to have their moods anticipated and catered to.

Such a restaurant is the completely redesigned new La Fonda del Sol, in the Time-Life Building in New York. It seems to have become the pace-setter for new eating spots. The decor is modified southwestern United States with masses of sharp color in warm tones. The eating bar is next to the drinking bar and small tables are grouped nearby for intimate snacking. The other tables are distributed among handsome wooden dividers. Set in glass cases in the walls are groups of Mexican, Chilean, Peruvian art and a huge gold sun, symbolic of Central America, dominates the restaurant. The place has movement, gaiety, youthfulness and interest. But it is not nervous.

"We have tried to create here the perfect answer for today. Young people have money to spend in their way, not in some authorized or traditional way. They are changing the entire social pattern," reports James J. Tsighis, vice president and eastern region supervisor for Restaurant Associates Industries. A Cornell graduate in hotel management, he is a member of the Chaine des Rotisseurs.

"The food has a different slant. It is not cheap, but it is reasonable. Anything from a Zapata Hero from South of the Border or Steak Tartar on Toasted Onion Rye Bread to Duckling with Honey and Almonds to Coriander Shrimp and Bacon on a Skewer. Guacamole with Tostitos is a steady seller. I think you'll agree this all fits into the new youthful ways of thinking," he adds.

Tsighis also is youthful, despite his years of experience and points to the many middle-aged customers. "They enjoy the youthful atmosphere, too. Everyone enjoys it, believe me. How could you not enjoy these good-looking people waiting on tables, especially those many bright girls with their plain mini skirts, checkered blouses with a scarf tied around their lovely throats and their wide leather belts?"

Among other places Tsighis supervises are Charlie O's and the Brasserie. "These have much the same atmosphere. They are both doing good business, despite the economical slump.

"Luxury restaurants, expensive and elegant, like the Four Seasons and the Forum will continue. But I doubt if you'll see more of them built. Times are changing. People want the youth-oriented restaurants now. That's where the money lies."

Good Eating Habits Help On Auto Trip

This summer, as happens every year, millions of Americans will take to the road with their families for traveling vacations, seeing the marvelous sights of our country.

Many things can contribute to the success and pleasure of such a trip, not the least of which is remembering that the foods you eat and drink can affect your comfort. This applies to adults as much as children, according to nutrition experts at Meadow Gold Dairies, for poor eating habits while traveling contribute to headaches and stomach upsets.

Eating a good sized breakfast is recommended practice. Then eat a light lunch, avoiding the hard to digest, high calories foods that tend to make you less alert. If you wish, your evening meal can be another substantial one.

Take frequent breaks too, so the driver and youngsters can stretch their legs. Encourage the children to drink milk and fruit beverages during a rest stop, as these wholesome beverages not only renew energy, but are less likely to cause motion sickness.

A Statement Of Policy

You Always* Save More On The Large Size At Eagle!

Eagle's discount pricing and merchandising policy now guarantees that the large size pack of any item will always be a better value than the smaller pack of the same brand. Family size, economy size, giant size...no matter what the manufacturer calls it, Eagle wants to make sure that when it comes to pricing you get a full measure of value and there is no confusion on the grocery shelves.

*The only exceptions to Eagle's storewide policy of making sure the largest size is your best buy is during a manufacturer's special promotional allowance when they temporarily lower their price on the smaller size of the product. When this happens, the smaller size might be the better buy. To make sure our customers are aware of this, we will label the larger size "S.O.S.", which means "Save On Smallsizes." If you don't see this sign, you can be sure the largest size will save you the most. This extra care, like the rest of our Discount Pricing Policy, is designed to make your shopping easier and more economical

Save-On-Smallsize
The smaller a product package, the more it costs a dollar value during the manufacturer's special promotional allowance.

COUNT ON EAGLE TO LEAD THE WAY TO SAVINGS

When it comes to True Discount Pricing, Eagle has been the leader with our policies of "Single Item Pricing," "Truth In Meat Labeling," and "No Limits." And now, "Guaranteed Value Per Measure," is just one more example of Eagle's continuing commitment to retain your confidence in our honest, discount program.

Pack Up And Go Picnic Cookies

Picnic time is here again — and here are two great cookie treats that travel. Butterscotch Picnic Bars and popular Toll House Cookies are just the thing for the first picnic of the year. Their rich flavor and contrasting textures: one chewy and moist; the other, toothsome and crisp, will be hits with everyone. There's something wonderful about home-baked treats, to begin with, and when they're eaten in the great outdoors, more wonderful still.

These butterscotch bars are a snap to make, too, thanks to butterscotch-flavored morsels, the morsels that have made old-time butterscotch flavor easy as 1-2-3 to achieve. All the ingredients are mixed in the saucepan in which the butter is melted, a bonus for the dishwasher.

If you like, you can take along the bars in the pan they're baked in. Just wrap in foil or plastic wrap around the pan. Butterscotch Picnic Bars pack up and go with no fuss at all. The recipe makes 50 bars, enough to get you out to the picnic and back. (They freeze beautifully — in case you have any left and want to keep them for another occasion.)

Toll House Cookies — for which the Nestle Company developed their semi-sweet chocolate morsels — are so popular, they're America's most often baked cookie! But have you tried a variation on the original, such as adding chopped dates, raisins or peanut butter? If you haven't, there's a delightful flavor surprise in store for you.

Carry the cookies wrapped in foil to the picnic site. Or pack them in a biscuit tin with crumpled foil or waxed paper between layers. What could be simpler?

BUTTERSCOTCH PICNIC BARS

2/3 cup butter
2 1/2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
3 eggs

ORIGINAL TOLL HOUSE COOKIES

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or shortening, softened
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
6 tablespoons brown sugar, packed
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon water
1 egg
1 package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. Combine butter, sugars, vanilla and water; beat until creamy. Beat in egg. Add flour mixture; mix well. Stir in semi-sweet chocolate morsels and nuts. Drop by well-rounded half teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 375-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes.

Yield: 50 cookies.

Variations: Omit nuts; add 2 cups crisp, ready-to-eat cereal. Add 1 cup chopped dates. Add 1 1/2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Add 1 cup raisins. Add 1/2 cup peanut butter.

Cream Pies For Summer

"Easy as pie" is an apt phrase these days, especially when you refer to cream pies. For the modern cream pie is exceptionally easy to make.

The prebaked crust may be one you make yourself or from a packaged mix. The filling is cooked like a simple pudding, cooled and then poured into the shell.

This chocolate banana cream pie from the home economists at Meadow Gold Dairies is a perfect example. While the pastry shell is cooling, the rich filling is cooked in the top of a double boiler. Modern trends in food preparation also contribute to the making of this pie, for ready prepared chocolate milk is the liquid ingredient used, saving considerable

Mrs. Ernest C. Grant

Her Cookies 'Go To Church'

by LOIS SEILER

"Go to Church Cookies" are what Mrs. Ernest C. Grant calls her baked delicacies, because all of them have been taken to church on numerous occasions throughout the years.

The wife of the associate minister of the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, Gertrude Grant has acquired the reputation of an expert cookie baker. With three men in her family, plus active participation in church functions, she has baked many a cookie in her life and is still going strong!

Some of her favorites for church meetings or social affairs include crispy Oatmeal Cookies, flavorful Molasses Drop Cookies and crunchy Toffee Bars.

Because of allergies in the family, Gertrude developed an oatmeal cookie recipe in which barley flour can be substituted for wheat flour.

"I probably bake this cookie the most as it's a family favorite," she said.

The oatmeal cookies are flavored with cinnamon, chocolate chips and chopped nuts. The recipe makes five dozen large, flat cookies, and can easily be doubled for a big batch.

Gertrude makes her Molasses Drop

Cookies from an old recipe which has been in her husband's family for years.

"WHILE BAKING, there is a heavenly aroma from the molasses and cinnamon-flavored batter," she remarked, "and the cookies have a delicious, spicy flavor."

Her Toffee Bars call for ingredients similar to those used in Toll House Cookies, yet they have a different texture and flavor. Easier to make, too, the batter is pressed into a jelly roll pan and, after baking, it is cut into squares or bars. They are very rich with a crunchy texture.

Baking is just one of this busy homemaker's hobbies. She sews most of her own clothes, takes a class in ceramics, refinishes furniture, and both she and her husband collect stamps.

Active in the Women's Fellowship and various interest groups at church, Gertrude also teaches Sunday School, helps train Sunday school teachers in the Chicago area, serves on the board of Maine Township Mental Health Association and is a member of Northwest Diabetics Association.

The Grants live at 837 Second Ave. in Des Plaines. They have two married sons and one granddaughter.

BARLEY OATMEAL COOKIES

¾ cup soft shortening
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted enriched flour or 1½ cups sifted barley flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
3 cups dry quick-cooking oats
1 small package chocolate chips
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans

Put shortening, sugars, egg, water and vanilla in mixing bowl one at a time and beat thoroughly.

Sift dry ingredients together and beat into creamed mixture. Blend in oatmeal. Add chocolate chips and nuts.

Drop by teaspoonful onto cookie sheet. Press down with fork dipped in water. Bake at 350 degrees about 15 minutes. Makes about 60 large cookies.

MOLASSES DROP COOKIES

1 cup soft shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¾ cup old fashioned molasses
¾ teaspoon vinegar

¾ cup evaporated milk
3 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg and molasses; beat well. Use low speed on mixer or stir in vinegar and evaporated milk. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat thoroughly.

Drop from a teaspoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees about 15 minutes. Makes about 100 cookies.

GO TO CHURCH

TOFFEE BARS

1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted flour
1 small package chocolate chips
1 cup chopped nuts
Cream together butter, sugar and vanilla. Add flour and mix well. Stir in chocolate chips and chopped nuts.

With wet hands, press mixture into a greased jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. While still warm, cut into bars or squares. Cool before removing from pan.

Makes 32 to 48, depending on size desired.

Go Native With A Tropics Buffet

Going native knows no season. A tropics-oriented buffet party is ideal for informal summer fun and also offers a change-of-pace entertainment idea for cooler days coming.

Plastics Manufacturing Company's new Oblique line of stackable dinnerware with its flat planes of polished high-quality plastic and unique vertical rims is elegantly simple and adapts to any table setting from traditional, contemporary, fiesta to this island-flavored party. Oblique is available in open stock selection, to mix or match, in terra cotta, celery, ebony, coffee and warm white.

This easy, fix-ahead luau menu leaves the hostess free to join her guests in a before dinner Limbo to limber up party spirits and appetites.

ISLAND KABOBS

1½ pounds top round, cubed
Soy sauce
Three small onions, quartered
Two green Bell peppers
Pineapple chunks, canned or fresh
Bacon slices

To tenderize meat and lend an oriental flavor, marinate cubed round steaks in soy sauce for two or more hours. Cut bacon slices in half and fold to 1-inch squares. Skewer meat cubes, bacon, onions, peppers and pineapple, in that order, until skewers are filled to length desired to fit your hibachi or outdoor grill. If broiled in oven broiler, kabobs will need to be shorter to fit broiler pan.

Broil as desired until bacon begins to crisp at exposed edges and peppers and onions are slightly soft. Bacon skewered next to meat cubes assures that meat is automatically "basted." To slow cooking on outdoor grill or hibachi baste kabobs with remaining marinade. Coals that have turned totally grey provide the most uniform cooking heat. Remove skewers from fire with oven mitt and serve on garnished platter.

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE BOATS

1 large fresh pineapple
1 quart fresh strawberries
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup Cointreau Liqueur

Select fresh pineapple that yields to gentle pressure and has become golden. Slice pineapple, including fronds, in half lengthwise. Slice each half in thirds taking care to keep frond ends intact. With sharp knife remove fruit leaving ¼-inch shell, being careful not to cut off tail. Set aside "boat" in which to serve. Remove woody center from pineapple and cut fruit in bite-size chunks. Clean and slice one quart fresh strawberries. Mix with pineapple chunks in large bowl. Add one-half cup sugar and one-half cup Cointreau Liqueur and allow to marinate while meat is marinating in soy sauce. Spoon onto boat and serve as dessert.

Serve a green salad tossed with a sprinkle of dill seed and oil and vinegar or your favorite bottled dressing, hot rolls and you have a luau feast fit for a pagan god.

COOKIE BAKING can be great fun.

Joy Grant, 4, of Taylor, Mich., gets a few pointers from her grandmother Mrs. Ernest Grant. An expert cookie baker, Mrs. Grant developed a recipe for Barley Oatmeal Cookies flavored with cinnamon, chocolate chips and chopped nuts. The cookies have almost become a tradition at church meetings and social affairs.

What's Thawing For Dinner?

Salads For Warm Weather Meals

by CHARLOTTE ERICKSON

Warm weather spells salad time. With such a variety of fresh greens and vegetables available, it's almost fun to prepare a salad.

The types and kinds of salads are limited only by our imagination. Vegetables, fish, fowl, all kinds of meat and ham, fruits and potatoes can be combined to make a vast variety of salads.

Not only are salads great for calorie counters and easy on the budget, they are full of vitamins.

POLYNESIAN HAM SALAD

This salad is a refreshing meal-in-one dish which is ideal for hot days when dinner preparation is best kept to a minimum.

1 pound cooked ham, cut into cubes
1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg yolk
½ cup sour half and half
½ ripe cantaloupe, cut into balls
½ ripe honey dew melon, cut into balls
2 medium size bananas; cut in ½-inch slices
¼ pound red cherries, pitted
¼ pound seedless grapes, stemmed
1/3 cup toasted coconut Drain pineapple chunks, reserving the juice. In a sauce pan combine sugar and cornstarch. Add ¼ cup of pineapple juice, lemon juice and egg yolk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Cool slightly, then fold in sour half and half. Chill.

Meanwhile, combine drained pineapple chunks, banana slices (which have been dipped in remaining pineapple juice to prevent discoloring), remaining fruits, coconut and ham. Toss lightly and chill until ready to serve. Just before serving combine chilled dressing with fruit-ham mixture and toss. Serve on a lettuce bed. Makes 6 servings.

MEXICAN CHEF SALAD

This salad is a meal in itself and an absolute delight to serve on a hot summer day.

1 pound lean ground beef
1 can (15-ounces) kidney beans, drained
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cumin
Chili or hot sauce to taste
4 green onions
4 medium ripe tomatoes
½ large head of lettuce
4 ounces shredded cheddar cheese
1 can (2½-ounces) sliced ripe olives
1 avocado
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Approximately 1 cup corn chips (plain or taco flavored)
Thousand Island or French dressing

Brown meat in a large skillet, draining off any fat. Add drained kidney beans and seasonings, and continue cooking for 5 minutes over low heat.

Meanwhile, in a large salad bowl combine the following ingredients: snipped onions, chopped tomatoes, shredded lettuce, grated cheese and olives. Toss lightly. Peel, halve and slice avocado. Cover with lemon juice and toss lightly. Add meat and bean combination to salad. Toss again ever so gently. Add corn chips and avocado pieces, tossing again. Add dressing, toss and serve immediately. Or you may wish to serve plain and let each individual use the dressing of their choice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SWEET SOUR CUCUMBERS

2 medium size cucumbers
3 scallions
6 radishes
1 sprig parsley, snipped
1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon vegetable oil salt and pepper to taste
1 tablespoon fresh crushed herbs, if available (optional)

Peel and slice the cucumbers as thinly as possible. Slice scallions in very thin slices, including the tops. Then add sliced radishes and snipped parsley. Combine vinegar, sugar and oil and pour over cucumber mixture. Toss, season to taste, and refrigerate one hour before serving. Makes about 2 cups.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Man, living in a university community you have to do "in things." I mean, you can't show that generation gap. Better be hep and tall things like they are even if you're handicapped by being "over 30."

Now, man, just to prove we're groovy today's column will give you some really wild recipes. I mean, really wild.

We start with Skinny Dip right from California. Peel, remove seed and mash 2 ripe avocados. Ripe ones will either be mottled or black skinned and feel soft but not mushy. Mix in 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 cup chopped celery, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice. Pep up to your taste with dashes of Worcestershire and Tabasco sauces.

If you prefer a real hot avocado dip, add ¼ cup canned green chilies chopped very fine. Makes 2½ cups which should be chilled then served in a bowl on lettuce leaves with crisp crackers or fresh vegetables (cucumber slices, cauliflower flowerets, celery sticks) for dipping.

Now, man, for the main course let's turn the establishment hamburger into a Psychedelic Beef Patty. That's cool! For the establishment you would have mixed 1½ pounds lean ground beef with ¼ cup finely chopped onion, 1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1½ teaspoon salt, and black pepper to taste.

But to be psychedelic you can add any one or more of all of the following — 1 tablespoon horseradish, 1 crushed garlic clove, 2 tablespoons dry red wine, 2 tablespoons sour cream. Form the beef mixture into patties and brush melted butter on each side. Grill over an active fire. Cooking time will vary from 5 minutes per side upward, depending on thickness and "how you like them."

To go way out, prepare this "mystic go-between." Using the beef prepared for the establishment, divide each patty into two and in the center put one of the following: thin slices of tomato and onion; 1 tablespoon baked beans; 2 tablespoons of a mixture which combines 1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and ¼ cup chili sauce; a generous spread of a mixture composed of ¼ pound blue cheese crumbled, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and ½ teaspoon oregano.

It's best to use a wire rack when cooking filled hamburgers since they will otherwise tend to fall apart.

Do you have a favorite "way out" recipe, or a question about food?

Ice Cream Tops Pies And Cakes

With ice cream now a standby in virtually everyone's home freezer, it pops up at mealtime many times a week. One of its choicest roles, perhaps, is that of adding the final fillip to pie or a simple dessert that needs dressing up.

Here are some suggestions from home economists at Meadow Gold dairies. Cherry vanilla ice cream is elegant on warm rice or bread pudding. Butter pecan ice cream does things for apple pie. And chocolate marshmallow flavor ice cream could be just the thing you want on frosted sponge cake or angel food cake.

New Knits

These penguin knit shirts offer variety of knit as well as style. The solid color shirt is a mesh knit in Fortrel® polyester and cotton. Shirt worn outside the slacks is 100 per cent Dacron® polyester in a honeycomb knit. In blue, with fine line trim is a Grand-Slam® penguin knit of Dacron and cotton, a Soil-Ban fabric with Scotchgard® soil release. Slacks are all washable 100 per cent polyester double knits.

It used to be that the most colorful thing on the golf course was the flag over the clubhouse, but this year's golfer will be out there in a full blaze of color — and comfort.

Vari-stripe slacks with half-top pockets and broad belts will fit more snugly yet allow more freedom of movement than anything short of shorts.

The new styles, while accenting a wealth of color and fine tailoring, also place new emphasis on masculinity. Lines are clean. Patterned knits make a definite statement. There are no frills.

The golf professionals, by the way, have been more impressed with the permanent-press, easy-care features of the new knits than the amateurs — because when you're on the Big Tour there's less time to bother with laundry and pressing.

You'll find the new knit golf shirts in most fine shops for under $10. Slacks under $30.

Dick Douglass, Dick Lotz and Gene Littler wear their knits not only on the links during "business hours," but they also like to relax in knitwear. The famous trio wears new jacquard pattern knit shirts by Munsingwear.

They're In A Whirl Of Wedding Plans

Anna Schuster

Lucy Talbot

Jeri L. Johnston

Lynda Miner

Susan Halfpenny

Lois Joy Lundquist

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Schuster of Arlington Heights are announcing their daughter Anna Elizabeth's engagement to Ronald Edward Griesch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alger Griesch of Prospect Heights.

The wedding is planned for the spring of 1972.

Miss Schuster is a postal clerk in the Prospect Heights Post Office. Her fiancé attends Eastern Illinois University and will be graduated in November.

An Aug. 7 wedding is planned by Lucy Talbot, daughter of the Chalmers Talbots of 1618 Waxwing Court, Schaumburg, and Frank T. Dreyer, son of the Frank Dreyers of Riverdale.

Lucy was graduated from Palatine High School, attended Harper College and works for DeSoto, Inc., Des Plaines.

Frank now attends Harper College and also works for Meland, Hanratin & Associates, Mundelein.

The engagement of Jeri L. Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Johnston, 594 S. La Salle St., Des Plaines, to Kurt Felde has been announced by her parents. Kurt is the son of the Charles G. Felde of 161 E. Millers Road, Des Plaines.

A graduate of Maine West High School, Jeri works for the Mobil Oil Corp. in Niles. Kurt, who also was graduated from Maine West, is currently attending the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

The date set for the wedding is Aug. 19, 1972.

The engagement of Lynda Marie Miner to John C. Stary, son of the Robert M. Starys of Bensenville, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Miner, 746 S. Merle Lane, Wheeling.

The wedding will take place April 29, 1972.

A graduate of Wheeling High School, Lynda then attended Wisconsin State University at Platteville and is a group chief operator for Illinois Bell Telephone Co. in Illinois Bell Telephone Co. in Libertyville. John also attended Wisconsin State at Platteville, served three years in the navy, and works for Instrument Laboratories Co., Chicago.

An Elk Grove couple have become engaged and are planning their wedding for March 25, 1972. Susan Halfpenny, daughter of the Robert Halfpennys of 1217 Springdale Lane, is the bride-to-be. Her fiancé is Donald Schnell, son of the Ralph Schnells of 845 Oakton St.

The young couple both attended Elk Grove High School and Harper College. Susan now works for Goldberg-Emmerman Corp. in Elk Grove, and since his graduation from Harper, Donald is with the Elk Grove Fire Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Lundquist of 1694 Cora St., Des Plaines, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois Joy, to Alan F. Krawczyk. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Krawczyk of Chicago.

Lois is a 1968 graduate of Maine West High School and is attending Northeastern Illinois State College in Chicago. She will complete her education there next April. Alan is a 1971 graduate of Northeastern Illinois State and is employed at Accurate Spring & Wire Co. in River Grove.

Their wedding is planned for July 8, 1972.

Carol Torrens, Groom Work On College Staffs

Carol A. Torrens returned to her hometown of Mount Prospect to become the bride of Joseph A. Boucher on June 19, and then the newlyweds returned to the East to resume their positions at neighboring colleges in Connecticut.

Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Torrens, 703 S. I-Oka, is a student personnel specialist at Post Junior College in Waterbury. Her bridegroom, son of the M. G. Bouchers of Woodbridge, Conn., is assistant director of admissions and records at Quinnipiac College in Hamden.

The bride, a '64 graduate of Forest View High School, earned her bachelor's degree at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., and met the bridegroom while working on her master's at the University of Connecticut. He earned his bachelor's at Quinnipiac College in 1969.

The couple exchanged vows and rings in a two o'clock ceremony in South Church Community Baptist, Mount Prospect. The Rev. Edwin I. Stevens was assisted by Barrie A. Peterson in the wedding service.

THE BRIDE chose a simple white linen dress with heavy French lace forming a yoke and short sleeves. She wore a band of fresh flowers in her hair and carried white roses, blue baby's breath and starburst pompons.

Mrs. Berrie Peterson of New Brunswick, N.J. was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Marsha Lawson of Providence, R.I., and Mrs. J. Peter Martini of Medon, Mass., the groom's sister. All three were dressed in navy blue acetate with white trim and carried baby's breath, blue cornflowers and daisy pompons.

Timothy Callahan of Hamden, Conn., served as best man. Guests were seated by Donald Cipriano, Thomaston, Conn.; J. Peter Martini, Mendon; and the bride's brother, John R. Torrens of Novato, Calif.

Mrs. Joseph Boucher

A RECEPTION at the Torrens home followed the wedding. Mrs. Torrens wore an aqua silk dress and Mrs. Boucher a gold satin as they greeted the guests. Each had a spring flower corsage.

The newlyweds spent a 2-week honeymoon in Maine and Canada and are living at 345 W. Main St., Cheshire, Conn.

Kathleen Halstead has changed her name — but not by much. On June 5 she became the bride of Mark Hall of Duncan, Okla., so she is now Mrs. Hall instead of Miss Halstead.

Mark attends Illinois College of Optometry since completing four years at Oklahoma State University. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Hall of Duncan.

Kathleen is the daughter of Mrs. C. Halstead of Mount Prospect and the late Mr. Halstead. She is a graduate of Forest View High School and Northwestern University School of Dental Hygiene and is a dental hygienist in Evanston.

After a week's honeymoon at Mackinac Island, Mich., the newlyweds are living at 1121 Church St., Evanston.

THEY EXCHANGED vows and rings at one o'clock in Elmwood Park Presbyterian Church and then received 200 guests at a party at Brookwood Country Club.

Shades of blue, pink and purple accented the bridal white for the double ring ceremony. The bride wore a traditional gown of imported organza overlaid with Venise lace, a mantilla edged with matching lace and a headpiece of fresh flowers. The headpiece and the bridal bouquet were composed of the same flowers: pink Garnet roses, baby's breath, lilies of the valley and purple bachelor buttons. Kathleen's gown was styled with a square neckline, Empire waist, Dresden sleeves and a chapel train all accented with the lace.

The altar of the church was decked with purple, blue and white mums for the nuptials.

Mrs. Jacquelyn DiNolfo, the bride's sister, came from Scottsville, N. Y., to be her maid of honor. She wore a two-toned gown with a blue cotton voile top, accented with a white collar and cuffs, and a white butterfly print skirt. She carried a white reed basket filled with pink roses, baby's breath, blue mums and purple bachelor buttons.

THERE WERE also five bridesmaids in the procession, all gowned exactly as Mrs. DiNolfo and carrying identical baskets of mixed flowers. The girls included Mrs. Janene Hanna, sister of the groom from Chicago; Mrs. Elaine Gustavson, Northbrook; Mrs. Jody Salome, Algonquin, a cousin of the bride; and Elaine Casper and Pam Schumann, both of Mount Prospect.

The groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Judy Hall of Chicago, was the candlelighter. Tamara DiNolfo, 9, of Scottsville, N. Y., was junior bridesmaid for her aunt's wedding, and Stephen DiNolfo, 5, her brother, was ring bearer.

Kent Hall served as his brother's best man, while Joseph Trupo, Dick Haigland, Rod Schuller, Sandy Costello and Don Greene, all Chicagoans, were ushers.

Mrs. Halstead appeared in a blue ensemble and Mrs. Hall in pink for the wedding festivities. Mrs. Halstead had white Garnet roses in her hair and on her purse; Mrs. Hall had pink Garnets in her hair and on her purse.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hall

Bride Returns To School

Recent newlyweds, Deborah Ann Colosimo and Richard J. White, went back to Macomb, Ill., the campus of Western Illinois University, after their June 12 wedding in Mount Prospect. The bride will complete her senior year there in August, and the groom just earned his degree there in June.

They were married at three o'clock in the afternoon in South Church by the Rev. Paul Sandin. Later there was a reception for the couple at Arlington Park Towers.

Debbie's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony F. Colosimo, 19 N. Emerson St., Mount Prospect. Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald White of Winchester, Ill.

Linda Koeth of Streamwood served as the bride's only attendant, and David White was his brother's best man. Donald Colosimo, brother of the bride, ushered.

FOR HER wedding day, the bride wore an organza gown styled with three vertical rows of Venise lace and satin ribbon from the mandarin collar to the hem of the floor-length skirt. Lace cuffs trimmed the bishop sleeves, and the lace also edged the bride's mantilla veil,

Mr. and Mrs. Richard White which was held in place with an open pillbox. A row of pink daisies accented the front of the Empire gown.

Pale pink roses, stephanotis and white carnations formed the bride's bouquet.

Her maid of honor wore a pale pink chiffon Empire gown trimmed with reembodyed Venise lace, and she carried a cascade of pink carnations, pink roses and stephanotis.

The bride's mother was attired in pale green with beige accessories and the groom's mother in yellow with white accessories. Each had an orchid corsage.

Prospective Members Invited To Luau

Aloha! The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines is planning a luau for all club members and all prospective members, Thursday, July 22, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Richard Funk, 50 W. Kathleen Drive, Des Plaines.

The membership committee, headed by Mrs. Funk, asks those who plan to come to wear Hawaiian attire and bring a pillow.

Guests at the luau will have the opportunity to meet the officers and committee chairmen. They will discuss their committees' activities and answer any questions.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Juniors are invited to attend the luau or contact Mrs. Funk, 824-8230, or Mrs. James Garrard, co-chairman, 287-6403.

Wed In Garden Ceremony

Themes from "Love Story," from "Romeo and Juliet" and from "Born Free" and "Diane" were played by organist Irwin Witte of Palatine for background music during the garden wedding on June 19 of Diane Lee Sietman and Mark Wagener. The couple exchanged vows in a gazebo under a willow tree banked with baskets of orchid, white and pink mums, glads, snapdragons and gypsophilla in the garden of the Norman A. Sietman home in Palatine. Mark is the son of Earl Wagener of Hinsdale.

White doves, a natural woodland grotto and hundreds of floral plantings created a romantic setting for the ceremony and a catered buffet supper for 125 guests.

BRIDESMAIDS Mrs. Sandy McLain of Washington, D.C. and Mrs. Pamela Renkis of Charlottesville, Va., and maid of honor Suzanne Smith preceded Diane through the winding floral lane of her parents' garden.

The groom was attended by his brother James Wagener of Oak Park, the bride's brother Wayne of Mount Prospect, and William Schroeder of Hinsdale.

The Rev. Glenn G. Gumm, formerly of Palatine, performed the rites.

After a short stay at The Abbey at Fontana, Wis., the newlyweds are residing in Naperville, prior to resuming their respective teaching assignments and legal study.

Estee Lauder Rules A Cosmetics Empire

by WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Estee Lauder is a woman of mystery whose misty Viennese-Hungarian background is part of a legend that changes every day — and always for the better. She built up a colossal cosmetic empire with women's products and is about to add a face-lifting cream to her men's line.

She reigns over her empire from a 37th floor Fifth Avenue office she has transformed into a French chateau with a Louis XVI desk, Chinese vases, draperies inspired by the Schoenbrunn Palace in Vienna and walls of handpainted Oriental ricepaper in a color between pale and blue and celadon.

She is a phenomenon of the '50s and '60s, a hard-headed business woman who might lunch one day with the Duchess of Windsor or Princess Grace in her New York town house or entertain the Beautiful people in her Palm Beach home — or her simple little villa on the French Riviera.

SHE WAS ALREADY bidding to succeed the late Helena Rubinstein and Elizabeth Arden as the blonde and blue-eyed queen of the beauty world with multimillion dollar sales of her women's cosmetics. Now her family firm turns out 75 men's products ranging from Aramis after shave to a "muscle soothing soak" and a "bracing body splash." Biographers complain they have difficulties putting together the bits and pieces of her early life and she once told Women's Wear Daily "too many people think I started my business in my kitchen on West End Avenue with a jar of homemade face cream."

Acquaintances say there was a period when she gave away free samples of her products to Hadassah and other club meetings on Long Island to introduce them to the world, but, they quickly add, the truth is she had a superior product which sold itself. Her first product was an all-in-one cream, cleansing oil and herbal pack creme which, according to the Estee Lauder legend, came from formulae in her dermatology minded, beauty-conscious Viennese family. Then came her best-selling Youth - Dew Bath Oil which eventually made her into a lady tycoon.

THE FORMULA apparently came from Dr. John Schatz, her mother's brother who was a Viennese chemist and who, according to the living legend, set up a white laboratory alongside the riding stables of their Flushing, Long Island, home, a luxurious residence that belies any rags to riches gossip.

Her mother was Hungarian-Viennese and as people spread "the legends and myths," the house in Flushing became a palace in Vienna where she entertained royalty, the portraits in the New York townhouse became family portraits and not those that came with the mansion when she bought it four years ago for $600,000 from the Arthur Lehman estate.

She merely smiles at such reports and says only she met her husband, Joseph Lauder, at the family summer cottage in Peekskill, N.Y., when he was either a stockbroker or a silk mill manager. The husband is chairman of the board, their son Leonard A. Lauder is executive vice president and their son Ronald is sales promotion manager.

THEY ALL HAVE offices in the General Motors Building on Fifth Avenue, but the pale "Estee Lauder Blue" of her office is the only one that is reported to have been used to decorate the interior of the celebrated La Scala Opera House in Italy.

Her first big account was in 1948 at Saks Fifth Avenue where she says she was successful in selling because she healed a scar on the face of Marion Coombs, still a cosmetic buyer there, and cleaned up a case of acne for a store executive's niece.

She was a thriving success in the women's field when she turned to the men. It was about 10 years ago, she recalls, that she met Russell Carpenter, then a vice president at I. Magnin's in San Francisco, and whipped him up some personal things. He liked them and suggested she sell them. Five years later came Aramis, described by trade publications as "modern-Oriental" by Mrs. Lauder as "sexy."

"A FRIEND OF MINE used to come over to me at cocktail parties and tell me how much he liked Aramis," she said. "Then one day he said his girl friend liked it so much he divorced his wife and ran off with the girl. It is sexy."

"It used to be years ago that the stuff they sold for men in barbershops and other places either was sickeningly sweet or smelled so high of chemicals that you didn't know whether to flush it down the toilet to disinfect it or rub some on your face."

Her method of attack is simple — she uses superior firepower to overwhelm her opposition. In the first "launch," as such attacks are called in the trade, she drowned them with 40 to 50 products ranging from cologne to bronzing gel through all-weather hand creams to eye pads to soothe tired eyes.

THE SECOND BROADSIDE was Aramis 800 — a program worked out by dermatologists to improve and not just beautify the skin — scalp rubs, hair conditioners, daily shampoos for dry hair, daily shampoos for oily hair, granular face scrubs to lift out ground-in dirt, hygienic body sprays, etc., etc.

More recently there has been another broadside — her "Body Fitness Plan." There is a muscle soothing soak combining seaweed derivatives and chemicals based on the old spas of Austria, a body fitness rub, a body shampoo complete with sponge, etc.

Next, she says, the face lifting cream for men — and a lot of other things.

A Paddock Review

Outcry, Somewhat A Disappointment

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Tennessee Williams' new play, "Outcry," presently premiering at the Ivanhoe Theatre in Chicago, stirs up mixed feelings.

When the two-act play does end, you can't say you didn't like it. Yet, you can't say you enjoyed it either. It is simply an experience, one that you would like neither to repeat nor forego.

"Outcry" is synonymous with emotion born of life's tragedies, so characteristic of Williams' plays. Specifically, the play dips into the broken lives of two "losers" of the human race.

HOWEVER, TO attempt to grasp an actual theme or message behind the play is impossible. Those who will try to find a cause for Williams will leave the theater quite confused and very disappointed. It is not meant to be entirely understood.

Even so, one must pay constant attention or be lost. The play is exceedingly complex. Particularly in the first act, it is difficult to get a foothold in the play, to grasp the relationship of the two characters on stage and piece together their pathetic situation.

The dialog is poetic with cries of bitterness and vindictiveness and always undertones of personal failure.

But what lends a great deal of emotion also leaves the audience with a lack of identification, making them grow tired of listening.

"OUTCRY IS A play within a play, two actors staging their own performance."

A brother and sister who have been reduced to the bare threads of respect clinging to each other because they have only each other.

Clare even more than her brother shows the effects of being an outcast. Her appearance is harsh and unkempt. Her favorite world is one of fantasy and pretentious grandeur.

The intra-play is about a house loaded with haunting mementos of their father who stabbed and murdered their mother. They are prisoners of the crime, afraid to leave the scene, forsaken by an uncaring world.

No two actors could do a better job with Williams' new play than the two who are cast, Eileen Herlie and Donald Madden.

IF ONE becomes entangled with the dialog, it is still worth focusing attention on the manner in which it is spoken by the two. Neither is there any let down in the direction of the play.

Intensity and emotion are present in Tennessee Williams' new play. However, "Outcry" just doesn't click.

A June Wedding In Ohio

Ohio is really home to Don Shafer, even though his family, the Donald S. Shafers, reside in Palatine. Don earned his bachelor's degree at Ohio University at Athens and is completing work this summer on his master's there. Meanwhile, he recently took an Ohio girl, Sue Topper of Ashland, as his bride, and they will live in Oxford, Ohio, in fall.

Don will be teaching at Ross High School nearby at Hamilton, and Sue will do graduate work at Miami University, Oxford.

The couple's double ring wedding took place June 12 in the First Presbyterian Church of Ashland. Sue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Topper, was given in marriage by her uncle, Ben McClain of Ashland.

She wore a Victorian gown of ivory organza fashioned with a high neckline, short puffed sleeves and yoke all edged in ruffled English lace. A wide band of lace trimmed the front of the skirt, and back of the skirt swept into a chapel train.

SUE'S MANTILLA veil was bordered with English lace and flowed from a headpiece of baby's breath. She carried a nosegay of white and orange rosebuds with baby's breath.

Her four bridal attendants wore apricot linen sheath gowns accented with contrasting floral trim and carried matching nosegays of orange roses and baby's breath.

Celia McClain, a cousin, was maid of honor. Two other cousins, Patty McClain and Jill Akermann, both of Ashland, and the groom's sister, Ann Shafer, were bridesmaids.

The groom chose his father as his best man, and ushers were Dave Walker and Terry Zuercher, both of Shelby, Ohio, and Jeff Norris, the groom's cousin, of Coshocton, Ohio.

A RECEPTION for 275 guests followed in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. McClain, the bride's aunt, received in a rose silk shantung dress, and Mrs. Shafer wore mint green silk shantung. Each had a cymbidium corsage.

Don and Sue honeymooned in Colorado for two weeks and are back in Ashland until school begins. Sue taught grade school last year at Shelby, Ohio, after graduation from Ashland College. Don will teach chemistry and physics at Ross High in fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Shafer

Jill Wrede Weds College Classmate

Ohio University students Jill Wrede of Mount Prospect and Peter Elwell of Rochester, N. Y., were married June 28 in a monochromatic setting that featured all of the bride's and groom's mothers gowned in aqua. The afternoon rites were performed by Dr. Charles Jarvis in the First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights.

Jill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Wrede of 801 S. See-Gwun. She wore a wedding gown of white silk faille appliqued with reembodyed Alencon lace which was studded with seed pearls. It featured a scoop neckline, bell sleeves and a court train.

Jill's veil and headpiece were designed by her aunt, Mrs. Howard Moss of Baltimore. The headpiece was also of Alencon lace and held the full-length silk illusion veil in place. Jill carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, roses, carnations and stephanotis.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Elwell of Rochester.

HIS SISTER, Mrs. Alan Cowles of Rochester, and the bride's sister, Mrs. E. A. Fagerstrom of Park Ridge were Jill's bridesmaids, and her friend, Mrs. Randy Laws of State College, Pa., was matron of honor. The girls all wore aqua violet gowns embellished with daisies and featuring scoop neckline, bishop sleeves and Empire waistlines. They carried white baskets of white and tinted daisies with gypsophila, and they wore aqua picture hats.

Mrs. Wrede's aqua ensemble was in

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Elwell chose aqua chiffon and silk worsted. Each had a white cymbidium corsage.

Tim Pluene of Rochester was best silk worsted with pearl trim. Mrs. Elwell man, and ushers were Nick O'Neill of Rochester and Alan Cowles of Rochester.

After the double ring ceremony there was a reception at Howard Johnson's in Palatine for 115 guests.

The couple had a two-week honeymoon in the west before settling in Athens, Ohio, to complete their senior year at Ohio U.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Something you wrote about sprouts on potatoes being toxic has stuck with me. If this is so, why do stores sell potatoes that have sprouts on them? I'm thoroughly confused. —Mrs. A. C.

I've checked back, right to the authority who wrote the original warning, Thomas Renner of Wyeth International. He reiterates that only the tuber of the potato is edible and says that eating any of the rest of the plant "may cause mental confusion, cardiac depression and clammy skin." He goes on to say "even the greenish spots on the tuber are deemed toxic, as are the shoots, sprouts, leaves and stems." The poison actually is called solanine and rather ironically has a history of use as an agricultural insecticide. One can't expect grocers to cut off the sprouts, but it does seem the authorities ought to insist on signs being posted at the potato rack, giving customers instructions to cut away all sprouts and greenish spots

Dear Dorothy: The drawers of two old mahogany chests have a very musty odor. I've tried mothballs and a disinfectant spray, both of which just seemed to add their odors to the one already present. Do you have any suggestions? —Eleanor Jacques.

Many report that a whole nutmeg or a pomander left in a closed drawer will change any odor to a fragrant one. I swear by the old faithful, activated charcoal. I think leaving a dish of it in a drawer for two or three days should absorb this type of odor easily.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Another Colorful Season Ahead

More Males Join Fashion Revolution

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Since male fashions have tuned into color instead of plain black and white, the display windows of men's ready-to-wear stores have become sidewalk attractions.

Many of the women pause to look the longest... envious for the first time.

Actually the initial revolution in men's clothing has already been accomplished. The present outlook and immediate future continue to spell out the same message with a few innovations.

It will be another season of rainbow shirts, wide prominent ties and notched lapels on suit jackets.

But the ushering in of the new is still deeply tied to the past.

The most important business suit remains the single-breasted two-button contoured model, a silhouette first recognizable in the 1930s. The double-breasted suit is beginning to take a back seat.

KNICKERS and argyle sweaters are a flashback to the 1920s. Parkas and stadium coats, presently in vogue for men, were classics of the year beginning with 1940.

Even the wide tie can't boast of a '70s beginning. The 1940s also ushered in the bulky knotted ties, shirts with spread collars and hats with wide brims.

Yet there is more to reviving fashion. Clothing ideas borrowed from the past are redesigned in better fabrics, colors and cuts. They are coupled with the modern approaches of wide belts, shirt suits and country suits.

However, even with the emphasis on flair in dressing, the real costume party is over. Attention-demanding clothes for men are being replaced by the sophisticated, more classic look.

TIES IN the past few years have been noted for design ingenuity. This fall they run the gamut from simple, textured solid colors to tapestry effects, stripes of patterns, bold geometrics and free form designs.

New fall shirts will feature more white in their ground colors, their stripes and geometric patterns. Jacquards, wallpaper resembling patterns and British stripings are also in the shirt trend.

Knits are not new but they will be present in even greater numbers. They've been tested for the past couple of seasons and accepted. They will be available in a greater variety of styles and colors.

Both casual and business suits will feature fancy belted backs, belts, gussets and inverted pleats. Many pockets will be flapped, pleated and buttoned.

SLACKS FIT into many current trends.

With the popularity of boots, there are tapered boot pants and jodhpurs designed to be worn with them. In the nostalgic mood, straight legs similar to the old Oxford Bags will be seen.

However, flairs still remain the single most important model. Even middle aged men are beginning to wear them.

The new fashion color is aubergine, a hue that ranges from deep maroon to plum. Tans and lighter browns will be prominent too as colors generally will take on a lighter cast. Camel will be outstanding in fall topcoats.

Overplaids, giant herringbones, box and geometric patterns will also be prevalent in men's fashions.

The decade of independence for men has been firmly established, and new recruits are joining the ranks at an incredible rate. Today's men are dressing to please themselves.

A SPORTSUIT to be worn in the city as well as the country. Wide tie, long pointed collar shirt and big hat are perfect accessories.

THE SHAPED SUIT is still an undisputed star of serious menswear. This style has three flapped patch pockets with leather binding.

A RETURN TO classic styles is predicted for men this fall. The slacks are knit and worn inside tall leather boots.

AN ART PATTERN popular in the 1930s is coming back in loose-knit sweaters of the 1970s. Patterned socks are also an emerging fashion trend.

Queen Has Her Own Beauty Secrets

by MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI)—Royal feet get tired too, perhaps more so than the tootsies of a lot of commoners.

So when you consider the hours that Queen Elizabeth II must stand in reception lines or reviewing troops and the like as part of her royal duties, it is no wonder that the queen sees her chiropodist once a week.

No wonder, too, that her shoes are hand-made to fit her perfectly. On state occasions, such as banquets and balls, Elizabeth wears specially-made sandals, hidden by her lavish, floor-sweeping gowns. The sandals have two-inch high soles of soft, plasticized material and are made slightly larger all around than the queen's foot so they support her well.

The shoes are held firmly in place with silk ribbons strapping around the ankles. Thus, the queen can walk and make her stately procession up and down stairs secure in the knowledge it's impossible for her to twist her ankle or tread on the hem of a gown.

THIS IS ONE of the busiest times of the year for the British monarch. Every day now, save for a few Sundays, the queen has state, official, public or social engagements. The pages of her blue leather-backed diary on the desk at Buckingham Palace are filled to capacity until the royal family can at last leave London early in August for the annual holiday at Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

Yet, with all the hundreds of hands she shakes, the miles she walks, the hours she stands, the signatures written, the queen still appears fresh and relaxed and interested in everything until the end of a long day comes.

She has morning tea in her bedroom at 7:30 and is seldom in bed before midnight. Her makeup stays smoothly on because it is applied carefully, fixed with damp cotton-wool, and then powdered lightly. In summer, or in breezy weather, the queen has a special protective cream for her foundation.

TO AVOID FATIGUE, she has trained herself to stand with a slightly foot-forward stance, putting her weight first on one foot, then the other but never obviously, feet kept slightly apart all the time. She walks tall, from the hips, and uses her feet precisely.

Most of her clothes are cut loosely to avoid strain, with armholes and sleeves a bit wider than fashion may command in order to make handshaking and writing easier.

How does she keep up her energy? One way — while driving from one engagement to another in the royal limousine — is to eat a few pieces of energy-giving barley sugar. Her diet is chosen carefully, with plenty of proteins, salads and fruits. Starches and sweets are restricted so that her weight remains stable.

Elizabeth also insists on a brisk daily walk, usually exercising her Corgi dogs. The windows of any room she uses are always open, except when there's heavy fog.

AAUW Hosts Second Coffee

Arlington Heights Branch of the American Association of University Women will hold its second in a series of summer coffees for prospective members next Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Robert Born, 1316 N. Yale.

Study group representatives and members of the board will be present to explain Branch activities and programs for the coming year and to answer questions.

The third and final summer coffee will be held Wednesday, Aug. 25, at the home of Mrs. Charles Mitchell, 1606 N. Had-dow.

Membership in AAUW is open to any graduate of an accredited college or university that is registered with the Association office in Washington, D.C.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Branch membership includes residents of Arlington Heights, Barrington, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Long Grove, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

Especially for the Family

"Give me 5 weeks with you and I promise you will speak Spanish."

I can promise this because I have done this with other Americans. This is not an advertising claim. This is true.

My secret? I do not bother you with lists of verbs and rules of grammar.

Instead, I start you off with simple words.

Habitación. Baño. Then I show you how to build them into simple phrases, ¿Tiene Ud. una habitación con baño?

Why, in a mere 5 weeks of private lessons you will be speaking quite complex sentences.

If you find this hard to believe, I, or one of my colleagues will prove it to you.

Call us and we'll make a date to show you, free, how you can learn to speak another language.

Call us. In five weeks you can speak Spanish.

OAK COMMUNITY COLLEGE APPLICATION FOR TUITION REIMBURSEMENT THE FALL/SPRING OF 1971-72

The Board of Trustees of Junior College District No. 635, County of Cook and State of Illinois (Oakton Community College), will receive applications for reimbursement (charge-back) applications from residents of the college district who desire to attend a recognized Public Junior College in another district to enroll in a program not offered by Oakton Community College, in accordance with the following instructions:

CHARGE-BACK FOR THE FALL/SPRING OF 1971-72

All students who desire a charge-back must file a Letter of Intent and application in the form and manner prescribed by Oakton Community College, not later than 5:00 P.M. thirty calendar days prior to the first day of classes at the college where the student intends to enroll.

Letters of Intent and applications may be filed by mail. If mailed, the envelope must bear a postmark not later than midnight of the thirtieth calendar day prior to the first day of classes at the college that the student desires to attend.

All students previously granted a charge-back for the last school year 1970-71 and/or for the Summer of 1971 must reapply for a charge-back for the Fall/Spring of 1971-72.

Charge-back letters issued for the Fall or Spring Semester of 1971-72 will be valid only for that period. Such charge-back letters will not be valid for the Summer of 1972.

Application forms are available at the Admissions Office, Building No. 3, 7900 North Nagle Avenue, Morton Grove, Illinois 60053. Questions regarding tuition reimbursement and charge-back should be directed to the Admissions Office of Oakton Community College. The telephone number is 967-5120, extension 285.

Norman Samelson Is Appointed As Village Attorney

Norman Samelson, of the law firm Hofert & Samelson, was appointed village attorney for Hanover Park at a special village board meeting Tuesday.

The appointment made by Mayor Richard Baker, who has said he's unable to work with former village attorney William Davies was endorsed by three Republican trustees elected last April. Strong opposition was expressed by trustees David Bugh and James Lewis who wanted Davies retained in the position.

Baker has been trying to fire Davies since last winter. Davies was supported by the majority of trustees until the spring election this year when the three GOP members were seated.

At the meeting's start Lewis insisted the session be adjourned on grounds it was being held improperly. He later said Davies was "good enough" to negotiate a free swimming pool for Hanover Park, $240,000 in other negotiation, and that he is good enough to serve Streamwood and the park district.

"YET, HE'S not good enough to be the attorney for Hanover Park?" Lewis asked.

Lewis compared fee structures charges by both Davies and Samelson saying Samelson charges a $450 retainer and $35 per hour for all work done for the village.

Davies, by comparison, charges a flat rate and no special charges for attending special meetings, or writing ordinances, Lewis said.

Lewis also told of $15,000 Davies received for defending the village in the Pink Mist law suit two years ago and a $500 charge "he never collected" for the litigation against the Metropolitan Sanitary District's sludge farm in Hanover Park.

"Don't forget the bond issues," said a man from the audience, speaking of $43,000 Davies received for the $2.3 million sewage treatment bonds sold this year.

Davies was charged with receiving money above the Chicago Bar Association scale for handling the bond issue. Davies maintained the charge was properly levied.

BUGH SAID trustees agreed that no action would be taken on the appointment while Davies was vacationing in Europe. The Hanover Park village manager's ordinance puts the appointment in the village manager's hands, Bugh added.

Mayor Richard Baker said his position on why Samelson should be appointed in place of Davies had been gone over before and that Lewis had adequate opportunity to meet Samelson.

Baker told Bugh the village manager's powers will not become effective until a manager is hired. Trustee Frank Dalla Valla said the ordinance is not in effect because it was never published in a legal notice.

Following the vote Lewis and Bugh walked out of the meeting but were stopped by citizens who told the two they were elected to represent "not to walk out and give up."

"Get back in there and fight" one woman said.

Samelson, yesterday, said he did not think it appropriate for him to attend Tuesday's session when asked why he was not there.

SAMELSON ATTENDED the Elk Grove Village board meeting Tuesday but added he would not have been in Hanover Park in any case.

Samelson will, however, be at tonight's Hanover Park village board meeting before beginning a one week vacation.

He and his partner, Edward Hofert, also serve Hoffman Estates, the Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors, the Village of Sleepy Hollow in Kane County and the Rosemont Park District.

$150 Damage At Helen Keller

Molotov Cocktails Thrown At School

Two Molotov cocktails were thrown in Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, Tuesday night, causing about $150 damage.

Police report one bomb, a gasoline-filled whiskey bottle, was thrown in the gymnasium. The resulting fire charred a four-foot-square section of floor, and damaged bleacher stands against the gym wall. The second cocktail, also a whiskey bottle, was thrown in a hallway. Two heavy oak doors to a science classroom were charred.

Schaumburg Police Sgt. Robert Hammond, who is investigating, said he suspects juveniles are responsible. Police dusted the areas for fingerprints, said Hammond, but he declined to reveal whether any had been found.

The cocktails were not discovered until about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, when maintenance personnel reported for work in the building, said Joseph Viso, superintendent of buildings and grounds. Because the school building is constructed of nonflammable materials, the fires burned themselves out with no one aware they existed.

Viso said damage was limited to about $50 in material and $100 in labor. But, said Viso, "It could just as well have been a million dollars. It's a frightening thing," he said.

Police said the incident occurred after 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, when the building was locked for the night. There was no indication of forced entry. Police said the culprits could have hidden in the building during the day, waiting for employees to leave.

This is the first case of Molotov cocktails in a Dist. 54 building, said Viso.

Jaycees To Coordinate Parade Here

Schaumburg's first annual Labor Day parade and accompanying day-long activities will be coordinated by the Jaycees it was announced Tuesday.

Festivities will start at noon with a parade in which the Jaycees expect about 30 units to march and at 1 p.m. a number of booths and concession stands will open.

According to Jaycee George Mansfield, who is chairman of this year's event, water fights, the dunk tank and "an honest tug of war with the police" are also expected and an extensive fireworks display will conclude the celebration in early evening.

"Schaumburg has for some time been thinking of getting an annual celebration day started and because Hoffman Estates uses Independence Day we felt that would be out because we certainly do not want to compete with it," commented Mayor Robert O. Atcher following the Jaycees formal announcement at this week's village board meeting.

ESTIMATED COST of the day's activities is $2,000 and funds will be raised by Jaycees ticket sale for a premiere showing at Woodfield Twin Theatre July 29.

Cost of tickets, which will go on sale this Friday, had not been determined as of Tuesday night, but Mansfield stressed that this will be done in the next several days.

Since the twin theatre at the Woodfield Mall will formally open July 30, a premiere is planned for a small number of people being invited by theatre owners but since one theatre holds 1100 and the other has a 600 person capacity, Jaycees feel they can easily produce a nearly sell-out situation.

The film being shown will be "Scandalous John," the latest Disney Studios production and Disneyland characters will visit the theatre to greet guests.

Jaycees plan to saturate the area with publicity on the celebration and will be announcing more about the ticket sale later this week.

Guild Players To Perform At Voguelei

Members of The Guild Players will perform today at 8 p.m. at Voguelei Park in Hoffman Estates Park District's continuing series of summer "concerts."

Free to all residents of the park district and their guests, the performance will provide an additional cultural aspect to the varied summer program.

Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps will perform at the Thursday, July 22 outdoor performance.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators - sometimes men - and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

To Serve Citations

'Police Cadet' Power Play Eyed

Public Safety Committee Chairman Jim Lewis is expected to ask his fellow Hanover Park Village Board members to consider an ordinance that would empower police cadets to serve citations to residents for violation of some village ordinances.

Police cadets serve the Hanover Park Department, Hoffman Estates Police and Schaumburg Police.

During recent public safety committee meetings, Lewis, members of the committee and Chief of Police Sam Polotto have talked about fuller use of the department's three working cadets.

At present the men in all three departments technically in training for eventual full police work, are used as radio operators, and do clerical work within the departments.

Chief Polotto in Hanover Park has been the first to suggest the cadets be used to patrol the village and serve citations to residents violating such ordinances as high weeds, littering, or lawn watering violations.

THE COMMITTEE agreed that this type of patrol by a cadet would free a full-time patrolman to handle more important duties for the village.

Chief Polotto pointed out that the use of cadets to serve village ordinance citations will not extend to traffic patrol. The cadets will serve the department more fully and receive valuable on-the-street training as well, added the chief.

Year end reports submitted by Chief Polotto showed that local ordinance citations and noncriminal complaints handled by the Hanover Park Police Department provide for a major part of the department's work load.

These complaints together with the village's population have grown from a total of 2,391 violations in 1967 to last year's 3,179 violations.

Of the local ordinance citations issued 74 were for junk and weed violations, 53 for watering on restricted days, and 127 for other minor violations.

IN THE PAST when residents have complained about weed and open garage violations they feel should have been enforced, the board explained that a lack of manpower on the department makes it difficult to assign a patrolman to such patrol.

In Hoffman Estates Chief of Police John O'Connell said the two cadets that work within his department provide a valuable addition to the force. They do not issue citations. The cadets serve as radio operators and do clerical work but have other duties as well.

The chief said the men conduct tours of the department, and act as a public relations force working with residents of the community and the youth of the area.

The cadets conduct bike registrations and have developed a working relationship with youngsters that introduces them to a patrolman's role in the community, he said.

In Schaumburg the cadet program was started six months ago. The one cadet on the force is being trained to do radio work at present and has already proven a good addition to the department.

Squad Slams Parked Auto—But No Ticket

Patrolman Allan Dvorak of Hoffman Estates will not be telling any tales about "the one that got away" Monday night.

But the driver of a 1967 brown Chevrolet can do some tail talking about how he was not charged with speeding or disobeying a stop sign.

Dvorak was chasing the driver of the brown car Monday night, his flashing red lights going full tilt and his siren blasting. He had seen the driver turn onto Illinois Boulevard off of Geronimo, without stopping at a stop sign, and speed down the street.

When Dvorak took up the chase, the other driver did not stop, and Dvorak prepared to radio for help. As he reached for his microphone to call the station, his squad car drifted to the right, and struck a parked car owned by J. Harrington Cahoon of 101 Geronimo. The brown car got away.

Dvorak suffered a jammed wrist and thumb and bruises in the collision. He was treated and released from Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, and returned to duty Tuesday.

But the driver of the brown car wasn't the only one to come out on top after the incident. Dvorak did not get a ticket either.

Downy Predicts Board Will Appeal Decision

Hoffman Estates will appeal the Cook County Circuit Court decision ordering the village to allow the construction of 1,352 apartments north of Palatine Road, Mayor Frederick Downy predicted this week.

Downy said he rarely anticipates in advance what the board of trustees will decide but in this instance he is fairly certain.

The appeal will be against the decision Judge Herbert Ellis made last month, that the apartments be allowed on 78 acres between Palatine and Bradwell roads, and just east of Palatine and Barrington Township's boundary line.

Hoffman Estates officials, last August, zoned the property from a commercial classification to a single family home classification after the owners petitioned for zoning to allow 27 four-story apartment buildings there.

The owners, which include Chicago Democratic Aldermen Thomas Keane, and Paul Wigoda filed suit against the village last November.

Atty. Robert Haskins, arguing the owners' case, said property directly east of the 78 acres is zoned for apartments setting the character of the area.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said there isn't enough water or fire protection facilities in the area to serve a 1,352 apartment development.

Ellis, in his final ruling, said the village cannot deny the right to build apartments, but does not have to allow their construction until satisfied utility and fire protection services are adequately provided.

Committee Seeks Tollway Access At Roselle Road

Efforts to gain an access to the Northwest Tollway at Roselle Road continue through a committee of officials from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Harper Junior College.

The group, chaired by Joe Zgonina, Schaumburg village engineer, met this week at Harper to review questions for a preliminary survey of area residents aimed at determining the need for the Roselle Road ramps.

Members of the committee are to review the proposed questions and report back in September when the formal questionnaire will be formulated, Zgonina said yesterday.

There's no pressure to work too fast, he added, because the Illinois Tollway Commission (ITC) has said it won't consider any new accesses in the area until traffic patterns are stabilized after improvements being made to major roads nearby.

Improvements on Golf and Higgins roads are to be completed within the next year so the committee feels it has at least that long to compile information for consideration by ITC officials, Zgonina said.

Others attending the meeting Monday included Harry Mammoth of Schaumburg, Richard Regan and Roger Bergstrom of Hoffman Estates and John Lucas of Harper Junior College. Representatives from Inverness and Roselle who attended previous meetings did not attend this session.

Automated Equipment, Supervisors Busy

Phone Workers Walk Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again..."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said

Bill Grinell, maintenance and installation superintendent, The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 500,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

School Dist. Will Give Financial Aid

Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 will help the Hanover Park District pay for installation of playground equipment at the Anne Fox School site park development planned by the park district.

The building and sites committee of the school board agreed Monday night to allow expenditures up to $1,000 or $1,100 for the playground installations, roughly the same amount as allowed for cooperative park developments at other school sites.

The school district contribution was debated at the committee meeting, as Sherwood (Jerry) Spatz, board member, urged committeemen to consider a larger amount. Total anticipated cost of the park development is $151,000, with the playground equipment estimated at $5,000 to $6,000. Although Spatz lives in Hanover Park, he said he was not seeking more money for that reason.

Park plans such as the one developed for Fox School, much more ambitious than any others in the school district, should be encouraged, said Spatz. He said he would urge a larger donation, up to half the playground equipment cost, for a similar plan anywhere else in the school district.

JOSEPH VISO, superintendent of buildings and grounds, and committee members pointed out Dist. 54 has no control over the type of equipment the park district may purchase. Viso said the school district buys one of the finest brands of equipment available, but restricts itself to basic, non-luxury items, and saves money by doing its own installation. The park district could be selecting much more costly items, and likely will pay for installation, he said.

Wayne Schaible, schools superintendent, said administrators would discuss the matter with park district officials, and if they intend to seek a larger school contribution Schaible will bring the question back to the committee.

In other action, the committee agreed to recommend to the board purchase of a new ¾-ton pickup truck and a replacement body and chassis for another ¾-ton pickup truck. Total cost of the truck and replacement parts will be about $7,000, said Viso, who recommended the purchases.

MRS. DIANNE HART, committee chairman, reported negotiations with Campanelli Brothers, planners of a new development proposed for east of Schaumburg High School, resulted in the offer of a 7.4-acre school site donation and $50-per-unit cash contribution to the school district.

The development is to have approximately 500 quadronium units, plus single family homes, and is expected to produce about 250 children, she said.

According to guidelines for developer contributions, Campanelli would have been asked for only three acres, valued at $20,000 per acre, said Mrs. Hart. Because the firm is giving 4.4 extra acres, the school district is accepting a cash contribution lower than the guidelines provide.

The committee reviewed preliminary plans for a 12-room elementary school on a site donated by Kaufman and Broad. No action was taken.

Viso reported on the district's summer maintenance program, which he said is "progressing very well."

Committee members reported on their progress in gathering information on zoning in the various communities in the district, for use in preparing a school district master plan.

Watering Restrictions Are Put Into Effect Here

Restrictions on the watering of lawns, shrubs and gardens in Hanover Park were put into effect Tuesday in an ordinance passed at a special village board meeting.

The restriction permits watering from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. only on two assigned days a week.

Watering will be allowed in Logmeadows, Longmeadows North and Northgate subdivisions on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

All areas of Hanover Park south of Devon Avenue, the Hanover Highlands subdivision and the area southwest of Barrington Road and Park Avenue will be allowed to water on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Hanover Gardens subdivision and homes north west of Barrington Road and Park Avenue will be allowed to water on Tuesday and Friday.

No watering will be allowed at any time on Sundays.

Persons with newly sodded or newly seeded lawns may apply to the village water department for special permits to sprinkle in addition to the assigned hours.

Fines to persons in violation of the ordinance will be $15 for a first offense, $75 for a second offense and $150 for each offense thereafter.

Residents at the meeting, complaining about the restrictions, were told the problem causing the restriction is a lack of water storage facilities, not a lack of water, and the restrictions are needed for fire protection purposes.

Trustee Frank Dalla Valle said the problem will be solved after an engineering study is completed telling where an additional water storage facility can best be located.

The trustees agreed the ordinance will be reviewed at the Aug. 19 village board meeting over the objection of Trustee James Lewis who said it should be reviewed on a weekly basis.

Fire Alarms Are Up This Year

During the first six months of 1971, the number of fire alarms received increased by 100 over the alarms recorded in the same period in 1970, Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamson reported this week.

Last month, fire department personnel responded to 16 fire calls including four residential, nine brush and three appliance blazes.

The department answered 75 ambulance calls in June which included 40 regular ambulance requests, six inhalator and 14 special duty calls.

Trustees formally approved an ordinance allowing for financing $150,469 in new fire equipment coming into the department.

A pumper has already been delivered and a ladder is due in October followed by a rescue truck scheduled to arrive within two to three months according to Abrahamson.

The equipment was procured primarily to equip a second village fire station planned for construction on a donated site planned for deeding over to the village by J. Emil Anderson & Sons just west of Woodfield Mall.

Originally it was planned that the new station be constructed and operating prior to the Woodfield Mall opening. Delays have arisen and the police and fire committee is only ready now to announce selection of an architect.

Until the second station is up and operating, the equipment will be stored at the Schaumburg Road fire station.

YMCA Opens Fitness Week

Fitness and relaxation for men are the aims of a special four day program at Camp Edwards of the Elgin YMCA in East Troy, Wis., Sept. 17-20.

Or, participants in the Camp Edwards Executive Fitness Week can come for just the weekend of Sept. 18 to 19.

Planned by the Elgin YMCA physical department, the program is open to any adult male who wants to rest and enjoy the facilities at Camp Edwards.

Participants will stay at the new Martin F. Runge Memorial Leadership Lodge on the camp grounds.

"Even though we are calling it an executive fitness week, the program is available to men from any line of work," says James Klever, Elgin YMCA physical director.

Klever explained it is important for men to be able to have a retreat away from work and everyday stress and strain, "as important as a program of good, balanced meals and exercise."

"Relaxation in a quiet and peaceful environment can do a lot for physical fitness," Klever added.

Each morning during the fitness week participants will engage in a physical fitness class program which includes jogging, calisthenics and swimming.

"THEIR SCHEDULE will be their own with the exception of the exercise class and certain recreational activities, such as swimming and archery."

Other activities include sailing, water skiing, canoeing, fishing, softball and volleyball.

"There are several excellent golf courses in the area also," Klever said.

Massage service will also be available to the participants in the program.

Staff at Camp Edwards will include Dennis Johnson, camp director, Merv Bennett, Elgin YMCA Health Club Director and Klever.

For more information, contact Klever at the Elgin YMCA, 695-1100.

Hospital Day Care Center Must Curtail Services

by KAREN RUGEN
Today, mothers working at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village don't worry about their children during the day. In September, they may have to.

For five years, female medical center employees have been using the day care center at the hospital as a baby-sitting service for their children between the ages of 2 and 5. On Sept. 1, the center is scheduled to close.

"The fees we charge for the center don't come close to the $10,000 a year it costs us to operate the center," said William Shields, administrative assistant for supportive services and director of the center.

Current fees are $3 a day for one child and $4.50 a day for two. Shields said it costs the hospital $21 a week per child to operate the center that is open Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. But cost is not the major reason for closing the center, according to Shields. The center will become part of the hospital's cafeteria when part of a hospital expansion program begins in the fall. "The cafeteria is much too small," explained Shields. "We opened it with a staff of 174 and now we have more than 1,000."

"The only vacant space is the basement of the new addition scheduled to begin in the fall," said Shields. "According to the law, a day care center must be on the ground floor. It would now cost us $56,000 to build a new center, and we just don't have the money."

THE PARENTS OF 24 children who currently attend the center will have to make other baby-sitting arrangements and so will other Northwest suburban parents now on vacation who had planned to use the facilities of the center, which can take up to 40 children a day in two shifts, in the fall.

"We are trying not to have the center closed," said Maria Fernandez, a full-time nurse at the hospital. "We are starting a list of names of employees who don't want the center to be closed. We are then going to talk to hospital officials." Mrs. Fernandez said the list of names would probably not be ready until August since many mothers are now on summer vacations.

Mrs. Fernandez, a Bensenville resident, has two children. John, 5, currently attends the Day Care Center. She had hoped that Carla, now 18 months, would use the facilities as soon as she was two.

"The hospital has been providing a marvelous service for us. Our children are right there with us and it is relaxing to know that they are getting the best care," said Mrs. Fernandez, who has been using the center for 3½ years. "If we have to look for professional baby-sitters, we will never be to work on time. Most services don't start until 7 a.m."

Karen Green, an X-ray technician, is also worried about what will happen in the fall. She has been working at the hospital for seven months and her two children attend the day care center.

"I APPLIED for part-time work at the area hospital, but I took full-time because of the center and a place to put the kids," said Mrs. Green, a Hoffman Estates resident. "The kids have made a lot of friends there. In fact, I feel guilty when I take a day off because I am afraid the kids will miss something."

"If I have to go through what I did during the first month I worked when I used baby-sitters and not the center, I'll quit," she said.

Mrs. Green and Iris Sizemore, a full-time X-ray technician with two children at the center, both hope that Mary Shallcross, a baby-sitter at the center, will take care of their children in September.

"I'm just hoping for that or I will have to send them to a nursery school," said Mrs. Sizemore of Schaumburg. "I'm not going to stop working — that's a fact."

Mrs. Shallcross, mother of 11 children, has been working at the center since it opened in June of 1966. She said yesterday that she has applied for a state license to hold a day care center in her home, which could take care of eight children. She said she has a license in the past, and hopes to hear from the state this week.

"I FEEL VERY nostalgic about the center," Mrs. Shallcross said. "I don't know if I could do anything else but take care of children."

Taking care of the children has been her job along with one other full-time and a part-time baby-sitter. "We are not running a school," Shields said. "But we do have to keep the children busy because little children can get bored in half an hour."

Each day, the children in the center's sunlit room play games — by themselves or with other children. In good weather, they can play outside on the playground equipment set up on the hospital lawn. Or they can ride the tricycles the hospital provides. Between play times are snack times and a hot lunch from the hospital cafeteria. And each child is required to take a daily nap.

"The kids love it," said Shields. "They get discipline, entertainment and love. If a child needs a little cuddling, he gets it. But that's not molly-coddling."

The center opened with the hospital to attract mothers who otherwise would not be able to work. Today as well as when it opened, the center is one of the few day care facilities in the area provided directly for employees by industry.

According to Shields, the need for the center which is available to both full and part-time help is not as great now as it was five years ago. He said he does not think the hospital will lose staff because of the center closing.

Mothers won't be the only ones who will miss the center. Shields, who has six children of his own, is sad to lose his "hospital family."

"I go down and play with the kids every day," he said. "No two kids are alike. They all have their own personalities," he said.

But still the center must close, according to hospital officials. "The center answered a need for a few individuals and some need for the hospital," Shields said. "But you have to weigh all the needs of the hospital and the result was tilted."

New Bomb Scare At Jewel Store

After two months without a bomb scare, Schaumburg police received one this week.

What apparently was a young male called police at 4:05 p.m. Monday and said "There is a bomb in the Jewel."

Two squad cars and fire department equipment were dispatched to the Jewel food store at Weathersfield Commons. The store was evacuated and firemen and policemen searched the store, finding nothing. Employees and customers then were allowed to return to the building.

Slightly more than two months ago, May 6, the same store was the target of a similar bomb threat, phoned into the store. Another store at the center, and a private home also received threats, all three within two hours and 15 minutes. Police attributed those calls to juvenile pranksters.

Four months ago, the W. T. Grant store at Golf-Rose Plaza also was the victim of a bombthreat, this one in a note found in a stock room.

Detour May End Jam On Higgins

The traffic jams on Higgins Road in Elk Grove Village caused by construction may be alleviated this week when village officials post detour signs to reroute traffic onto Oakton Street.

The signs, which will reroute both east-bound and west-bound traffic from Higgins Road to Oakton, are now being fabricated and will be ready later this week, Village Manager Charles Willis reported to the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees Tuesday night.

Several trustees expressed reservations about the detour, which will send through traffic down predominantly residential Oakton, possibly causing other problems.

Police Chief Harry Jenkins said a police officer will be stationed at Arlington Heights Road and Oakton Street during rush hour to control traffic.

Trustee Edward Kenna said, "If the cure is worse than the disease, we'll stop the cure," but added he felt something had to be done about congestion in the area.

Earlier this month, the trustees directed Willis and Jenkins to find some solution to the traffic problem in the area because of the difficulty of moving emergency vehicles in the area to serve the industrial park north of Higgins Road.

The construction on Higgins is being done by the state and is scheduled to be completed by early fall.

Football Sign-Up To Be On Saturday

Final registration for Hanover Park Boys Junior Tackle Football for the 1971 season will be held this Saturday between 10 A.M. and 4 P.M. in the mall at the Park-N-Shop Shopping Center on Barrington Road in Hanover Park.

According to Harry Vosburg of the Football Association each boy who plans to play must be present at registration for weigh-in and he must be accompanied by at least one parent or legal guardian. Birth certificates or baptismal certificates will be required as proof of age. Boys must be between 8 and 14 years old to be eligible to play in the Junior League.

Registration fee is $15 for the first boy in a family and $10 for each additional family members.

Board Names Stukas And Zimmerman Prosecutors

Two new prosecutors, William Stukas and Charles Zimmerman, have been appointed in Hoffman Estates curbing an anticipated controversy over who will get the jobs.

It's proposed the men receive $100 monthly for representing Hoffman Estates in the prosecution of traffic citations and other minor crimes charged by Hoffman Estates police.

Both men are Hoffman Estates residents. They'll replace James Hamill, a resident of Palatine who has resigned, and John Kelley of Schaumburg.

LAST YEAR, the board of trustees unanimously held out against approving the appointments of Kelley and Hamill on grounds the job should go to local men.

The trustees, eventually gave in to Downey whose position was that if the prosecutors are doing a good job it doesn't make any difference where they reside.

The conflict was anticipated again this year but did not surface. After making the appointment Downey said only that he'd have no comment for the press concerning his feelings.

Zimmerman lives with his family in Winston Knolls and adds to a growing list of residents from the subdivision located northeast of Algonquin and Elia roads now serving in official capacities in Hoffman Estates.

Stukas, who resides with his family in central Hoffman Estates, practices law in Hanover Park.

Demand 'Acceptable' Written Form

Local Police Unanimously Vote To Accept Wage Offer

Wheeling policemen have moved a step closer to reaching a final agreement with the village for the new fiscal year.

The policemen, members of the local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), voted unanimously Tuesday to accept the wage and fringe benefits offered them last week by the village board.

However, the policemen said they would not give final approval to the village offer until they receive it in an "acceptable" written form, according to Det. William Hoos, president of the local CCPA chapter. He refused to say if the union will demand a formal contract.

A DISPUTE OVER the form of acceptable agreement was one of the key issues in the strike that took Wheeling policemen off their jobs for 12 days last summer.

The policemen had sought a formal contract with the village and recognition of the CCPA as their bargaining agent. The strike ended with a compromise in which the village agreed to "recognize duly-selected representatives of the majority" of the policemen but not the CCPA itself. The village also agreed to work with police to get a state law which would permit the village to recognize the police union.

Hoos said the union is still pressing for a contract with the village, but he said the final form of an agreement will develop in discussions between acting Village Mgr. George Passolt and himself.

"I HAVE TALKED with Passolt about this," Hoos said, "and he explained the directions he received from the village board and I explained the mandate I have from our membership."

Hoos said he and Passolt would work out the wording of an agreement. "This will then have to be approved by our membership, and, I imagine, by the village board," Hoos said.

At a board meeting Monday night, trustee Michael Valenza, head of the board's finance committee and its chief negotiator, told Passolt to draw up a "joint statement that would be binding on the village and the police," based on last week's agreement.

Although there was no formal vote, trustee John Koepfen told Valenza, "I think the rest of the board agrees with you," and other members indicated they favored such a joint statement.

Valenza also told Passolt and Village Atty. Paul Hamer to work for passage of state legislation that would permit the village to sign a contract with the CCPA. Last summer, the board said it did not have legal authority to do this.

A BILL THAT would have authorized collective bargaining with police failed to pass in the recent session of the legislature, Valenza said, but he added it is still possible the village would agree to a contract with the police — if Hamer can find some legal way of doing it.

Last week CCPA representatives gave the village board copies of contracts police have with five other suburban communities. Valenza said Hamer is still studying them.

At least until Hamer gives an opinion, Valenza said a "joint statement" would serve in place of a contract. However, Hoos would not say if this would be acceptable to police.

Board Denies Change In Zoning To 2 Restaurants

The Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals unanimously denied a request for zoning changes for the Burger Chef and Rix Roast Beef restaurants on Dundee Road at a hearing Tuesday.

Refusal to grant the changes, if upheld by the Wheeling Village Board, may cause continued problems for the property owners, Burger Chef Systems, Inc.

The owners had sought a zoning change from B-3, which allows the operation of sit-down, dinner-type restaurants, to B-4, service business district zoning, with a special use permit to operate a drive-in restaurant.

The current B-3 zoning forbids the restaurant operators from operating a carry-out type restaurant. It requires all food purchased to be eaten inside the buildings.

This zoning has caused difficulties to Burger Chef Systems, Inc., since it was granted more than two years ago.

THE RIX ROAST Beef establishment, at 41 W. Dundee Rd., although completed over a year ago, never opened because no one was willing to take the franchise.

In addition, an attorney for the property owners said at Tuesday's hearing the operator of the Burger Chef at 43 W. Dundee Rd., will not operate the restaurant after August if the zoning change is not granted because of the difficulties with the B-3 zoning.

Attorneys for the property owners said the zoning change has been requested because the restaurants cannot survive if customers are forbidden to eat in their cars. They said the two buildings are a credit to the village and required a $300,000 outlay by the company when they were constructed. None of the attorneys were able to explain why the B-3 zoning was requested in the first place.

Zoning board chairman Douglas Cargill said the two restaurants "caused a furor in the village" when they were built. He added, however, that he is not "anti-restaurant."

In apparent reference to the fact that Roman Domas, zoning board member, is a brother of the original owner of the property, Cargill asked board members if any had any financial interest in either of the buildings. None of them responded.

Several zoning board members expressed concern for increased traffic on Dundee Road if the two restaurants were allowed to continue under B-4 zoning.

Use of the property as a gas station in the future was another of the concerns.

Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer pointed out the village policy in zoning changes to B-4 is to require property owners to sign a covenant forbidding forever the sale of gasoline on the property.

Gas stations also fall under the B-4 zoning classification.

Attorneys for the property owners said they would be willing to enter into an agreement with the village forbidding the sale of gasoline, but expressed reluctance to sign a covenant.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing "almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into 'a propaganda organ for purveying medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,300,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Charge 3 For Carrying Blank Pistols

In what police described as a "near-tragedy," three youths carrying blank pistols were arrested in the K-Mart parking lot on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

The incident began shortly before 7 p.m. Monday when a shopper saw one of the boys put what looked like a pistol into his pocket before he went into the store. The shopper called police.

Several squad cars responded to the car and police waited in the parking lot until the boys left the store carrying a package and got into their car. Thinking the youths were armed, police did not approach them until they had driven away from the busy front of the store.

In a corner of the parking lot police surrounded the youths' car and, with guns drawn, ordered them from the car. Police said they found three pistols which, although they looked like weapons, turned out to be loaded with blanks and not capable of firing live ammunition.

AFTER CONSULTING with the state's attorney's office police charged the youths with disorderly conduct and released them on bond.

Although the incident ended peacefully,

Police Chief M. O. Horcher said that he was disturbed by it because of the danger involved in carrying weapons or even blank pistols that appear to be dangerous weapons.

"It could have been tragic," Horcher said. "The result of this apprehension was a disorderly conduct charge, and we hope something constructive will come from it. But the result could have been a funeral."

Horcher said that his men had to assume that the boys were armed and the chief praised them for behaving calmly.

Horcher asked parents to keep their children from carrying not only weapons but blank pistols and other things that appear to be weapons.

Police identified the arrested youths as Michael Johnson, 17, of 138 Center St., Wheeling; his brother, Rudolph, 20; and Michael J. Farley, 20, of 177 Wildwood Ln., Wheeling.

employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Crouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

At the larger Bell office at 44 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, about 170 operators are affected by the strike.

There are four pickets assigned to the building. Each person on the picket line works a three-hour shift. Although union members said they have been told the strike will last at least two weeks, one picket said she heard yesterday morning that it would last at least a month. Members of the picket line in Arlington Heights did not seem to be particularly enthusiastic about the strike, but were supporting the union's action.

"I didn't vote for the strike," said Mrs. Marie Hermann of Des Plaines. I'm supporting a family, three kids and my mother who's retired."

Suit Names Horseman's Group Leader

by TOM ROBB

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area. Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

Police Apprehend AWOL Army Private

Buffalo Grove police apprehended a 17-year-old private, absent without leave from the Army, in Buffalo Grove Tuesday morning.

Richard Calamia, of 108 Chestnut St., Wheeling, was being held in the Buffalo Grove lockup yesterday waiting to be turned over to Army authorities.

Police said they acted on a tip and arrested Calamia at 281 Raupp Blvd. at about 10:30 a.m.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complainant caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employers under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant, through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Fear Increased Flooding

Village Powerless To Stop Apartment Complex

Buffalo Grove village trustees discovered Monday night that they are nearly powerless to stop a large apartment complex proposed for unincorporated Cook County, just west of the village.

Village officials had opposed the project because they feared it would increase flooding in Buffalo Grove.

"We are virtually dead ducks," Village Atty Richard Raysa told the board when asked if the village had any legal way to stop the Kassuba Development Corp's plans to build the complex on 40 acres north of Dundee Road, behind the Weidner Egg Farm.

"A municipality doesn't have a chance. Unfortunately from a strictly legal standpoint, you have a problem," he added.

THE VILLAGE HAD objected to the development when Kassuba had sought a special use designation on the land at a public hearing last October. At that time, the village of Palatine and surrounding homeowners also objected.

No action was taken at the hearing, held by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals at the Palatine Village Hall.

Although village officials were not informed until later, a decision was apparently made at a regular zoning board meeting. A special use designation was granted to Kassuba allowing a 15 per cent increase over the 700-unit maximum permitted under the current R-5 zoning.

Also under the special use designation, variations in construction are permitted which are not allowed under the straight R-5 zoning.

In explaining that the village can do nothing short of legal action to try and stop the complex, Raysa cited two cases, one in Bensenville and one in Mount Prospect, where the courts ruled against the municipality and in favor of the developer.

"As far as the existing law is concerned, the laws are against us," Raysa said.

RAYSA SAID IF private citizens filed a suit, the village could join in the action by filing an "intervening suit on their behalf."

The village's objections center around the means proposed to handle storm water drainage from the development.

A branch of Buffalo Creek runs through the property, and Kassuba has proposed to widen the creek to accommodate the increase runoff from the buildings and parking areas.

However, the village engineering consultants, feel that this measure is inadequate.

The trustees directed Arnold Seeberg, of the engineering firm of the Mattis Associates, to study the plans with the Metropolitan Sanitary District and send his written objections to the MSD and the county commissioners.

JOBS ARE AVAILABLE, according to the sign outside a telephone company building in Wheeling, but these young employees have chosen the picket line instead. Marching in front of the building at 50 W. Dundee Rd. are, from left, directory assistance operators Chris Caouette, Kathy White and Linda Campbell.

Board Delays Decision On Bicycle Registration

For the second meeting in a row, Buffalo Grove Village Trustees could not decide whether to charge a 25 cent fee for registering bicycles.

And the trustees postponed a decision on beginning the program at all, even though it is apparently three years late in getting started.

A 1968 ordinance requires that all bicycles be registered. In apparent contradiction to that ordinance, no bicycles are registered currently in the village.

However, registration stickers which cost $700 have arrived and are being stored in the municipal building.

AT THE LAST village board meeting in JUNE, Trustee Edward Fabish, chairman of the traffic and safety committee, reported to the board on the progress of a registration program and asked that a 25 cent fee be charged to pay for the stickers and administrative costs involved in the program.

At that meeting, the trustees tabled Fabish's request stating that they wanted to see a copy of the bicycle ordinance.

At last Monday's meeting, the trustees again discussed the ordinance, questioned whether it was needed at all, and finally tabled again until Fabish returns from vacation to get his comments. He will return in time for the July 26 meeting.

At the Monday meeting, Trustee Edward Osmon opposed having any ordinance at all. He said that the ordinance states that it is unlawful to operate a bicycle "at a speed greater than is reasonable and prudent under conditions then existing."

"IN MY OPINION, children are neither reasonable or prudent," Osmon pointed out.

Osmon also took issue with the provision in the ordinance which calls for a fine of up to $500 for anyone who violates the ordinance.

The ordinance was supported by Trustees Thomas Mahoney, James Shirley and Police Chief Harold Smith, who was also at the meeting.

Mahoney said he thought that the village should have an ordinance to control the operation of bicycles in the village, but that the registration provision be dropped because it would be hard to enforce.

Shirley said the ordinance provides a means to control the bicycle and would help citizens in recovering lost or stolen bicycles.

Smith agreed saying that some type of system is needed to keep track of bicycles in the village.

Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical' politics."

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

Charge 3 For Carrying Blank Pistols

In what police described as a "near-tragedy," three youths carrying blank pistols were arrested in the K-Mart parking lot on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

The incident began shortly before 7 p.m. Monday when a shopper saw one of the boys put what looked like a pistol into his pocket before he went into the store. The shopper called police.

Several squad cars responded to the car and police waited in the parking lot until the boys left the store carrying a package and got into their car. Thinking the youths were armed, police did not approach them until they had driven away from the busy front of the store.

In a corner of the parking lot police surrounded the youths' car and, with guns drawn, ordered them from the car.

Police said they found three pistols which, although they looked like weapons, turned out to be loaded with blanks and not capable of firing live ammunition.

AFTER CONSULTING with the state's attorney's office police charged the youths with disorderly conduct and released them on bond.

Although the incident ended peacefully,

Police Chief M. O. Horcher said that he was disturbed by it because of the danger involved in carrying weapons or even blank pistols that appear to be dangerous weapons.

"It could have been tragic," Horcher said. "The result of this apprehension was a disorderly conduct charge, and we hope something constructive will come from it. But the result could have been a funeral."

Horcher said that his men had to assume that the boys were armed and the chief praised them for behaving calmly. Horcher asked parents to keep their children from carrying not only weapons but blank pistols and other things that appear to be weapons.

Police identified the arrested youths as Michael Johnson, 17, of 138 Center St., Wheeling; his brother, Rudolph, 20; and Michael J. Farley, 20, of 177 Wildwood Ln., Wheeling.

ON STRIKE. Workers of several suburban Illinois Bell facilities stood in picket lines yesterday.

Board To Meet

The Wheeling Village Board will hold a special executive session today at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal building. The session will involve the discussion of salaries with individual village employees.

Steinhoff Enlists

Mark Steinhoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Steinhoff, 509 E. Merle, Wheeling, has enlisted in the U. S. Army.

Steinhoff will receive his preliminary military training in Washington, D. C.

McMorris Resigns Position As Park District Director

Rex McMorris, Palatine Park District Director since 1968, resigned that position Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the park district board of commissioners.

According to Board Pres. Paul Jensen, a successor to McMorris may be named Saturday. McMorris will stay on with the park district in some capacity, Jensen said.

Jensen said the park board has received only one application for the job from a man now in private industry in Massachusetts. Although Jensen would not identify the applicant, he is believed to be William Milne, director of the Palatine Park District from 1962 until 1966.

Jensen said the board has a knowledge of the applicant's credentials and qualifications, and had in fact considered the man for director in 1968 when Henry Deihl resigned. The man was unavailable at that time, Jensen said, and McMorris was then hired.

JENSEN ALSO said the board had been aware of this man's availability since July 6. The board went into execu-and a lack of communication among the department directors."

He said the board felt the demands on McMorris were more than he was equipped to meet, or more than any one man could meet. But the board decided, he added, that rather than hire an assistant for McMorris, it would be better to bring in a younger man qualified in parks and recreation who could "grow with the district."

The major factors in making this decision, Jensen said, was McMorris' age, 58, and his lack of previous background in public administration and parks.

"Rex has been pushed beyond the limits of his capabilities," he said.

MCMORRIS FIRST began working with the Palatine Park District in 1965 as golf course consultant. He conducted the feasibility study for financing Palatine Hills Golf Course.

When Deihl resigned in July 1968, McMorris was named director despite his own admissions that he was not a specialist in parks or recreation.

utive session Saturday when its feelings were made known to McMorris. A "mutual agreement" was then worked out between McMorris and the board whereby McMorris would resign his position, but continue with the park district in some type of administrative capacity, he said.

"We were not entirely satisfied with the situation at the park district," Jensen said. "We've known for some time that we've had some administrative problems

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

Cook County Grand Jury Indicts Four

A Cook County Grand Jury yesterday returned murder indictments against four men charged with the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of Inverness Resident George Jayne.

Among those indicted was Jayne's 63-year old brother, Silas Jayne. Both brothers figured prominently in the horse business and made headlines over the last decade by the bitter feud they had between them.

Also indicted were Joseph LaPlaca, 48, of 321 McClure, Elgin; Edwin Nefeld, 33, of 22341 Sherman Rd., Chicago; and Julius Barnes, 37, of 7318 S. University, Chicago.

All four men were arrested last May by combined state, county and local police and have been held without bond at Cook County Jail.

Yesterday, the indictments were returned before Acting Chief Criminal Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald. All four men were also indicted for conspiracy to murder.

The grand jury recommended the defendants be held without bond. They will be arraigned at 10 a.m. this morning before Judge Fitzgerald.

The indictments did not include a fifth suspect in the murder case, Kenneth Hansen, 38, of Rural Will County, who was arrested June 7 by Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with conspiracy and solicitation to murder. Hansen has been freed on bond.

READY FOR THE Miss Illinois Pageant next week is Linda Miles, Miss Palatine, 1970, who will be among 35 beauty queens vying for the chance to represent the state in the Miss America pageant.

Miss Palatine Vies For Miss Illinois Title

by MARTHA KOPER

The evening of July 24 could bring one of the most tense moments of her life to Linda Miles. As Miss Palatine she'll be competing with 34 other girls for the title of Miss Illinois.

Trying to remain calm, Linda says she plans on having a lot of fun at the pageant in Aurora.

"Already, I know a lot of the girls, and even though we'll be competing against each other, I know we'll have fun too," she said.

Named Miss Palatine at last year's local Fourth of July beauty pageant, she's had several opportunities to meet other contestants in the Miss Illinois pageant during the past year.

LINDA LEAVES for Aurora on Monday, but preliminary competition will not begin until Wednesday evening when the swimming suit competition takes place. Thursday evening is talent night.

For her talent presentation Linda will perform a modern ballet which she created. Danced to the theme from "Exodus," the ballet dramatizes the theme that "God gave us this land, but what are we doing with it?"

She'll wear a simple costume of black leotards with a black skirt Linda and her sister have been sewing.

Evening gown competition will be held on Friday night with finalists and the winner chosen on Saturday night.

The pageant will not be televised this year which disappointed Linda a little. "I had a lot of friends who were waiting to see me on TV."

"BUT THERE'LL be other years it'll be televised and then I'll be rooting for Miss Palatine," she said.

A dance major at Illinois State University, Normal, Linda knows one contestant in the pageant both socially and professionally.

"Miss Effingham is my dance partner at school. Now we'll be competing against each other," she said.

She added that one of her best friends will represent Hoffman Estates in the contest.

Aside from friends competing in the pageant Linda will have a large cheering section. Her mother plans to attend every evening of activities and a large delegation of friends will be on hand for the evening of talent competition.

The idea of being part of a statewide beauty pageant hasn't made Linda too nervous yet. Taking one step at a time, she said, "I've got to get through the preliminaries first."

Phone Strike At A Glance

NATIONWIDE: About 500,000 workers affected.

IN ILLINOIS: 25,000 Bell employees on strike, some 10,000 of them members of the striking Communications Workers of America.

THE ISSUE: Wages. Illinois Bell said they will raise operators' salaries from $115.15 per week to $161.50 over a 24-month period. Cost to the company is said to be $200 million for the proposed three year contract. Union spokesmen say it is not enough. The two sides are reportedly close to settlement but disagree on how the money will be spent.

THE FUTURE: The strike will be "at least two weeks long" according to the union. Still undecided is the contract of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers who also work for Bell. Union activists in New York have threatened to spark a nationwide communications breakdown by calling for 750,000 postal employees to strike also.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. Life On The Backstretch Is 'Another World' For Workers

THESE DORMITORY-LIKE living quarters for employees of the backstretch at Arlington Race Track were one of only a few to escape criticism from local building and fire department officials who inspected the backstretch and found nearly all of the 45 barns below standards set forth in the Arlington Heights village code. Tonight, village board public health and safety committee members will discuss these findings.

What is it like to live and work in the backside at Arlington Race Track? What are the attitudes of the people who work each day preparing championship horses for the nine races held Monday through Saturday? The Herald presents an inside look at the men and the conditions that together make up life in the backstretch.

by KURT BAER

For most of the hot-walkers, grooms, pony boys and exercise boys who live and work in the backside of Arlington Park Race Track, horses and how to care for them is the only life they will ever know.

They are migrants, as transient as cherry pickers or the lettuce workers of California. They travel cross-country with their horses in large, diesel vans, and they follow van arrivals and departures as others might read an airline or train schedule.

The vans represent an affordable means of transportation, and even though their destination is always another race track, stablemen see freedom in the large rubber tires.

Indeed, leaving the track and its way of life behind is one of the most frequently uttered and poorly honored pledges in the backstretch.

"After this meetin' I'm goin' home to New Orleans," one stablehand says. "I'm goin' to buy some dairy cows and settle down. I'm tired of always makin' money for somebody else."

"I'M GOING HOME to Ohio," another hot-walker chimes in. He's a black hunchback who says his back was crippled when a horse fell on top of him. "You been talkin' 'bout goin' home for 10 years," the first man counters derisively.

"Yes I am. There's a van leavin' next week and I'm goin' to be on it — back to Cincinnati."

Medical facilities are unknown on the backside and stablehands get only minimal insurance protection from the Horseman's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA).

For trainers and tack managers, it's a simple matter of priorities. Racing thoroughbreds are valuable animals and as such are insured for thousands of dollars with Lloyd's of London. But stablehands are a dime a dozen and consequently can't even get treatment for a stomach ache. And the complete inadequacy of bathroom facilities makes even self-help a long shot.

The only running water in most of the barns comes from garden hoses used to fill water buckets for the horses. Shower and other bathroom fixtures are huddled together yards away from most of the living quarters and sanitation is a continual problem. Or at least it should be.

BUT THE FACT of the matter is that most of the workers in the backstretch don't complain about conditions except in casual conversation among themselves.

The tackrooms that 1,000 backstretch workers call home are small, about 11 feet square, poorly ventilated and usually unkept. A hot-walker may share his cramped quarters with a row of harnesses and saddles, a rack of horse blankets and other necessary accessories.

Most backstretch workers are just one rung above the unemployed and job security is always in the back of their minds.

The fear of being "put outside the gate" if anyone presses too hard for better conditions effectively checks most reform ambitions. And while only a few workers ever make enough money to seriously consider saving, a hand-to-mouth existence is, they believe, better than the unemployment line.

Fact, fantasy or mere misinformation, the world of the backstretch worker makes little distinction. His is a word-of-mouth culture, and he knows others by what they say as much as by what they do. Relatively free-wheeling among his friends, he's been conditioned not to ask too many questions or talk too openly around his trainer or track manager. The spectre of losing the only job he knows keeps him silent.

The backstretch at Arlington Park is an arena of contrasts. Trainers and owners like Arlington Park because, as one of them put it, "it's good money." But the men who live in the stable area intensely dislike it because of its location.

UNLIKE OTHER in-town tracks across the county which offer the escape and enticements of the big city, Arlington Park is a suburban track. Few stablehands can regularly afford the $2.70 round-trip fare into Chicago on the train, and less than half have access to a car.

"We call this place the graveyard, man — the graveyard," said one experienced stablehand who had traveled north to Chicago from Jefferson Downs in New Orleans.

Most of the men, particularly the blacks, only laugh at the idea of going into Arlington Heights for an evening. "We know better," they say.

Since annexation of the track two years ago, village police have been free to enter and patrol the backstretch through Gate 9. Prior to annexation, total police responsibility in the backstretch rested with the track's internal security force, which still does most of the routine police work.

The June 3 fire which destroyed 33 horses, one barn and did an estimated $500,000 worth of damage, and a July 4 arson attempt, have brought stepped up security into the backstretch.

Some stablemen fear armed guards have been given the order to shoot first and ask questions later. A few trainers have hired their own security men to bolster the regular track force.

July 19 Is Start Of Church School

The annual Vacation Church School sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Palatine will begin July 19, for two weeks. Classes for children 3 through 10 will be offered using "Christian Studies for United Methodist Children."

Kindergarten through 4th grade classes will meet 9:30 a.m. to noon, and the nursery class, for pre-schoolers 3 and 4, will meet 10:30 a.m. to noon. All classes will meet in the church, 123 N. Plum Grove Road.

All children are invited to participate in the 20 hours of worship, study, activities and play. A fee of $1.50 per child per week will cover all costs of supplies and a personal study book for each child.

Anyone interested in the program can contact the church in the mornings at 359-1345.

A Daily Ritual On The Backstretch

Their workday begins early, usually about 4:30 in the morning. Men stagger sleepily from their rooms.

In a pre-dawn ritual, each horse is saddled and ridden to an exercise ring where he will run, hopefully maintaining his fitness for the mile-long track in front of the grandstand. Each leaves behind a dirty stall which will have to be cleaned and padded with fresh, dry straw before the horse returns.

A harsh, white light from a portable floodlamp brightens a wooden stall.

It's hot for so early in the morning, and the humidity threatens to make this an especially long day. But a dark band of clouds in the northern sky shows the chance for a morning shower.

The trainer worries about a wet track and how it might affect the horse he has entered in the day's sixth race.

A voice calls from the stableyard, announcing the first horse's return.

Hot and sweating, like any athlete, the sleek thoroughbred waits anxiously for a shower after his workout. Two buckets of lukewarm water — one foaming with shampoo suds, a large natural sponge and an experienced groom will do the job in five minutes.

WASHED, RINSED and dried with an aluminum squeegee, the horse stands ready for its "hot-walker," the man who will lead him some 20 times around the barn before putting him back in his stall.

With conditioned care to work from the horse's left side, the hot-walker grips the shank and begins his trip around the well-worn path that rings the stable's stalls. The motion, like that on the track itself is always counterclockwise.

Another hot-walker files in at a safe distance behind the first. Soon there are four or five making the rounds, parade-like.

"Get over on the left, boy!" a veteran orders an inexperienced stableboy. The man has surely witnessed, perhaps even suffered first-hand, the bone-splitting kick thoroughbreds will mete out to those who lurk on their right.

Eventually all the horses are exercised, washed and walked. There is time for a moment's pause.

"Let's start," the trainer calls, signaling the feed of the next round.

Feed buckets are filled assembly line fashion: A measure of oats, a handful of vitamin pellets and a fresh bucket of water. One by one each bucket is filled, mixed and snapped into place in the corner of the stall.

Ten-thirty and the bulk of the day's work is almost finished.

Many of the stablemen walk to the backstretch cafeteria, where, if they order a big breakfast, they'll spend as much as 25 per cent of their day's wage.

That's the backstretch cycle, seven days a week.

Gas Co. Asks Approval Of Plant

Flame Gas Co. has approached city officials for approval of a gas storage plant in the Rolling Meadows northern industrial park on Rohlwing Road.

At a committee meeting this week, representatives of the gas company told officials of a proposal for a storage facility on land presently owned by Brake Alignment and Service Co., at 909 Rohlwing Rd. Flame Gas officials said they planned to purchase a little more than two acres from Brake Alignment to build a propane gas plant.

Four aldermen who attended the meeting said they favored the gas plant, but advised the land is too small to be an approved use. Ald. Thomas Waldron said a zoning board of appeals session would be held to hear the request for deviation from the city code.

FLAME GAS officials stated the plant would do about $200,000 in yearly retail sales. Preliminary plans are for above-ground gas storage in one or two large tanks for distribution of gas to service trucks. The plant will include a retail gas equipment sales office.

After questioning from city officials, the Flame Gas representatives assured them this business is "no more dangerous than most any other, if the operation is handled correctly."

Flame Gas Co. has plants located throughout Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan. The nearest outlet is now located in Willow Springs.

Riley Must Move Trailer Office

The trailer office of builder Albert Riley must be moved from its location in the Plum Grove-Countryside subdivision, according to a decision by the Rolling Meadows building and zoning committee Monday night.

According to Greg Rose, a representative of Riley's firm, an agreement had been made between Ald. Thomas Scanlan and Riley to allow the trailer office in the subdivision in return for seeding and leveling the Plum Grove Countryside playground on Euclid Avenue. But city officials said the one-year time limit to move the trailer has expired.

"It's on absolutely illegal use," said Ald. Thomas Waldron. Waldron suggested the trailer be relocated near the Fairfax Village project now under construction by Riley.

Telephone Workers Walk Picket Lines

employees. has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

At the larger Bell office at 44 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, about 170 operators are affected by the strike.

There are four pickets assigned to the building. Each person on the picket line works a three-hour shift. Although union members said they have been told the strike will last at least two weeks, one picket said she heard yesterday morning that it would last at least a month. Members of the picket line in Arlington Heights did not seem to be particularly enthusiastic about the strike, but were supporting the union's action.

"I didn't vote for the strike," said Mrs. Marie Hermann of Des Plaines. "I'm supporting a family, three kids and my mother who's retired."

ON STRIKE. Workers of several suburban Illinois Bell facilities stood in picket lines yesterday.

League Leaders Announced

The Bruins and Suburban Computer are leading their leagues in the Rolling Meadows softball league, while five teams are tied for the lead in the 12 inch league.

In Monday night games the Bruins led the A league with a 5-0 record and will represent the Rolling Meadows Park District in the state tournament in Des Plaines July 17-18.

In Wednesday night games, Suburban Computer and K.H.P. Aluminum Siding are both undefeated in the first and second positions.

The Tuesday night 12 inch league has 5 teams sharing first place with 3-2 records.

Church Sponsors Car Wash, Drives

The Community Church of Rolling Meadows will sponsor a car wash and paper and glass drive from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. The charge for the car wash is 99 cents a car.

For the paper drive, folded newspapers may be placed into large double bagged grocery bags rather than tied into bundles.

Rules for saving glass include removing all metal from the containers and sorting containers by color. Containers may be whole or broken and may have the paper labels left on.

The glass should be collected in strong boxes or strong paper bags. People unable to store the glass in their homes can call Art Krause, 253-9452; George Sladek, 397-8340; Howard Mehn, 255-8315; and Reverend Herman, 255-8512.

Suit Names Horseman's Group Leader

by TOM ROBB

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area. Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complainant caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employers under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant, through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Indian Cut In Camp Fight

A 28-year-old Indian was injured early Tuesday evening when he was reportedly cut with a straight razor by a white man at the Indian campgrounds at Big Bend in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines police said the Indian, Elwood DeCora, of 1216 W. Oakdale, Chicago, was cut in the stomach by a white man who is living at the camp with his Indian wife and children.

DeCora was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated and released.

DeCora told police an Indian woman had told the white man she did not want DeCora at the lake camp site. He said the man then attacked him with the razor, but that he was able to avoid injury until an Indian man struck him in the face.

DeCora said that after he was struck by the white man cut him with the razor.

Des Plaines Police Detectives Robert

Zeimet and John Storm, accompanied by Sgt. Garry Vande Vusse said they went to the campgrounds to investigate the incident and spoke with Mike Chosa, leader of the Indian group.

VANDE VUSSE SAID that after Chosa was unsuccessful in having the alleged attacker come out of the camp, he met the man halfway — about 500 feet from the main campgrounds.

Vande Vusse said that after talking to the man, he believed the attack may have been partially justified, although excessive, because the man apparently was protecting his family and other small children from DeCora, who was "acting aggressively and irrationally."

Vande Vusse said DeCora apparently had threatened to throw the man's children in the lake and when the man's wife attempted to interfere, he struck her with a tree branch, knocking her to the ground.

Move To Secure Forest Land For Golf Putts On

An attempt to secure a piece of land in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve for a Rolling Meadows golf course passed its first hurdle Tuesday night, when city council in a split vote approved a letter of inquiry which will be sent to the forest preserve district.

The letter of inquiry will be directed to Cook County Board Chairman George Dunne seeking the northern section of the forest preserve located near the Northwest Tollway just south of Rolling Meadows.

For more than a month city officials have been considering a nine-hole public golf course to be maintained and operated by the city. Ald. Frederick Jacobson, who presented the resolution, said the course "could be self supporting in a few years." He got support from Ald. Thomas Waldron, who originated the golf course proposal.

However, Ald. William Ahrens and

Ald. Stephen Eberhard did not favor the plan. Ahrens said more research should be done before asking for the land.

Mayor Roland Meyer indicated he did not favor the golf course idea. "I think long consideration should be made before we tie ourselves down on a lengthy type situation."

Waldron said he felt "there is little chance to get the course, but we should 'go on record' with the forest preserve district."

Others commented that there may be a remote possibility to obtain the forest preserve land.

Jacobson and Waldron said a golf course for Rolling Meadows residents was one of the things the city lacked.

Expansion Of Shopping Center OKed By Council

Expansion of the Coach-Lite Shopping Center on Kirchoff Road was approved by Rolling Meadows City Council this week.

The council voted in favor of the expansion southeast of the present shopping center. The new building will house five businesses, officials said.

Ald. Frederick Jacobson asked that the decision be delayed until "some of the unanswered questions are answered," but he could get no second for his motion.

Jacobson had asked the building and zoning committee not to present the resolution approving the expansion, until traffic and drainage plans were further explained. However, Ald. Thomas Waldron said Lortie wanted the proposal to come before the city council Tuesday night "for financial reasons."

The shopping center proposal has caused a flurry of objections from residents on Owl Lane whose property is contiguous to the development. They complained of flooding that exists on their property now, and feared the new building would cause worse flooding problems.

City Engineer James Muldowney told of remedies for the flooding, including improved drainage facilities and retention basins on both sides of Rte. 53 to help the drainage in the entire area.

When the roll call was taken by city council, only Jacobson cast a dissenting vote.

William Lortie, owner of the property, announced a laundry, insurance company and appliance dealer along with two other tenants have been contracted for the new building.

THE WORLD'S SHORTEST railroad is what J. R. Hixson calls his scale model of a New York Central Engine. The six-foot, three-inch long engine is one of several models on display in the West Mall of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Also on display are Hixson's paintings depicting 150 years of railroading.

This Railroad Man Travels By Automobile

by LINDA PUNCH
John Hixson is a railroad man who travels by car.

As the owner and creator of a miniature railroad show, Hixson has traveled as far south as Florida and North Carolina and as far north as Michigan and Canada. Despite his interest in railroads, he finds it more convenient to transport his show by station wagon.

The exhibit is on display through Saturday in the West Mall of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

"I like railroading from start to finish. I've read the history of locomotives and I don't forget a thing," he said.

Wearing a neckerchief and railroad cap, Hixson sits to the side talking with interested spectators. He interrupts the conversation occasionally to yell at kids who blow the train whistles too long.

Hixson's interest in railroads began over 30 years ago when he worked with General Motors as a tool grinder.

"I STARTED ABOUT 30 years ago on drawings of trains. I have enough drawings to cover 150 years of railroading," he said. "Seven or eight years ago I started on the models. I just keep building more."

Models on display in the mall include two threshing machines, a merry-go-round, and two locomotives. All the models have moving parts and duplicate the actions of their full size counterparts.

Hixson uses everything from parts of an old dictaphone to stovepipe and cardboard in building models.

"I get the parts in the junkyard, city dump and any place I see anything to use. Sometimes people give me things they know I can use," he said.

The railroad exhibit has become so popular, Hixson said, that he has little time to spend at his home in Toledo, Ohio. He's not ready to give up touring with the exhibit, however.

"A museum in North Carolina wanted me to donate my models to them. Nobody will get them while I'm still around," he said.

Phone Workers Walk Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says . . . "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again. . ."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Life On The Backstretch Is 'Another World' For Workers

THESE DORMITORY-LIKE living quarters for employees of the backstretch at Arlington Race Track were one of only a few to escape criticism from local building and fire department officials who inspected the backstretch and found nearly all of the 45 barns below standards set forth in the Arlington Heights village code. Tonight, village board public health and safety committee members will discuss these findings.

What is it like to live and work in the backside at Arlington Race Track? What are the attitudes of the people who work each day preparing championship horses for the nine races held Monday through Saturday? The Herald presents an inside look at the men and the conditions that together make up life in the backstretch.

by KURT BAER

For most of the hot-walkers, grooms, pony boys and exercise boys who live and work in the backside of Arlington Park Race Track, horses and how to care for them is the only life they will ever know.

They are migrants, as transient as cherry pickers or the lettuce workers of California. They travel cross-country with their horses in large, diesel vans, and they follow van arrivals and departures as others might read an airline or train schedule.

The vans represent an affordable means of transportation, and even though their destination is always another race track, stablemen see freedom in the large rubber tires.

Indeed, leaving the track and its way of life behind is one of the most frequently uttered and poorly honored pledges in the backstretch.

"After this meetin' I'm goin' home to New Orleans," one stablehand says. "I'm goin' to buy some dairy cows and settle down. I'm tired of always makin' money for somebody else."

"I'M GOING HOME to Ohio," another hot-walker chimes in. He's a black hunchback who says his back was crippled when a horse fell on top of him.

"You been talkin' 'bout goin' home for 10 years," the first man counters derisively.

"Yes I am. There's a van leavin' next week and I'm goin' to be on it — back to Cincinnati."

Medical facilities are unknown on the backside and stablehands get only minimal insurance protection from the Horseman's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA).

For trainers and tack managers, it's a simple matter of priorities. Racing thoroughbreds are valuable animals and as such are insured for thousands of dollars with Lloyd's of London. But stablehands are a dime a dozen and consequently can't even get treatment for a stomach ache. And the complete inadequacy of bathroom facilities makes even self-help a long shot.

The only running water in most of the barns comes from garden hoses used to fill water buckets for the horses. Shower and other bathroom fixtures are huddled together yards away from most of the living quarters and sanitation is a continual problem. Or at least it should be.

BUT THE FACT of the matter is that most of the workers in the backstretch don't complain about conditions except in casual conversation among themselves.

The tackrooms that 1,000 backstretch workers call home are small, about 11 feet square, poorly ventilated an usually unkept. A hot-walker may share his cramped quarters with a row of harnesses and saddles, a rack of horse blankets and other necessary accessories.

Most backstretch workers are just one rung above the unemployed and job security is always in the back of their minds.

The fear of being "put outside the gate" if anyone presses too hard for better conditions effectively checks most reform ambitions. And while only a few workers ever make enough money to seriously consider saving, a hand-to-mouth existence is, they believe, better than the unemployment line.

Fact, fantasy or mere misinformation, the world of the backstretch worker makes little distinction. His is a world-of-mouth culture, and he knows others by what they say as much as by what they do. Relatively free-wheeling among his friends, he's been conditioned not to ask too many questions or talk too openly around his trainer or track manager. The spectre of losing the only job he knows keeps him silent.

The backstretch at Arlington Park is an arena of contrasts. Trainers and owners like Arlington Park because, as one of them put it, "It's good money." But the men who live in the stable area intensely dislike it because of its location.

UNLIKE OTHER in-town tracks across the county which offer the escape and enticements of the big city, Arlington Park is a suburban track. Few stablehands can regularly afford the $2.70 round-trip fare into Chicago on the train, and less than half have access to a car.

"We call this place the graveyard, man — the graveyard," said one experienced stablehand who had traveled north to Chicago from Jefferson Downs in New Orleans.

Most of the men, particularly the blacks, only laugh at the idea of going into Arlington Heights for an evening.

"We know better," they say.

Since annexation of the track two years ago, village police have been free to enter and patrol the backstretch through Gate 9. Prior to annexation, total police responsibility in the backstretch rested with the track's internal security force, which still does most of the routine police work.

The June 3 fire which destroyed 33 horses, one barn and did an estimated $500,000 worth of damage, and a July 4 arson attempt, have brought stepped up security into the backstretch.

Some stablemen fear armed guards have been given the order to shoot first and ask questions later. A few trainers have hired their own security men to bolster the regular track force.

July 19 Is Start Of Church School

The annual Vacation Church School sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Palatine will begin July 19, for two weeks. Classes for children 3 through 10 will be offered using "Christian Studies for United Methodist Children."

Kindergarten through 4th grade classes will meet 9:30 a.m. to noon, and the nursery class, for pre-schoolers 3 and 4, will meet 10:30 a.m. to noon. All classes will meet in the church, 123 N. Plum Grove Road.

All children are invited to participate in the 20 hours of worship, study, activities and play. A fee of $1.50 per child per week will cover all costs of supplies and a personal study book for each child.

Anyone interested in the program can contact the church in the mornings at 359-1345.

A Daily Ritual On The Backstretch

Their workday begins early, usually about 4:30 in the morning. Men stagger sleepily from their rooms.

In a pre-dawn ritual, each horse is saddled and ridden to an exercise ring where he will run, hopefully maintaining his fitness for the mile-long track in front of the grandstand. Each leaves behind a dirty stall which will have to be cleaned and padded with fresh, dry straw before the horse returns.

A harsh, white light from a portable floodlamp brightens a wooden stall.

It's hot for so early in the morning, and the humidity threatens to make this an especially long day. But a dark band of clouds in the northern sky shows the chance for a morning shower.

The trainer worries about a wet track and how it might affect the horse he has entered in the day's sixth race.

A voice calls from the stableyard, announcing the first horse's return.

Hot and sweating, like any athlete, the sleek thoroughbred waits anxiously for a shower after his workout. Two buckets of lukewarm water — one foaming with shampoo suds, a large natural sponge and an experienced groom will do the job in five minutes.

WASHED, RINSED and dried with an aluminum squeegee, the horse stands ready for its "hot-walker," the man who will lead him some 20 times around the barn before putting him back in his stall.

With conditioned care to work from the horse's left side, the hot-walker grips the shank and begins his trip around the well-worn path that rings the stable's stalls. The motion, like that on the track itself is always counterclockwise.

Another hot-walker files in at a safe distance behind the first. Soon there are four or five making the rounds, parade-like.

"Get over on the left, boy!" a veteran orders an inexperienced stableboy. The man has surely witnessed, perhaps even suffered first-hand, the bone-splitting kick thoroughbreds will mete out to those who lurk on their right.

Eventually all the horses are exercised, washed and walked. There is time for a moment's pause.

"Let's feed," the trainer calls, signaling the start of the next round.

Feed buckets are filled assembly line fashion: A measure of oats, a handful of vitamin pellets and a fresh bucket of water. One by one each bucket is filled, mixed and snapped into place in the corner of the stall.

Ten-thirty and the bulk of the day's work is almost finished.

Many of the stablemen walk to the backstretch cafeteria, where, if they order a big breakfast, they'll spend as much as 25 per cent of their day's wage.

That's the backstretch cycle, seven days a week.

Riley Must Move Trailer Office

The trailer office of builder Albert Riley must be moved from its location in the Plum Grove-Countryside subdivision, according to a decision by the Rolling Meadows building and zoning committee Monday night.

According to Greg Rose, a representative of Riley's firm, an agreement had been made between Ald. Thomas Scanlan and Riley to allow the trailer office in the subdivision in return for seeding and leveling the Plum Grove Countryside playground on Euclid Avenue. But city officials said the one-year time limit to move the trailer has expired.

"It's an absolutely illegal use," said Ald. Thomas Waldron. Waldron suggested the trailer be relocated near the Fairfax Village project now under construction by Riley.

Gas Co. Asks Approval Of Plant

Flame Gas Co. has approached city officials for approval of a gas storage plant in the Rolling Meadows northern industrial park on Rohlfing Road.

At a committee meeting this week, representatives of the gas company told officials of a proposal for a storage facility on land presently owned by Brake Alignment and Service Co., at 908 Rohlfing Rd. Flame Gas officials said they planned to purchase a little more than two acres from Brake Alignment to build a propane gas plant.

Four aldermen who attended the meeting said they favored the gas plant, but advised the land is too small to be an approved use. Ald. Thomas Waldron said a zoning board of appeals session would be held to hear the request for deviation from the city code.

FLAME GAS officials stated the plant would do about $200,000 in yearly retail sales. Preliminary plans are for above-ground gas storage in one or two large tanks for distribution of gas to service trucks. The plant will include a retail gas equipment sales office.

After questioning from city officials, the Flame Gas representatives assured them this business is "no more dangerous than most any other, if the operation is handled correctly."

Flame Gas Co. has plants located throughout Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan. The nearest outlet is now located in Willow Springs.

Telephone Workers On Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again..."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 200,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

SOME ARE FOR the strike, others are not too sure, but no one was reported crossing the CWA picket lines at suburban Illinois Bell offices. Some 25,000 employees throughout the state are affected by the strike action.

Central Telephone Service 'Normal'

Central Telephone Co. customers in Prospect Heights and Des Plaines are experiencing almost no inconvenience from the Bell Telephone Co. employees' strike.

Martin Brown, a spokesman for Central Telephone, reported that their customers' calls are being placed successfully to areas serviced by Bell. "I don't know of any customers' complaints about Bell. I hope it continues this way."

Because of Bell's automatic equipment, dialed calls are going directly through. However installation and repair work is curtailed and Bell customers may experience some delay in getting long distance and information assistance.

Last summer Central customers were threatened with a similar strike. The Central employees' bargaining committee set a strike for Aug. 10, but after an all-day negotiation session decided to submit a revised company offer to its membership.

Several days later Central employees called off the strike and voted to accept

Full-Time Parish Educator Is Hired

A new full-time parish educator has been hired for Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Prospect Heights. He is Dale Fedke of Milwaukee, Wis.

Fedke graduated recently with a sociology degree from Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis. Currently he lives in Des Plaines.

In his position as parish educator Fedke will work with the 500 children enrolled in the church Sunday school. He will also be involved with adult Christian education at the church.

Charged In Theft

Billy J. Stovall, 34, of Oklahoma City, Okla., was arrested by Mount Prospect police for theft of a $69 sport coat from the Wieboldt Department Store in the Randhurst Shopping Center.

Robbery Case To Grand Jury

A 21-year-old Bensenville man, charged with the armed robbery July 2 of a woman in a Des Plaines shopping center parking lot, was bound over to the county grand jury Tuesday.

William James Howat, of 19 N. Center St., Bensenville, was charged July 5 with the robbery of Diana Notarfrancesco of Arlington Heights in the Zayre parking lot, 727 W. Golf Rd.

Tuesday in a preliminary hearing in the Niles branch of the county circuit court, Judge Marvin Peters issued a finding of probable cause and ordered Howat's case turned over to the grand jury for indictment.

Mrs. Notarfrancesco told the court yesterday that she was walking across the parking lot when Howat pulled alongside her in his car, leaned over to the passenger side and said, "Throw it in."

The woman said after she hesitated, Howat "shook what appeared to be a long, black pistol" and ordered, "Your purse and I'm not kidding." She said the man drove off with her purse, containing about $15 and credit cards, after she complied with his demand.

Howat was apprehended July 5 by Mundelein police.

Fireman On Probation For Threat

A former Prospect Heights volunteer fireman was sentenced to one year's probation yesterday for phoning a false bomb threat to a Dist. 23 school, last spring.

Judge Simon Porter, of the Cook County Circuit Court ruled yesterday that Marvin Keihl was guilty of disorderly conduct and assigned him to a probation officer and a psychiatrist. Keihl, 21, of 415 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, must report regularly to the probation officer and the doctor during the one-year period.

Keihl was freed on a $5,000 bond in March after he was arrested for phoning a false bomb threat to the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. In May Keihl pleaded guilty to the charge.

The false bomb threat that led to his arrest was made March 15. The call was the third received at MacArthur School within a few days. In the same time span, false bomb threats were also telephoned to two other Prospect Heights schools: St. Alphonsus Catholic School and Robert Frost School.

Keihl was suspended from the Prospect Heights Volunteer Fire Department following his arrest by Cook County Sheriff's Police. Keihl has been a probationary member of the fire department for about 2½ months when the incidents occurred.

If Keihl violates the requirements of his probation he must return to court to be sentenced again. In addition to visiting his probation officer and the psychiatrist, Keihl must work regularly and not leave the state without informing the court.

Phone Strike At A Glance

NATIONWIDE: About 500,000 workers affected.

IN ILLINOIS: 25,000 Bell employees on strike, some 10,000 of them members of the striking Communications Workers of America.

THE ISSUE: Wages. Illinois Bell said they will raise operators' salaries from $115.15 per week to $161.50 over a 24-month period. Cost to the company is said to be $200 million for the proposed three year contract. Union spokesmen say it is not enough. The two sides are reportedly close to settlement but disagree on how the money will be spent.

THE FUTURE: The strike will be "at least two weeks long" according to the union. Still undecided is the contract of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers who also work for Bell. Union activists in New York have threatened to spark a nationwide communications breakdown by calling for 750,000 postal employees to strike also.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government sits said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

In Summer School Class

Migrant Children Learning, Playing

by WANDALYN RICE

Swimming, reading and just plain learning to get along is occupying the summer of about 35 Mexican-American migrant children in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

The children are in the summer school class funded by the federal government's program for disadvantaged children now in its second year in the school district.

The day begins for the children with an hour-long swim in Disney Pool at Lively Junior High School. The swimming helps with "motor skills, language and just plain fun," Robert Ibarra, director of the program, said.

FROM THE pool Ibarra and his fellow teachers take the children, usually by way of a foot path, to Adm. Robert Byrd School nearby where they have a snack of cookies and soft drinks and settle down to "academics."

On the academics, Ibarra said, "We try to take a different approach from the one they get in the regular school year."

The younger children work on English and on reading with a program designed especially for the disadvantaged and the older ones, including the junior high students, work to improve their skills with programs designed especially for them, Ibarra said.

During the afternoon, he said, the teachers and children join the Elk Grove Park District playground program fun at Byrd School.

The teachers work with the youngsters and play the games he said. "It helps us get involved with the kids because we are showing them how to play games some of them have never heard of," he said.

The five teachers, three of whom are with the children at any given time, do not take breaks during the day, he said.

"The only way we like to teach is to become involved with the kids completely," he added.

THE TEACHERS have also this year completed a program in teaching English as a second language which is helping, he said.

All the children in the summer program are classified as migrants, meaning that their families either follow the crops north from Texas or have been settled in the area for less than five years.

During the regular school year Dist. 59 also has a program for 112 Mexican-American children, including many who are no longer officially migrants, he said.

Ibarra said he hopes that federal funds will become available to teach "bi-lingual" children, regardless of whether they are migrant or not.

Also, Ibarra, who was born in Chile and lived in Venezuela, said "I speak Spanish to the kids to let them know it is a wonderful language."

Many times children in migrant programs, he said, become ashamed of their first language and, since they are never taught much of it, "they become functional illiterates in two languages."

IBARRA AND the other teachers often spend their afternoons visiting the children's homes and getting to know the parents, he said. "We believe seeing the parents and having them know us and the program is very important."

The children come from different parts of the district and many from Des Plaines live in trailer parks. "There is a lot of problems in housing," he said, adding that many nurserymen who employ migrants are moving their migrant housing out to the west to avoid bad publicity surrounding housing conditions in the area.

This year, some of the children who were in the program for the first time last summer have returned, he said. "You can see a 100 per cent change," Ibarra said. "We are making tremendous progress with these kids."

Friewer Alternate Winner In Contest

Donna Friewer of Mount Prospect was one of 12 alternate scholarship winners in the annual Carthage College Poetry Seminar June 21 through June 25. She submitted three original poems in the contest.

Brad Busse, Patti Rothwell and Mary Fitzsimmons, Cliff Schlak and Rick Fox. Backstroke point-getting teams were Winora O'Meara and Lori Aukerman, Josie Fitzsimmons and Mary Ann Withey, Tim Ward and Mark Halvorsen, Terri Fitzsimmons and Jemma Allen, Patti Rothwell and Jan Allen, Bill Geiser and Rick Fox.

The butterfly stroke teams of Barbara Larsen and Winora O'Meara, Brian Halvorsen and Mike Conlin, Tom Balas and Mike Lucansky, Gail Schlak and Patti Kalal, Bill Geiser and Fred Westdale plus the breaststroke teams of Anne Halas and Mary Arko, Doug Schlak and Brad Busse, Cliff Schlak and Rick Martinek, Barbara Larsen and Winora O'Meara, rounded out Mount Prospect's double winning effort.

Going into the final relays Mount Prospect and Glenview were separated by only 23 points. From there on, the team that had the best winning combinations could be the victor. Mount Prospect had them in the teams of Jemma Allen, Mary Arko, Jane Johnson and Patti Kalal, Kevin Redig, Ed Fitzsimmons, Dave Larsen and Doug Schlak, Mary Fitzsimmons, Jan Allen, Betsy Jeffreys and Patti Rothwell, Bill Geiser, Dick Fitzsimmons, Rick Fox and Cliff Schlak.

Township Offers Room For Groups

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors has agreed to make one room in the Elk Grove Town Hall available for use by community groups in school Dist. 59.

The meeting room in the town hall at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., holds up to 150 and will be available on a first come, first served basis, according to Bernard Lee, township auditor.

Lee said the action was taken because the school district has closed its facilities to community groups.

A minimum fee of $12 will be charged to each group which uses the facilities in the town hall. A fee of $6 per hour will be charged after the first two hours of use. The fees will be used to pay for custodial services.

WATER IS GREAT and the 35 children in the migrant program in Dist. 59 get a chance to swim every day. The six-week program, financed by federal funds, gives the kids a chance to work on English and reading as well as swimming. Many of the children had never been in a pool before this summer.

Suit Names Horseman's Group Leader

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area. Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complainant caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employees under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Indian Cut In Camp Fight

A 28-year-old Indian was injured early Tuesday evening when he was reportedly cut with a straight razor by a white man at the Indian campgrounds at Big Bend in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines police said the Indian, Elwood DeCorra, of 1216 W. Oakdale, Chicago, was cut in the stomach by a white man who is living at the camp with his Indian wife and children.

DeCorra was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated and released. DeCorra told police an Indian woman had told the white man she did not want DeCorra at the lake camp site. He said the man then attacked him with the razor, but that he was able to avoid injury until an Indian man struck him in the face.

DeCorra said that after he was struck the white man cut him with the razor. Des Plaines Police Detectives Robert Zeimet and John Storm, accompanied by Sgt. Garry Vande Vusse said they went to the campgrounds to investigate the incident and spoke with Mike Chosa, leader of the Indian group.

VANDE VUSSE said that after Chosa was unsuccessful in having the alleged attacker come out of the camp, he met the man halfway — about 500 feet from the main campgrounds.

Vande Vusse said that after talking to the man, he believed the attack may have been partially justified, although excessive, because the man apparently was protecting his family and other small children from DeCorra, who was "acting aggressively and irrationally."

Cook County Grand Jury Indicts Four

A Cook County Grand Jury yesterday returned murder indictments against four men charged with the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of Inverness Resident George Jayne.

Among those indicted was Jayne's 63-year old brother, Silas Jayne. Both brothers figured prominently in the horse business and made headlines over the last decade by the bitter feud they had between them.

Also indicted were Joseph LaPlaca, 48, of 321 McClure, Elgin; Edwin Nefeld, 33, of 22341 Sherman Rd., Chicago; and Julius Barnes, 37, of 7318 S. University, Chicago.

All four men were arrested last May by combined state, county and local police and have been held without bond at Cook County Jail.

Yesterday, the indictments were returned before Acting Chief Criminal Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald. All four men were also indicted for conspiracy to murder.

The grand jury recommended the defendants be held without bond. They will be arraigned at 10 a.m. this morning before Judge Fitzgerald.

The indictments did not include a fifth suspect in the murder case, Kenneth Hansen, 38, of rural Will County, who was arrested June 7 by Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with conspiracy and solicitation to murder. Hansen has been freed on bond.

Action Postponed On Applications

The Mount Prospect Village Board of Trustees postponed action on two liquor license applications until its July 20 meeting.

The board decided to take no action on the request of Carl's Pizzeria, 712 E. Northwest Highway, for an "R" license to serve alcoholic beverages at tables with a meal, and on the request of the Dover Inn Corp., corner Algonquin Road and Dempster Street, for a "B" license to serve liquor at tables and a bar.

Last week's action came at the request of two trustees, Richard Monroe and George Anderson, who wanted more time to consider the requests and review the locations of the restaurants.

Trustee Dan Ahern said he hopes the board will take up discussion of a liquor license policy at the next meeting. "I already have a very definite one (policy) in my mind," he said.

Village Park District Swimmers Top Glenview

In its second conference meet of the year, the Mount Prospect Park District swimming team overcame its counterpart from Glenview, 291 to 250.

Victories by divers Cindy Gentzler, Rob Fitzgerald, Bill Dugan and Craig Hoppensteel put Mount Prospect ahead at the start of the meet. Following suit were the winning medley relay teams of Bill Geiser, Rick Martinek, George Halas and Dick Fitzsimmons, Julie Tank, Lorie Aukerman, Winora O'Meara and Barbara Larsen, Mike Conlin, Tom Conlin, Paul Andrew and Brian Halvorsen.

Gaining points in the singles event for Mount Prospect were the freestyle teams of Cliff Schlak and Dick Fitzsimmons, Anne Halas and Terry Fitzsimmons, Doug Schlak and Ed Fitzsimmons, Patti Larsen and Josie Fitzsimmons, Tom Conlin and Mike Conlin, Julie Tank and Lorie Aukerman, Rick Fox and George Halas. Adding to the score in the individual medley were teammates Gail Schlak and Jemma Allen, Dave Larsen and

Thefts Reported

Three different thefts from parked cars, two at the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot, Monday netted thieves a radio, a guitar amplifier and a tachometer.

An AM/FM radio, valued at $80, was taken Monday evening from a car belonging to Ann M. Stanton, 58, of 838 Old Willow Rd., Wheeling, according to Mount Prospect police. Police entry was gained by breaking the left side vent window.

According to police, Daniel Neitzke, 20, of 517 N. Eastwood Ave., Mount Prospect, parked his car in a side parking lot at Wilkins Music Center, 928 E. Northwest Hwy. Police said that when Neitzke returned to his car an amplifier, valued at $425, had been stolen.

The incident occurred between 3 and 3:30 p.m. Monday.

In the third theft, Mrs. Orlando C. Zajack, 24, of 1115 W. Elm, Arlington Heights told police that a $40 tachometer had been taken from her car while it was parked at Randhurst. Police said the car had been locked but there was no sign of forced entry.

Middleton Files For Rehearing

A request for a rehearing of his license revocation was filed just under the wire yesterday by Dr. James Middleton, the Des Plaines area physician charged with deviate sexual assault.

A petition for the rehearing was filed yesterday morning with Edward Price, chief attorney for the Illinois Department of Registration and Education, by Edward M. Genson, the doctor's attorney.

The medical examining committee of the state agency revoked Dr. Middleton's license to practice medicine June 1 after former women patients testified the doctor drugged and then sexually assaulted them.

Price said at that time the doctor would have 20 days to file for a rehearing before the director of the state department or his license would be revoked. Price explained Dr. Middleton could continue his practice until all avenues of appeal were exhausted.

The deadline for petitioning for the rehearing was extended until yesterday when the findings of the examining committee were not made known officially to the doctor until late June.

DR. MIDDLETON, 44, with offices at 909 Elmhurst Rd., unincorporated Des Plaines, was found guilty by the examining committee of "engaging in dishonorable and unprofessional conduct... likely to deceive, defraud or harm the public."

The doctor was also found guilty of "employing fraud and deceit" in obtaining a medical license in the state by not reporting his license had been revoked in Missouri.

Genson said the petition for the rehearing alleged the state examining board should not have held its hearing prior to a disposition of the criminal charges pending against the doctor in the county circuit court.

Dr. Middleton has been charged by the state with two counts each of deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery.

Genson said Tuesday he could not offer the best possible defense for the doctor before the medical committee because he did not want to reveal the defense he has planned for the criminal charges.

Genson, who said six women testified against the doctor, called the testimony "incredible" in his petition to the board.

PRICE EXPLAINED that the matter will be heard by the state director in Chicago "as soon as possible. It's a question of when the director is available."

"But I don't want to prolong this thing," Price added. "It's something not to be fooled around with."

When the date is set by the director, Price explained, it will be for the purpose of arguing motions on whether a rehearing should be granted.

"Obviously, his attorney will make details of the testimony given at the first hearing and will argue for a rehearing. And I'll argue against a rehearing," Price said.

He explained that if the rehearing is denied, the doctor would have 35 days, after notification, to file for an administrative review in the county circuit court. If the hearing is granted, and as a result of the hearing the license revocation is reaffirmed, Dr. Middleton would also have the same period of time to file in the circuit court.

The doctor is scheduled to appear this morning in the circuit court on the criminal charges. Genson is expected to file a motion to dismiss the indictments.

Genson said Tuesday he feels the indictments are "faulty."

Day-Care Center Doors May Close

by KAREN RUGEN

Today, mothers working at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village don't worry about their children during the day. In September, they may have to.

For five years, female medical center employees have been using the day care center at the hospital as a baby-sitting service for their children between the ages of 2 and 5. On Sept. 1, the center is scheduled to close.

"The fees we charge for the center don't come close to the $10,000 a year it costs us to operate the center," said William Shields, administrative assistant for supportive services and director of the center.

Current fees are $3 a day for one child and $4.50 a day for two. Shields said it costs the hospital $21 a week per child to operate the center that is open Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

But cost is not the major reason for closing the center, according to Shields. The center will become part of a hospital's cafeteria when part of a hospital expansion program begins in the fall. "The cafeteria is much too small," explained Shields. "We opened it with a staff of 174 and now we have more than 1,000."

"The only vacant space is the basement of the new addition scheduled to begin in the fall," said Shields. "According to the law, a day care center must be on the ground floor. It would now cost us $50,000 to build a new center, and we just don't have the money."

THE PARENTS OF 24 children who currently attend the center will have to make other baby-sitting arrangements and so will other Northwest suburban parents now on vacation who had planned to use the facilities of the center, which can take up to 40 children a day in two shifts, in the fall.

"We are trying not to have the center closed," said Maria Fernandez, a full-time nurse at the hospital. "We are starting a list of names of employees who don't want the center to be closed. We are then going to talk to hospital officials." Mrs. Fernandez said the list of names would probably not be ready until August since many mothers are now on summer vacations.

Mrs. Fernandez, a Bensenville resident, has two children. John, 5, currently attends the Day Care Center. She had hoped that Carla, now 18 months, would use the facilities as soon as she was two.

"The hospital has been providing a marvelous service for us. Our children are right there with us and it is relaxing to know that they are getting the best care," said Mrs. Fernandez, who has been using the center for 3 1/2 years. "If we have to look for professional baby-sitters, we will never be to work on time. Most services don't start until 7 a.m." Mrs. Fernandez, like many other hospital employees, begins work at 7 a.m.

Karen Green, an X-ray technician, is also worried about what will happen in the fall. She has been working at the hospital for seven months and her two children attend the day care center.

"I APPLIED for part-time work at the hospital, but I took full-time because of the center and a place to put the kids," said Mrs. Green, a Hoffman Estates resident. "The kids have made a lot of friends there. In fact, I feel guilty when I take a day off because I am afraid the kids will miss something."

"If I have to go through what I did during the first month I worked when I used baby-sitters and not the center, I'll quit," she said.

Mrs. Green and Iris Sizemore, a full-time X-ray technician with two children at the center, both hope that Mary Shallcross, a baby-sitter at the center, will take care of their children in September.

"I'm just hoping for that or I will have to send them to a nursery school," said Mrs. Sizemore of Schaumburg. "I'm not going to stop working — that's a fact."

Mrs. Shallcross, mother of 11 children, has been working at the center since it opened in June of 1966. She said yesterday that she has applied for a state license to hold a day care center in her home, which could take care of eight children. She said she has had a license in the past, and hopes to hear from the state this week.

"I FEEL VERY nostalgic about the center," Mrs. Shallcross said. "I don't know if I could do anything else but take care of children."

Taking care of the children has been her job along with one other full-time and a part-time baby-sitter. "We are not running a school," Shields said. "But we do have to keep the children busy because little children can get bored in half an hour."

Each day, the children in the center's sunlit room play games — by themselves or with other children. In good weather, they can play outside on the playground equipment set up on the hospital lawn. Or they can ride the tricycles the hospital provides. Between play times are snack times and a hot lunch from the hospital cafeteria. And each child is required to take a daily nap.

"The kids love it," said Shields. "They get discipline, entertainment and love. If a child needs a little cuddling, he gets it. But that's not molly-coddling."

The center opened with the hospital to attract mothers who otherwise would not be able to work. Today as well as when it opened, the center is one of the few day care facilities in the area provided directly for employees by industry.

According to Shields, the need for the center which is available to both full and part-time help is not as great now as it was five years ago. He said he does not think the hospital will lose staff because of the center closing.

Mothers won't be the only ones who will miss the center. Shields, who has six children of his own, is sad to lose his "hospital family."

"I go down and play with the kids every day," he said. "No two kids are alike. They all have their own personalities," he said.

But still the center must close, according to hospital officials. "The center answered a need for a few individuals and some need for the hospital," Shields said. "But you have to weigh all the needs of the hospital and the result was tilted."

Carnival To Fight Muscular Dystrophy

A "Neighborhood Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy" will be held Aug. 7 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cunningham, 901 Alder Ln., Mount Prospect.

The carnival will be run by Catherine Cunningham and Teresa Zwolski. It will last from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Funds from the carnival will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America. Last year more than $500,000 was raised across the country through carnivals such as this.

Legal Setback Hits Opponents Of Assessment 70

Opponents to Special Assessment 70 suffered a legal setback yesterday in their battle against the $634,000 storm sewer project, designed to alleviate long-time flooding problems in the Heights area of Mount Prospect.

A circuit court judge yesterday overruled an objection from Edward Finnegan, an attorney representing about 50 of the objectors, that the project was not a local improvement. Finnegan had supported his contention by saying the project would drain not only the Mount Prospect subdivision, but also properties outside the village limits.

According to attorneys connected with the matter, had the judge upheld Finnegan's objection, the project would have been scrapped.

Most of the funds for the project will come through assessments of individual property owners in the Hatlen Heights area. The assessments range from several hundred to several thousand dollars.

ABOUT 110 of the 380 property owners who received bills for the project are protesting the amount of their assessments. One group, calling itself the Hat-len Heights Civic Association, is made up of about 50 of the homeowners, and is represented by Finnegan. The second group, represented by Leroy Tornquist, includes about 60 persons.

Both groups say they are not opposing the project itself, but only the amount of their assessments. The two groups feel additional sums for the project should come from the village as well as from the owners of Dana Point Apartments, Magnus Farm Convalescent Center, and 35 acres of unincorporated farm land. Currently the village is scheduled to pay about $157,000 as the public benefit portion. The only other donation, $17,000, is coming from Dana Point.

The objection, overruled today, was a legal objection. It dealt with the distribution of the assessments. The judge's ruling means court deliberations on the matter will proceed to the benefit objections. (These are objections in which property owners contend the amount of financial benefit they will gain from the project is not equal to their assessment.)

However, before the benefit objections are taken up, a court hearing on a class action suit in connection with the assessment will be held. Finnegan has filed the suit seeking to give property owners who initially chose not to object to their assessment more time to object if they want to.

Kenneth Stonecipher, the attorney handling SA70 for the village, wants the suit dismissed. A hearing on Stonecipher's motion will be held next Thursday. No date for a hearing on the benefit objections has been set.

Finnegan chose to pursue his legal objection yesterday because he felt it would weaken his benefit objections if he did not. Tornquist, however, chose a different strategy. Though he filed legal objections, he said Tuesday he would not pursue them, pointing out that if they were upheld, the project would be scrapped. This, he said, his group did not want.

In support of his contention that the project is not a local improvement, Finnegan said the project is designed to handle future developments in the area. But Stonecipher countered by saying the design of the project plays no part in determining whether it can be termed a local improvement.

Fireman On Probation For Threat

A former Prospect Heights volunteer fireman was sentenced to one year's probation yesterday for phoning a false bomb threat to a Dist. 23 school, last spring.

Judge Simon Porter, of the Cook County Circuit Court ruled yesterday that Marvin Keihl was guilty of disorderly conduct and assigned him to a probation officer and a psychiatrist. Keihl, 21, of 415 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, must report regularly to the probation officer and the doctor during the one-year period.

Keihl was freed on a $5,000 bond in March after he was arrested for phoning a false bomb threat to the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. In May Keihl pleaded guilty to the charge.

The false bomb threat that led to his arrest was made March 15. The call was the third received at MacArthur School within a few days. In the same time span, false bomb threats were also telephoned to two other Prospect Heights schools: St. Alphonsus Catholic School and Robert Frost School.

SOME ARE FOR the strike, others are not too sure, but no one was reported crossing the CWA picket lines at suburban Illinois Bell offices: Some 25,000 employees throughout the state are affected by the strike action.

Automated Equipment, Supervisors Busy

Phone Workers Walk Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new

IN ILLINOIS: 25,000 Bell employees on strike, some 10,000 of them members of the striking Communications Workers of America.

THE ISSUE: Wages. Illinois Bell said they will raise operators' salaries from $115.15 per week to $161.50 over a 24-month period. Cost to the company is said to be $200 million for the proposed three year contract. Union spokesmen one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 500,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were re-said it is not enough. The two sides are reportedly close to settlement but disagree on how the money will be spent.

THE FUTURE: The strike will be "at least two weeks long" according to the union. Still undecided is the contract of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers who also work for Bell. Union activists in New York have threatened to spark a nationwide communications breakdown by calling for 750,000 postal employees to strike also.

ported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at $91.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 586. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

In Summer School Class

Migrant Children Learning, Playing

by WANDALYN RICE

Swimming, reading and just plain learning to get along is occupying the summer of about 35 Mexican-American migrant children in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

The children are in the summer school class funded by the federal government's program for disadvantaged children now in its second year in the school district.

The day begins for the children with an hour-long swim in Disney Pool at Lively Junior High School. The swimming helps with "motor skills, language and just plain fun," Robert Ibarra, director of the program, said.

FROM THE pool Ibarra and his fellow teachers take the children, usually by way of a foot path, to Adm. Robert Byrd School nearby where they have a snack of cookies and soft drinks and settle down to "academics."

On the academics, Ibarra said, "We try to take a different approach from the one they get in the regular school year."

The younger children work on English and on reading with a program designed especially for the disadvantaged and the older ones, including the junior high students, work to improve their skills with programs designed especially for them, Ibarra said.

During the afternoon, he said, the teachers and children join the Elk Grove Park District playground program fun at Byrd School.

The teachers work with the youngsters and play the games he said. "It helps us get involved with the kids because we are showing them how to play games some of them have never heard of," he said.

The five teachers, three of whom are with the children at any given time, do not take breaks during the day, he said.

"The only way we like to teach is to become involved with the kids completely," he added.

THE TEACHERS have also this year completed a program in teaching English as a second language, which is helping, he said.

All the children in the summer program are classified as migrants, meaning that their families either follow the crops north from Texas or have been settled in the area for less than five years.

During the regular school year Dist. 59 also has a program for 112 Mexican-American children, including many who are no longer officially migrants, he said.

Ibarra said he hopes that federal funds will become available to teach "bi-lingual" children, regardless of whether they are migrant or not.

Also, Ibarra, who was born in Chile and lived in Venezuela, said "I speak Spanish to the kids to let them know it is a wonderful language."

Many times children in migrant programs, he said, become ashamed of their first language and, since they are never taught much of it, "they become functional illiterates in two languages."

IBARRA AND the other teachers often spend their afternoons visiting the children's homes and getting to know the parents, he said. "We believe seeing the parents and having them know us and the program is very important."

The children come from different parts of the district and many from Des Plaines live in trailer parks. "There is a lot of problems in housing," he said, adding that many nurserymen who employ migrants are moving their migrant housing out to the west to avoid bad publicity surrounding housing conditions in the area.

This year, some of the children who were in the program for the first time last summer have returned, he said. "You can see a 100 per cent change," Ibarra said. "We are making tremendous progress with these kids."

Friewer Alternate Winner In Contest

Donna Friewer of Mount Prospect was one of 12 alternate scholarship winners in the annual Carthage College Poetry Seminar June 21 through June 25. She submitted three original poems in the contest.

Action Postponed On Applications

The Mount Prospect Village Board of Trustees postponed action on two liquor license applications until its July 20 meeting.

The board decided to take no action on the request of Carl's Pizzeria, 712 E. Northwest Highway, for an "R" license to serve alcoholic beverages at tables with a meal, and on the request of the Dover Inn Corp., corner Algonquin Road and Dempster Street, for a "B" license to serve liquor at tables and a bar.

Last week's action came at the request of two trustees, Richard Monroe and George Anderson, who wanted more time to consider the requests and review the locations of the restaurants.

Trustee Dan Ahern said he hopes the board will take up discussion of a liquor license policy at the next meeting. "I already have a very definite one (policy) in my mind," he said.

Village Park District Swimmers Top Glenview

In its second conference meet of the year, the Mount Prospect Park District swimming team overcame its counterpart from Glenview, 291 to 250.

Victories by divers Cindy Gentzler, Rob Fitzgerald, Bill Duggan and Craig Hoppensteel put Mount Prospect ahead at the start of the meet. Following suit were the winning medley relay teams of Bill Geiser, Rick Martinek, George Halas and Dick Fitzsimmons, Julie Tank, Lorie Aukerman, Winora O'Mera and Barbara Larsen, Mike Conlin, Tom Conlin, Paul Andreen and Brian Halvorsen.

Gaining points in the singles event for Mount Prospect were the freestyle teams of Cliff Schlak and Dick Fitzsimmons, Anne Halas and Terry Fitzsimmons, Doug Schlak and Ed Fitzsimmons, Patti Larsen and Josie Fitzsimmons, Tom Conlin and Mike Conlin, Julie Tank and Lorie Aukerman, Rick Fox and George Halas. Adding to the score in the individual medley were teammates Gail Schlak and Jemma Allen, Dave Larsen and Brad Busse, Patti Rothwell and Mary Fitzsimmons, Cliff Schlak and Rick Fox. Backstroke point-getting teams were Winora O'Mera and Lori Aukerman, Josie Fitzsimmons and Mary Ann Withers, Tim Ward and Mark Halvorsen, Terri Fitzsimmons and Jemma Allen, Patti Rothwell and Jan Allen, Bill Geiser and Rick Fox.

The butterfly stroke teams of Barbara Larsen and Winora O'Mera, Brian Halvorsen and Mike Conlin, Tom Balas and Mike Lucansky, Gail Schlak and Patti Kalal, Bill Geiser and Fred Westdale plus the breaststroke teams of Anne Halas and Mary Arko, Doug Schlak and Brad Busse, Cliff Schlak and Rick Martinek, Barbara Larsen and Winora O'Mera, rounded out Mount Prospect's double winning effort.

Going into the final relays Mount Prospect and Glenview were separated by only 23 points. From there on, the team that had the best winning combinations could be the victor. Mount Prospect had them in the teams of Jemma Allen, Mary Arko, Jane Johnson and Patti Kalal, Kevin Radig, Ed Fitzsimmons, Dave Larsen and Doug Schlak, Mary Fitzsimmons, Jan Allen, Betsy Jeffreys and Patti Rothwell, Bill Geiser, Dick Fitzsimmons, Rick Fox and Cliff Schlak.

Thefts Reported

Three different thefts from parked cars, two at the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot, Monday netted thieves a radio, a guitar amplifier and a tachometer.

An AM/FM radio, valued at $80, was taken Monday evening from a car belonging to Ann M. Stanton, 58, of 838 Old Willow Rd., Wheeling, according to Mount Prospect police. Police entry was gained by breaking the left side vent window.

According to police, Daniel Neitzke, 20, of 517 N. Eastwood Ave., Mount Prospect, parked his car in a side parking lot at Wilkins Music Center, 920 E. Northwest Hwy. Police said that when Neitzke returned to his car an amplifier, valued at $425, had been stolen.

The incident occurred between 3 and 3:30 p.m. Monday.

In the third theft, Mrs. Orlando C. Zajick, 24, of 1115 W. Elm, Arlington Heights told police that a $40 tachometer had been taken from her car while it was parked at Randhurst. Police said the car had been locked but there was no sign of forced entry.

Township Offers Room For Groups

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors has agreed to make one room in the Elk Grove Town Hall available for use by community groups in School Dist. 59.

The meeting room in the town hall at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., holds up to 150 and is available on a first come, first served basis, according to Bernard Lee, township auditor.

Lee said the action was taken because the school district has closed its facilities to community groups.

A minimum fee of $12 will be charged to each group which uses the facilities in the town hall. A fee of $6 per hour will be charged after the first two hours of use. The fees will be used to pay for custodial services.

WATER IS GREAT and the 35 children in the migrant kids a chance to work on English and reading as well as swimming. Many of the children had never been in a six-week program, financed by federal funds, gives the pool before this summer.

Suit Names Horseman's Group Leader

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area. Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complainant caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employers under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant, through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Indian Cut In Camp Fight

A 28-year-old Indian was injured early Tuesday evening when he was reportedly cut with a straight razor by a white man at the Indian campgrounds at Big Bend in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines police said the Indian, Elwood DeCorra, of 1216 W. Oakdale, Chicago, was cut in the stomach by a white man who is living at the camp with his Indian wife and children.

DeCorra was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated and released.

DeCorra told police an Indian woman had told the white man she did not want DeCorra at the lake camp site. He said the man then attacked him with the razor, but that he was able to avoid injury until an Indian man struck him in the face.

DeCorra said that after he was struck the white man cut him with the razor.

Des Plaines Police Detectives Robert Zeimet and John Storm, accompanied by Sgt. Garry Vande Vusse said they went to the campgrounds to investigate the incident and spoke with Mike Chosa, leader of the Indian group.

VANDE VUSSE SAID that after Chosa was unsuccessful in having the alleged attacker come out of the camp, he met the man halfway — about 500 feet from the main campgrounds.

Vande Vusse said that after talking to the man, he believed the attack may have been partially justified, although excessive, because the man apparently was protecting his family and other small children from DeCorra, who was "acting aggressively and irrationally."

Cook County Grand Jury Indicts Four

A Cook County Grand Jury yesterday returned murder indictments against four men charged with the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of Inverness Resident George Jayne.

Among those indicted was Jayne's 63-year old brother, Silas Jayne. Both brothers figured prominently in the horse business and made headlines over the last decade by the bitter feud they had between them.

Also indicted were Joseph LaPlaca, 48, of 321 McClure, Elgin; Edwin Nefeld, 33, of 22341 Sherman Rd., Chicago; and Julius Barnes, 37, of 7318 S. University, Chicago.

All four men were arrested last May by combined state, county and local police and have been held without bond at Cook County Jail.

Yesterday, the indictments were returned before Acting Chief Criminal Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald. All four men were also indicted for conspiracy to murder.

The grand jury recommended the defendants be held without bond. They will be arraigned at 10 a.m. this morning before Judge Fitzgerald.

The indictments did not include a fifth suspect in the murder case, Kenneth Hansen, 38, of rural Will County, who was arrested June 7 by Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with conspiracy and solicitation to murder. Hansen has been freed on bond.

Bishop Named In Discrimination
Charge At Track

William H. Bishop, president of the Chicago Division of the Horseman's Benevolent Protection Association (HBPA), has been named in a complaint filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) charging discriminatory employment practices at Arlington Park Race Track, the Herald has learned.

It is not known, however, if Bishop, who is also a private trainer in the stable area of the track, was singled out individually or as a representative of the HBPA.

The complaint also cites discriminatory practices in matters relating to insurance coverage, minimum wage provisions, hiring and firing procedure and the transient status of stable hands as it applies to employment.

Nearly 1,000 stable hands are employed in the 45-barn backstretch area. Many belong to ethnic or racial minorities.

THE COMPLAINT was recently filed anonymously by an employee at the stable area, who prefers to remain unidentified for fear of retaliation.

It was also learned that the employee met with EEOC representatives in Arlington Heights Tuesday night and filed a direct complaint, lifting his anonymity with that federal agency.

This means EEOC officials can now begin an investigation into employment practices at the stable area sooner than expected, according to an EEOC representative.

The representative explained that by filing anonymously, the complaint caused the EEOC to go through legal channels, which could have delayed a federal probe of employment conditions for at least two months.

By filing directly, however, it could be as soon as four weeks before federal investigators begin their work.

After the investigation is completed, the EEOC will determine if there is "probable cause" for further action. If action does proceed, the EEOC will first seek a voluntary settlement with employers under investigation.

IF THIS FAILS, the complainant, through the EEOC, can file suit in Federal District Court.

The EEOC representative said in cases involving businesses of a transient nature, such as the race track, the EEOC gives top priority because of the limited time factor.

Futurities

The low and moderate-income housing committee will meet at 8 tonight in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. The committee includes members of the Arlington Heights Village Board and Plan Commission.

Tax Decision Mixed Blessing
For Area Schools: Strong

Recent court decisions reinstituting the corporate and personal property taxes are a mixed blessing, according to Donald V. Strong, superintendent of Elementary School Dist. 25.

Strong said that while the corporate personal property tax will mean additional revenue for the district, the personal property tax, which traditionally goes uncollected in Cook County, could have the effect of diminishing state aid which is based on total assessed valuation.

"On paper we appear wealthier as a result of the personal property tax," Strong said, "but because the tax usually isn't collected in Cook County, the loss in state aid could be enough to offset whatever we'll get from the corporate property tax."

Strong also said that it now appears Dist. 25 will receive about $100,000 less in total state aid than it got last year despite apparent increases in the state package.

Last year the district collected $3,441,000 in state aid, Strong said.

The reduction is due to the state's decision to use a higher assessed valuation for the district in its aid formula, Strong said.

He emphasized that both the tax decisions and the state aid package will have to be studied in more detail before the district's budget is put on file Aug. 12.

In the past, the corporate personal property tax has accounted for approximately 7 1/2 per cent of the district's locally-derived income, Strong said.

Strong said that both tax decisions could be overturned on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Pickets Come Out Early

PICKETS WERE ON THE LINE at 5 a.m. yesterday morning in front of Illinois Bell's Arlington Heights office at 44 S. Vail St. Approximately 170 telephone operators are affected locally by the strike called by the Communication Workers of America.

Won't Seek Injunction Against CNW

The Village of Arlington Heights will not seek an injunction to stop a strike against the Chicago and North Western Ry. (CN&W.)

Because U.S. District Court Judge Joseph S. Perry issued a temporary restraining order in an emergency court session Tuesday night, barring the strike until July 23, the village has called off taking legal action.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel said he had drawn up an injunction and was prepared to file it yesterday morning, but because of the temporary stay against United Transportation Worker (UTU), saw no need for it.

Siegel was directed to prepare an injunction by village trustees Monday night after Trustee James T. Ryan recommended the village take legal action to prevent the strike, which UTU had planned for tomorrow against the CN&W and two other railways.

Siegel said the injunction was designed to stop UTU from striking and "to keep trains running in Arlington Heights."

HE SAID THE BOARD will evaluate the present situation and decide if an injunction will be filed at a later date. The discussion will take place at the village board meeting at 8 p.m. Monday night in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

If the injunction is filed, it will probably be filed with the Chancery Division of the Cook County Circuit Court, he added.

Siegel described the village's plans as being unique, saying that such a move by a municipality is not common practice.

But earlier this week the village board supported Ryan's proposal, saying a train strike would not only affect an estimated 6,000 local commuters, but also put a considerable dent in revenue gained by village-owned commuter parking lots.

Siegel said another reason for withholding the injunction at this time is to avoid getting the village involved in the ongoing labor dispute between UTU and national railroad management, which has been the major reason why UTU called the strike.

Escapes Injury

An 18-year-old Arlington Heights man escaped serious injury early yesterday morning when he lost control of his car and rammed into two parked cars at Elm and Ridge.

Police charged Lynn D. Wilferling, 2201 N. Jackson, with not having his vehicle under control. He is scheduled for an Aug. 23 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Wilferling was treated for minor injuries, but released from Northwest Community Hospital following the accident at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Police had no estimate of damage to the two cars Wilferling hit. The cars were owned by Walter J. Barnak, 916 N. Fernandez; and John H. Nelson, 811 N. Fernandez; both of Arlington Heights.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 180,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

Temperatures from around the nation:

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,360,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Phone Workers Walk Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delayed, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 500,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell

Phone Strike At A Glance

NATIONWIDE: About 500,000 workers affected.

IN ILLINOIS: 25,000 Bell employees on strike, some 10,000 of them members of the striking Communications Workers of America.

THE ISSUE: Wages. Illinois Bell said they will raise operators' salaries from $115.15 per week to $161.50 over a 24-month period. Cost to the company is said to be $200 million for the proposed three year contract. Union spokesmen say it is not enough. The two sides are reportedly close to settlement but disagree on how the money will be spent.

THE FUTURE: The strike will be "at least two weeks long" according to the union. Still undecided is the contract of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers who also work for Bell. Union activists in New York have threatened to spark a nationwide communications breakdown by calling for 750,000 postal employees to strike also.

facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said eight IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it," he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 90 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Chris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

At the larger Bell office at 44 S. Vail,

Arlington Heights, about 170 operators are affected by the strike.

There are four pickets assigned to the building. Each person on the picket line works a three-hour shift. Although union members said they have been told the strike will last at least two weeks, one picket said she heard yesterday morning that it would last at least a month. Members of the picket line in Arlington Heights did not seem to be particularly enthusiastic about the strike, but were supporting the union's action.

"I didn't vote for the strike," said Mrs. Marie Hermann of Des Plaines. "I'm supporting a family, three kids and my mother who's retired."

Residents Complain Of Child Protection Lack

Three residents in the area of Frontier Park complained bitterly Tuesday night about lack of protection for their children.

During the meeting of the Arlington Heights Park Board, one resident in the area of the park at Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road said her daughter had been burned with a cigarette lighter. Four teenage girls were responsible for the incident, she said.

Other complaints included teenagers sitting on the playground equipment in the park and refusing to move to allow children to use the swings and slides. Another resident said the older children would also extort money in the pool and other areas of the northwest side park.

"I'm afraid to send my daughter to the park," one woman said. "The park is just not serving us."

WHEN RESIDENTS tried to find help they were met with the answer of "we're not responsible," according to comments made at the meeting.

The residents wanted the park district to provide more supervision in the park to prevent the bullying of small children.

One woman said she liked the park programs, but "I have to drive my kids by car to trampoline classes because they are so scared — and I live right across the street from the park."

Park Board Member William Meister said a patrolman could be put in every park "but we'd have to sacrifice a lot of programs."

One woman retorted, "What good are the programs if the children are afraid to use them?"

Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation for the park district, said the supervision problem had not been brought to his attention before. He said he would talk with pool and playground staff members to try to have them "look out" for the younger children.

ALSO, WHEN A CHILD has a problem, Dodd said he could go to the pool's cashier cage and then the cashier could arrange to get help.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, said, "Most of the problems we have at Frontier Park start at home and that is where you people have to start."

Board Member Edward Condon said residents of the area have to take a certain amount of responsibility to report incidents to park staff members and to be willing to sign complaints with the police department, if necessary.

Mayor Predicts Housing Opposition

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said this week that a proposal asking the city to encourage development of low and moderate-income housing will face opposition in city council.

Behrel said the proposal, which he will send to the city's human relations commission for study, asks the city to take "positive steps" to aid in the development of housing for low-income families here.

"Whether or not they're going to get that kind of positive policy statement from the city, I cannot tell you," the mayor said at his weekly press conference Monday.

Behrel said he will not "prejudice" consideration of the measure by making public his opinion of it, but added that it might not be received favorably by city council.

"For them to expect us to do these positive things — and there's a certain amount of money involved — I don't think they can expect the City of Des Plaines to do them. I just don't think the city council will do it," he said.

The group, which claims active support from 300 persons in the Chicago area, has pushed for development of low and moderate income housing on 15 acres owned by the Clerics of St. Viator in Arlington Heights. A village plan commission has turned down the proposal, which awaits final decision by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Behrel said he met Monday with the Rev. John Petersen of the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC), a group which made the proposal at a press conference in Des Plaines last Friday.

Behrel said Petersen will appear before the city council next Monday night and will formally present the CMCC proposal at that time. The mayor said the human relations commission will then hold meetings on the matter and report back to the city council.

The CMCC has asked the city to end certain zoning practices, which it says are "exclusionary" and prevent development of federally subsidized housing. The group has said the city's zoning ordinances amount to "unintentional and unconscious racism."

According to Behrel, the group's proposal, as presented Monday by Petersen, is "somewhat general" and does not request any specific development.

"They say they agree there's no deliberate act on the part of the city to create 'exclusionary' tactics but it just happens accidentally as a result of the way the ordinances are written," Behrel said.

ALSO ATTENDING Monday's meeting were City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach and Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd), chairman of the city council's health and welfare committee, Behrel said.

At his press conference Monday afternoon, the mayor said developers of low income housing would face "sky high" land prices in Des Plaines.

He said one CMCC proposal, that the city use its condemnation powers to bring down land prices, does not take into account the fact that land prices in condemnation suits are set at fair market values by court juries.

Behrel also said that a lack of mass transit in Des Plaines would cause problems for low-income families that could not afford a car.

The CMCC last week said it decided to push for development of low and moderate-income housing in Des Plaines because of the city's relatively large amount of industry, which employs many workers "who cannot afford to live here."

"We anticipate the city council will be wise enough not to wait for pressure before they take the lead," Rev. Petersen said last week.

"IF THE CITY doesn't create an orderly process, it will result in a disorderly process because the need is so great that one way or another these workers will have housing — in trailer parks, in developments by unscrupulous builders or in block busting," he said.

The CMCC says Des Plaines industries employ "thousands of blacks and chicanos who cannot afford to live here," although it says it has made no study to determine the need for housing here.

Olympic Trials Slated Friday

Preliminary trials for the Paddock Olympics will be held Friday at the playground locations operated by the Arlington Heights Park District.

The trials are open to youngsters between 8 and 13 years old. Winners in the preliminary trials will compete to represent the Arlington Heights Park District in the Paddock Olympics, which involves children from area park districts.

The finals for representatives for the local park district will be held Monday at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

Children who are interested in becoming park district representatives in the Olympics should sign up for the trials at the local playground locations.

These locations include Camelot Park, Brighton Place and Suffield Drive; Dryden Park, 700 S. Dryden Pl.; Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road, Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude St.; and Heritage Park, Victoria Lane and Highland Avenue.

More locations are Patriot Park, Palatine Road and Dale Avenue, Prospect Heights, Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave., Recreation Park; and Raven Park, Berkley Drive and Highland Avenue.

Cook County Grand Jury Indicts Four

A Cook County Grand Jury yesterday returned murder indictments against four men charged with the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of Inverness Resident George Jayne.

Among those indicted was Jayne's 63-year old brother, Silas Jayne. Both brothers figured prominently in the horse business and made headlines over the last decade by the bitter feud they had between them.

Also indicted were Joseph LaPlaca, 48, of 321 McClure, Elgin; Edwin Nefeld, 33, of 22341 Sherman Rd., Chicago; and Julius Barnes, 37, of 7318 S. University, Chicago.

All four men were arrested last May by combined state, county and local police and have been held without bond at Cook County Jail.

Yesterday, the indictments were returned before Acting Chief Criminal Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald. All four men were also indicted for conspiracy to murder.

The grand jury recommended the defendants be held without bond. They will be arraigned at 10 a.m. this morning before Judge Fitzgerald.

The indictments did not include a fifth suspect in the murder case, Kenneth Hansen, 38, of rural Will County, who was arrested June 7 by Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with conspiracy and solicitation to murder. Hansen has been freed on bond.

Burglars Enter News Agency — Get $4,332

Burglars made off with $4,332 in checks and currency either early yesterday morning or late Tuesday night from the Arlington Heights News Agency, 200 W. Campbell St.

Paul Bell, assistant manager of the agency, which is an area wide distributor of newspapers, reported the break-in to Arlington Heights police yesterday.

Bell told police $3,316 in currency and $916 in checks were stolen from a safe in the rear of the agency, and an additional $100 in cash was taken from a cash register.

Police said the burglary occurred sometime between 9 p.m. Tuesday and 1:30 a.m. yesterday. A patrol car reported checking the agency at 12:30 a.m. yesterday and found nothing out of the ordinary.

Police investigation revealed pry marks on the back door of the agency. Police also found a glove and a three-foot long piece of conduit on the floor in front of the safe, which had been pried open.

No fingerprints were found, however.

Police also said a large file cabinet and chair had been moved in front of the safe to partially block the view from the windows fronting on Campbell Street.

Goodwill Chief Will Address Rotary Club

Lester Minion, president of Goodwill Industries of Chicago, will be the guest speaker at the noon meeting today of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club.

Minion will talk about the variety of services available to suburban residents at the luncheon meeting at Arlington Park Towers.

In addition to providing pickup boxes for donated goods, Goodwill Industries also offers family and psychological counseling and training in 15 skills for the handicapped.

TINKERING WITH A MOBILE which she made from a tin can, student artist Barbara Koenig prepares her exhibit for the art fair held Saturday at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St. Miss Koenig, a student in architecture at the University of Illinois, lives at 18 N. Salem Ave., Arlington Heights. The art fair was sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Seek Village Donation To The Bridge

Members of the Arlington Heights Youth Council and the Village Board agreed in a meeting last night to submit to the finance committee a recommendation that the village donate approximately $14,000 to The Bridge, a youth counseling center located in Palatine.

The contribution, if approved by the village board, would be used to hire two more case workers to serve Arlington Heights. The Bridge now has three, full-time, salaried counselors serving Palatine Township and Arlington Heights.

The Bridge is a federally-funded, experimental program designed to give both parents and young people a place to turn with their problems. The program will be reviewed and a decision made on whether or not to continue it at the end of the year.

Speaking in support of The Bridge, youth council member Rodney Kath said that agency is currently serving both Palatine Township and Arlington Heights with a three-man staff originally conceived of as barely large enough for Palatine.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS agreed to participate in the new program when it was learned that Palatine Township did not have a large enough population to qualify for the federal grant.

"Every problem involving a youth almost always involves at least two other persons — his mother and father," Kath said. "So everything a youth counselor does is really done in triplicate."

Board member Frank Palmatier said he thought the village probably could afford to contribute something to the program, but added that he wasn't sure just when the money might be available.

He said that to date there had been three major requests for funds from the village which were not included in the annual budget, The Bridge being the third.

The other two were $45,000 to hire a planning staff to draw up a master plan and $25,000 to $30,000 to hire a community coordinator. The second request still has not yet been approved, Palmatier said.

"I think it is going to be an increasing function of the Youth Council to advise us on how to spend money in this area," Palmatier said referring to the various proposals that are likely to come before the village board as a part of the mayor's Community Action Program (CAP).

Sentence Bomb Hoax Caller

A former Prospect Heights volunteer fireman was sentenced to one year's probation yesterday for phoning a false bomb threat to a Dist. 23 school, last spring.

Judge Simon Porter, of the Cook County Circuit Court ruled yesterday that Marvin Keihl was guilty of disorderly conduct and assigned him to a probation officer and a psychiatrist. Keihl, 21, of 415 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, must report regularly to the probation officer and the doctor during the one-year period.

Keihl was freed on a $5,000 bond in March after he was arrested for phoning a false bomb threat to the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. In May Keihl pleaded guilty to the charge.

The false bomb threat that led to his arrest was made March 15. The call was the third received at MacArthur School within a few days. In the same time span, false bomb threats were also telephoned to two other Prospect Heights schools: St. Alphonsus Catholic School and Robert Frost School.

If Keihl violates the requirements of his probation he must return to court to be sentenced again. In addition to visiting his probation officer and the psychiatrist, Keihl must work regularly and not leave the state without informing the court.

Keihl was suspended from the Prospect Heights Volunteer Fire Department following his arrest by Cook County Sheriff's Police. Keihl has been a probationary member of the fire department for about 2½ months when the incidents occurred.

MECCA Asks Meet With Board

by VICKI HAMENDE

A labor dispute has erupted between the Des Plaines Park District Board of Commissioners and park maintenance workers over salaries and civil service status for park employees.

According to George Thorne, secretary of the Municipal Employees City Coordination Association (MECCA), which represents the park district's maintenance department, the 13 maintenance men have been trying since May to get the park board to consider their demands.

Originally, said Thorne, the group requested a 12 per cent pay raise, one extra holiday and civil service status. The board responded in May with an eight per cent pay raise and one extra holiday.

SINCE THEN THE group has met on three occasions with Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation and secretary of the board. "We have requested that he speak with the board to organize a meeting with the men," said Thorne.

"The men don't feel that an eight per cent raise goes along with the cost of living," Thorne said. "And they want the job security and the promotions insured by civil service status."

Thorne said so far the park board has denied the MECCA requests for a group meeting and has instructed the men to discuss their grievances with Kunkel.

"They won't talk to the men," Thorne said. "These workers are affiliated with MECCA for legal help. They try to settle their own problems. But when they have difficulty, as they are now with the park board, MECCA tries to help."

"If the board would just meet with them things could be talked out," he said. "These men maintain all the parks — they're outside in hot weather setting up ball diamonds and in cold weather flooding ice ponds. They don't have the nicest job in the world," said Thorne.

TUESDAY THE maintenance workers presented a letter to Kunkel, stating their demands and requesting that Kunkel contact the park board immediately to arrange a meeting before Thursday to discuss a 12 per cent raise and civil service status.

"Our board president is out of town right now so I can only suggest to the workers that they come to Tuesday's regularly scheduled park board meeting to talk to the board," Kunkel said. "Since they've been working on this since May, a couple more days shouldn't make that much difference."

Kunkel said that he has been meeting with the men. "Because the board felt it was my job to negotiate with them. I've been happy to do so and I've discussed all of their grievances with the board," he said.

"The board discussed the civil service request at a meeting," Kunkel said. "They said we only have 13 fellows and we try to be very personal with them. They said no one is going to be fired unjustly."

"They don't feel civil service status is

'Daisy' Computes Oakton's Answers

The computer has come to Oakton Community College in Morton Grove in the form of "Daisy," a yellow IBM mechanical brain that promises both to aid in teaching students and in administering the growing junior college.

Students will be getting a first hand look at what "Daisy" can do during registration, when the computer will help unscramble the many problems of getting the right person into the right classroom with the right teacher at the right time.

When registration begins, the computer will be hooked up to a closed circuit television screen, where it will display class lists and enrollment data for all courses being offered at Oakton.

Students will be able to see their prospective class schedules while they are registering and faculty members will be able to guide them in selecting courses and class times. Before enrolling a student, the computer will check for time conflicts, number of seats remaining in the classroom, temporarily closed classes and the maximum credit hours allowed each Oakton student.

Another important administrative application of the computer will be its use by the college's business office to speed up and check all accounting and budgeting procedures.

Students enrolled in computer courses will have experience using the computer, learning how to operate "Daisy's" various components as part of their course requirements.

Graduates of Oakton's two-year associate degree program in data processing will qualify for immediate employment as computer programmers. Oakton also offers a computer accounting course that will be opened to students this fall.

Planned future classroom applications will deal with the incorporation of a new IBM program called "Course Writer." With the program, instructors can construct complete course outlines in question and answer form which will be stored in the computer's memory.

Then "Daisy" will be able to display questions and a choice of answers to a student sitting at a closed circuit television console. The computer will provide a new question to a student only after he has successfully answered a previous one.

Use of the computer as a teaching tool allows the student to proceed at his own pace and frees the instructor for more intensive and more creative instruction, according to school officials.

In the fall, a course on computer usage will be taught by Oakton's data processing staff to encourage faculty members to explore the full potential of the computer in their courses.

3 Maryville Youths On Supervision

Three youths from Maryville Academy were placed on a year's supervision in the Niles branch of the county circuit court for their alleged involvement in two Des Plaines burglaries.

Placed on the supervision were Terrence Quigley, Jerry Martin and James Curtin, all 17 years old.

The three were charged with burglarizing a building at the All Saints Cemetery, 700 N. River Rd., and the Spotsagard Cleaners, 679 N. Wolf Rd., in mid-June.

The three youths were also ordered by Judge Marvin Peters to pay $120 each in restitution of the money they allegedly stole.

Quigley and Martin were remanded to the Maryville Academy where they reportedly are participating in a work program. Curtin was released in the custody of his father following a recommendation by a state social worker.

Fulle Meets Indians At Campsite

Cook County Commissioner Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines has met with the Indians camped out at Big Bend Lake twice this week to "try to act as a catalyst in obtaining adequate housing for them."

Fulle, who explained that he went to the camp site on the south side of the lake because he lives within a mile of the self-styled reservation and is "more keenly interested than any other member of the county board."

Fulle said he visited the campgrounds both Saturday and Tuesday evenings and met with Mike Chosa, leader of the group, and two of his top lieutenants.

"We talked about the administration of the camp and health facilities," Fulle said, and "discussed in detail what their real objective is."

The commissioner said he found it difficult to determine the group's overall objective, but said they want to "retain their tradition and live together, not as in a commune, but as neighbors."

FULLE SAID these Indians, and others across the country, classify themselves as "urban Indians" because they have moved to the cities — frequently as a result of federal relocation projects. "That is something that should never have happened," the commissioner said.

The county has aided the approximately 80 Indians, Fulle said, by providing four portable latrines for the camp site, eight 50-gallon refuse containers, and has initiated three-day-per-week garbage collection. He said the Indians have agreed to stop cutting down trees in the forest preserve.

Dr. John Hall, head of the county health department, said yesterday he expects to go to the camp before the end of the week to inoculate the Indians, espe-

Man Hurt In Skirmish At Lake

A 28-year-old Indian was injured early Tuesday evening when he was reportedly cut with a straight razor by a white man at the Indian campgrounds at Big Bend in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines police said the Indian, Elwood DeCorra, of 1216 W. Oakdale, Chicago, was cut in the stomach by a white man who is living at the camp with his Indian wife and children.

DeCorra was taken to Holy Family Hospital where he was treated and released.

DeCorra told police an Indian woman

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Telephone workers are on strike nationwide in a contract dispute with the Bell System, causing minor delays in reaching operators — sometimes men — and halting installation and repair service. Communications Workers of America President Joseph A. Beirne said the strike would last at least two weeks. The last phone strike in 1968 lasted 17 days. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. called the strike "totally unnecessary."

The Senate has upheld President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment. Nixon Monday had signed a more limited $2.25 billion bill to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the American Medical Association of obstructing almost every major step to improve health care for Americans while degenerating into "a propaganda organ for purveying 'medical politics.'"

The State

The formation of a citizen's committee to urge Thomas A. Foran, prosecutor of the Chicago Seven trial, to run for governor on the Democratic ticket, was announced.

Daniel Walker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, passed the 100-mile mark west of Shawneetown in deep southern Illinois. He spent the night in Harrisburg.

The War

The U.S. Army, which turned over its last fire base on the Demilitarized Zone defense line to the South Vietnamese only last week, opened a new one there to help protect the area during an expected Communist autumn offensive. GIs assigned there immediately dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The World

More than 1,000 persons in addition to the rebel soldiers involved, have been arrested in Rabat, Morocco as a result of Saturday's attempt to assassinate King Hassan II, Moroccan sources reported. They said more executions are likely to follow those of 10 high ranking officers who died before firing squads Tuesday.

Gough Whitlam, leader of Australia's opposition Labor party, reported that Premier Chou En-lai had told him Red China is willing to take part in a revived

Geneva conference on Indochina but under a "more Asian framework."

Arab news agencies reported heavy casualties in north Jordan where King Hussein's government said its troops started an offensive to drive Palestinian guerrillas from strong points they used to terrorize Jordanian villagers.

The Weather

Pleasant weather prevailed from the Midwest to the Pacific Northwest although scattered tornadoes caused damage in some Midwest areas.

Temperatures from around the nation:

The Market

The stock market has slipped lower in the face of growing concern over inflation, high unemployment, and disappointment over the pace of economic recovery. The Dow Jones Average finished with a loss of 1.17 at 891.21 after tumbling 11 points Tuesday. Declines topped advances, 738 to 596. Volume on the New York Exchange was 14,369,000, up from Tuesday's 13,540,000. Prices also eased in moderate turnover on the American Exchange.

Dr. Middleton Files For Rehearing

A request for a rehearing of his license revocation was filed just under the wire yesterday by Dr. James Middleton, the Des Plaines area physician charged with deviate sexual assault.

A petition for the rehearing was filed yesterday morning with Edward Price, chief attorney for the Illinois Department of Registration and Education, by Edward M. Genson, the doctor's attorney. The medical examining committee of the state agency revoked Dr. Middleton's license to practice medicine June 1 after former women patients testified the doctor drugged and then sexually assaulted them.

Price said at that time the doctor would have 20 days to file for a rehearing before the director of the state department or his license would be revoked. Price explained Dr. Middleton could continue his practice until all avenues of appeal were exhausted.

The deadline for petitioning for the rehearing was extended until yesterday when the findings of the examining committee were not made known officially to the doctor until late June.

DR. MIDDLETON, 44, with offices at 909 Elmhurst Rd., unincorporated Des Plaines, was found guilty by the examining committee of "engaging in dishonorable and unprofessional conduct . . . likely to deceive, defraud or harm the public."

The doctor was also found guilty of "employing fraud and deceit" in obtaining a medical license in the state by not reporting his license had been revoked in Missouri.

Genson said the petition for the rehearing alleged the state examining board should not have held its hearing prior to a disposition of the criminal charges pending against the doctor in the county circuit court.

Dr. Middleton has been charged by the state with two counts each of deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery.

Genson said Tuesday he could not offer the best possible defense for the doctor before the medical committee because he did not want to reveal the defense he has planned for the criminal charges.

Genson, who said six women testified against the doctor, called the testimony "incredible" in his petition to the board.

PRICE EXPLAINED that the matter will be heard by the state director in Chicago "as soon as possible. It's a question of when the director is available."

"But I don't want to prolong this thing," Price added. "It's something not to be fooled around with."

When the date is set by the director, Price explained, it will be for the purpose of arguing motions on whether a rehearing should be granted.

"Obviously, his attorney will make denials of the testimony given at the first hearing and will argue for a rehearing. And I'll argue against a rehearing," Price said.

He explained that if the rehearing is denied, the doctor would have 35 days, after notification, to file for an administrative review in the county circuit court. If the hearing is granted, and as a result of the hearing the license revocation is reaffirmed, Dr. Middleton would also have the same period of time to file in the circuit court.

The doctor is scheduled to appear this morning in the circuit court on the criminal charges. Genson is expected to file a motion to dismiss the indictments.

Genson said Tuesday he feels the indictments are "faulty."

Birchfield Named Band Property Man

James W. Birchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Birchfield of 2045 Spruce St., Des Plaines, is the newly appointed property man for the University of Notre Dame bands. James is a member of the marching and varsity bands.

Birchfield, a graduate of Maine West Township High School, is an arts and letters pre-med major entering his junior year at the university.

Talley Joins GTE Support Department

Edward S. Talley, 400 W. Touhy, Des Plaines, has joined the technical and administrative support department of GTE Automatic Electric Laboratories, Northlake.

Talley, a programming technician, is continuing his studies at Roosevelt University.

cially the children, against tetanus and possibly typhoid.

"As long as they're on county land, we feel we should do something for their protection, regardless of their reasons for being there," Hall said.

The doctor said he has sampled the water in the preserve's artesian wells and has found the water satisfactory for drinking purposes. He said the lake is not fit for swimming, but added it is almost impossible to keep the children out of the water.

DR. HALL SAID he thinks the inoculations could be administered within an hour, based on his rough estimates of about 20 children and 65 adults.

Fulle said he reported his talks with the Indians to County Board President George Dunne with the purpose of trying to find a course of action that would be satisfactory to the Indians.

"We're trying to find a way to help them," Fulle said, "but it has to be a two-way street. When we develop some concrete ideas on how to accomplish that, we'll go back to them and discuss it."

Man Hurt In Skirmish At Lake

had told the white man she did not want DeCora at the lake camp site. He said the man then attacked him with the razor, but that he was able to avoid injury until an Indian man struck him in the face.

DeCora said that after he was struck the white man cut him with the razor.

Des Plaines Police Detectives Robert Zelmert and John Storm, accompanied by Sgt. Garry Vande Vusse said they went to the campgrounds to investigate the incident and spoke with Mike Chosa, leader of the Indian group.

VANDE VUSSE SAID that after Chosa was unsuccessful in having the alleged attacker come out of the camp, he met the man halfway — about 500 feet from the main campgrounds.

Vande Vusse said that after talking to the man, he believed the attack may have been partially justified, although excessive, because the man apparently was protecting his family and other small children from DeCora, who was "acting aggressively and irrationally."

Man Found Dead In Bathtub

A 72-year-old Des Plaines man was found drowned in the bathtub at his home Tuesday.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital was Harold Scott of 126 Dover Dr.

Scott was found in the bathtub by his daughter, Anna Randall of the same address, who told police she discovered her father lying on his side in the water. Police said the man had been unsuccessful in an attempt to take his own life last month.

A spokesman in the Cook County coroner's office said yesterday an autopsy has been completed, but will not disclose the findings until an inquest is held. No date for the inquest has yet been scheduled, the spokesman said.

Des Plaines, I'm really disappointed in you. Yesterday was a holiday and where were all the celebrations?

Bastille Day — the French equivalent to our Fourth of July — should undoubtedly be included in the Des Plaines calendar of celebrations. Maybe the French go around celebrating the bloody overthrow of good old "let them eat cake" Antoinette and her husband Louis but that's their problem.

What we should be celebrating is the grand old French tradition which Des Plaines is steeped in.

Tradition, you may ask? Take a look around you. Where would we be if Father Marquette hadn't paddled down the Des Plaines River in his search for a 7-foot center for Marquette University's basketball team?

OUR TOWN WOULD be without a name had we not borrowed from our allies across the sea. And what would the people on Beau and Walkie Drives do for an address without the French language?

I could easily survive without the yappy French people that lives next door to me. But imagine life without french fries, french bread, french onion rings, french toast and french fried dingles.

French words pop up constantly in our conversation; chic, hors d'oeuvres, saute coup d'etat and filet mignon?

So much of our culture we owe to the French. The Statue of Liberty; the works of Lautrec, Renior, Cezanne and other Frenchmen. Kenz, hang in our museums; all the neat souvenirs, also in our museums, which were left behind by the French in various wars. I'll even bet if you traced the evolution of topless dancers it would begin with the can-can dancer.

AFTER THE United States resolved its original "gimme that land it's mine" dispute with France we went on to become defenders and allies of that country. Just look at the kind words DeGaulle had for us when he needed us. And just think, if the French hadn't pulled out of Vietnam, we may never have gone in there.

With all this, how can we ignore such an important holiday as Bastille Day. Actually there were many ways it could have been celebrated.

French toast should have been the breakfast of every Des Plaines citizen Wednesday morning. Then we could have all gone over to the O'Hare Airport foreign currency exchange and exchanged our dollars for francs (with the stability of French currency you might have even made a profit when you went back to get dollars for your leftover francs). Think of the fun you could have had shopping.

A "FUN FOR ALL" could have been held in the evening as part of the celebration. We could have participated in a authentic building contest. Judged on a gentlemanly and painless basis. Famous local people of French descent could have made speeches. Owners of Renaults and Citroens could have raced.

But it's too late now. The day has passed and we'll have to wait until next year. And when July 14 rolls around next year let's not forget what we owe the French and do something suitable.

Seek Change In Zone Laws

Proposals for changes in Des Plaines zoning laws to encourage low income housing here will be made tonight at a rally of the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC), according to group spokesmen.

Des Plaines and Northwest suburban residents have been invited to the 8 p.m. meeting in the basement of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, at the northeast corner of Lee and Thacker Streets, Des Plaines.

Spokesmen for CMCC, which has pushed for more than a year for low income housing in Arlington Heights, have met with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel, and have arranged to speak at Monday's city council meeting.

CMCC spokesmen have made charges that Des Plaines zoning laws are "exclusionary" and that the city has practiced "unintentional and unconscious racism" in discouraging low income housing.

They have asked the city to make a commitment to low income housing, and to use its condemnation powers, which they say can reduce the prohibitively high cost of Des Plaines property.

ONE SPEAKER at the meeting will be the Rev. John Petersen, 826 Howard St., Des Plaines, who became a member of CMCC two months ago. He heads the housing and racial justice division of the Lutheran Welfare Service of Illinois — an agency that aids approximately 25,000 persons each year.

"Specific proposals will be made — changes aimed at zoning, because that's what is standing in the way," Rev. Petersen told the Herald.

CMCC claims that land for four or five-bedroom housing, which is needed by many low income housing families, would be prohibitively expensive in Des Plaines because of zoning regulations.

CMCC, which claims an active membership of more than 300 in the Chicago area, has held six meetings in Des Plaines since June 1. CMCC claims about 25 active Des Plaines members.

Study-Zoning Deters Low-Income Housing Here

A recent study by a regional planning agency confirms a claim of the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC) that suburban zoning discourages low-cost housing.

But no recent study has yet been made to show what housing needs exist for low and moderate-income families in the six county Chicago suburban area, according to a spokesman of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC).

Spokesmen for CMCC, which is campaigning for low-income housing in Des Plaines, have made claims that a need exists for low-income housing and present zoning is "exclusionary."

Spokesmen for CMCC have met with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel, and will address the city council Monday to encourage a policy favoring low-income housing.

NIPC completed a survey earlier this year of zoning laws in 150 suburban communities. The planning agency is now doing an area-wide study of low-income housing needs, spokesmen said.

Suburban communities usually require a large amount of land per housing unit.

This low density use decreases the amount of available land for housing, and increases the cost of the land the report indicates. High cost land means rents or purchase prices must be higher to make a profit. This means low-income housing is discouraged, the report concluded.

Many communities also discourage low-cost housing by zoning unsubdivided, undeveloped land for low density single-family dwellings, the report stated. The density of such zoning is so low that developers must ask for rezoning before they can build on the property.

Zoning ordinances are often not specific on outlining the reasons needed to change zoning on property, according to NIPC.

When a developer wants to rezone land, the community zoning board often doesn't allow the change unless the land is used for high-cost housing — which will bring the community higher tax revenues and fewer demands for government services, NIPC says.

NIPC also did a survey of the suburban communities to determine location of undeveloped land, and to see where housing may be needed.

NIPC took aerial photos to find sites in the suburbs that were undeveloped and close enough to transportation depots to meet federal low-income housing standards.

The NIPC researchers used state unemployment figures to decide what areas were in need of low-income workers.

This study showed 8,500 acres of available land exist in a 14-acre township area, including Maine Township, where statistics seem to indicate a need for low-cost housing.

Of these 8,500 acres, 7,400 acres were zoned for residential housing. On these sites, 25,000 housing units could be constructed, under community zoning specifications.

However, in almost all cases, the land required by zoning for a housing unit was so expensive, land costs exceeded the $3,000 per unit the federal programs will pay for low-income housing land.

Of the 25,000 possible unit, only 200 units could be built which could receive federal funds for land.

The solution, according to a NIPC spokesman, would be to "rezone for higher density land use, or to raise the federal ceiling on land cost per unit."

MECCA Asks Meet With Board

necessary. It states in our bylaws that all employees have the right to go beyond the director of parks if they feel they have been wronged. So the men can go to the park board just as they would go to a civil service board," he said.

"I ALSO TOLD the men that the board settled at eight per cent for a pay raise and that that's where they stay," Kunkel said.

"The board felt that eight per cent was fair based on comparative salaries in other park districts in the area. We cannot compare with the salaries for city employees. We feel that our salary range is very fair and very competitive," he said.

"MECCA wants to have a special meeting with the park board. I'll contact the president as soon as he gets back in town. But he may tell them to wait until the Tuesday meeting which is open to the public," Kunkel said.

Thorne said that even if the men are given a chance to speak at the Tuesday meeting they might be told that the situation will have to be discussed at the next park board meeting. That will be in late August.

"We have to have this settled before September 1 when the entire budget is finalized for the park district," Thorne said.

"If the board gives us another negative reply to a meeting, the men will have to meet to decide what action they will take in order to be treated fairly both now and in the future," he said.

Oakton Officials Are Disappointed In Cuts

Oakton Community College officials were disappointed Tuesday with Gov. Richard Ogilvie's announcement of a $14 million cut in state aid to junior colleges.

"Our total loss will be $189,000 based on next year's projected enrollment," said Art Kent, Oakton's business manager. "Our budget was planned to include that money and it's money we would have really liked to receive."

Essentially, the governor reduced the flat grant rate from $19 approved by the legislature in June to $15.50, last year's level. Grants to junior colleges are determined by multiplying the flat grant rate by the number of credit hours taught by the school each term.

Harper College in Palatine, like Oakton in Morton Grove, based its 1971-72 budget on the $19 rate.

With a public hearing on the 1971-72 budget scheduled Aug. 12, Harper officials said they must decide soon where an estimated $460,000 can be cut from the operating budget as a result of the state aid cut.

"I'M SHOCKED, inflation alone should be reason to raise the rate," said William Mann, vice president of financial affairs at Harper. "After we worked so hard to get the $19 rate through the legislature, we didn't expect this."

Kent said that Oakton will "survive" the financial cut. "Oakton is still quite a young institution and our enrollments haven't begun to grow that rapidly yet," Kent said. "Right now we have a fairly good tax base, but the governor's decision will mean an added burden for the local taxpayers," he said.

"We won't have to raise tuition or anything to make up the lost revenue. But the cut will hurt our three and four-year projections. And it will have an upward escalating effect on taxes," Kent said.

In the 1971-72 budget, Oakton would have received just under $1 million from the flat grant rate formula. The $189,000 loss is more than a 20 per cent drop in state aid. Oakton's estimated operating budget, which the flat grant supports, is around $14 million.

MANN EXPECTS that Harper and other state junior colleges will work this fall to have the legislature reinstate the $19 flat grant rate.

"If we don't, we are heading for serious financial problems. Such a cut-back will have an impact on our long range financial plans," Mann said.

In the 1971-72 budget, Harper would have received about $2.3 million from the flat grant rate formula. The $460,000 loss is also more than a 20 per cent drop in state aid. Harper's estimated operating budget is $6 million.

Exhibit Of Dolls Now At Library

An exhibit featuring "dolls from around the world" is in the glass case in the lobby of the Des Plaines Public Library during July. The dolls are part of a collection owned by Miss Flo Kuhn, librarian from Maine West High School. Included in the display are figures of Spanish dancers, the London Bobby, Portuguese fisherman, a Jerusalem rug merchant, and many others.

Miss Kuhn has been collecting dolls since 1945, when she made her first trip to Europe. Since then, she has gone to Europe twice, visiting different countries each time, and on a trip around the world, acquiring more dolls along the way.

Rails In Game Of One-Upmanship

As the railroad industry rolls closer to the rail strike slated for 6 a.m. Friday morning, representatives of the carriers and the United Transportation Union (UTU) are playing the game of one-upmanship in their moves to resolve a labor dispute.

The Chicago and North Western Railway is one of three selected by the union for a "whipsaw" strike set for July 16. Others on the strike schedule are the Union Pacific Railroad and the Southern Railway.

A hearing was held late Wednesday afternoon before U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry, on a motion by the UTU to vacate the temporary restraining order slapped on the union Tuesday evening. Judge Perry's order, barring a strike until after a July 23 hearing, had been issued Tuesday evening from his Glencoe home, hours after the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington refused to bar the strike slated for Friday. "I found an emergency does exist," said Perry, "and since all the controversy is here in Chicago, I believe this court has jurisdiction in the matter."

The union filed a motion in the U.S. Appeals Court early Wednesday to issue a show-cause order. This would have required the C&NW to show cause why it should not be held in contempt of that court for taking the action it did, according to Tom Smith of Palatine, assistant public relations director for the C&NW. The motion was denied.

Smith said a temporary restraining order was granted pending the hearing on a temporary injunction which could enjoin the union from striking; this could be followed by a move for a permanent injunction. "The reason we have taken these moves is that the union has not been willing to negotiate with us," Smith said. "We are still ready to negotiate."

Although the UTU has served notice it is seeking a national settlement with the railroad industry, the C&NW has broken away from the National Railway Labor Conference, representing most of the nation's rail lines. The local railway argues that if it is singled out for a selective strike it should be allowed to bargain individually with the UTU. A U.S. Court of Appeals decision in Washington earlier this week denied the C&NW petition to block the strike, but did not specifically forbid the union from bargaining with the C&NW, Smith said. The UTU indicated it would not bargain separately with the rail line because of an earlier U.S. Appeals Court decision which bars it from breaking up national negotiations.

The National Railway Labor Conference and the UTU were called back to the bargaining table in Washington on Wednesday by Assistant Labor Secretary

W. J. Usery Jr., heading the government mediators in the dispute. The issues being negotiated include proposed new work rules, such as longer run crews. Engineers, brakemen and other operations personnel are included in the union membership.

The UTU originally called the strike following a June ruling by a U.S. Appeals court permitting the use of selective strikes, if it would not hamper that national transportation negotiations balance. Carrier representatives replied the work rules would be imposed nationally if the strikes were effected.

Retaliating to this announcement, the UTU said it will strike two other rail lines on July 24: The Southern Pacific Railroad and the Norfolk & Western Railway.

Seek Private Donations For Phone Service

Private donations will be sought by the Maine Township Mental Health Center to finance a new 24-hour emergency phone service, because a state grant awarded yesterday was lower than expected.

Officials of the Mental Health association, 1032 Lee St., Des Plaines, were notified yesterday that the State Department of Mental Health had awarded the agency $81,000 for 1971-72. The agency had requested $100,000, according to the association business manager, William Hall.

More than $20,000 will have to be raised through contributions to finance several programs including a professionally supervised emergency phone service which provides referrals to other area aid agencies and hospitals.

Expansion of present services also depends on contributions, Hall said.

More funds were needed for next year because the center's caseload has grown by 50 per cent in one year to 135 patients a month. The association also has hired its first full-time director, Edward Baranowski, Hall said.

Until a court decision in 1969, the association received funds for its services from a commission Maine Township received for collecting taxes.

After the collection commission was declared unconstitutional townships began to levy taxes, but a separate levy for mental health services was not considered legal by tax experts.

At the time a court-ordered freeze stopped funds to the association, it was receiving about $45,000 a year in township money.

In February, 1970, the state gave the association an $18,000 emergency grant, and later a $75,000 state grant was approved for 1970-71, Hall said.

Area Telephone Workers Walking On Picket Lines

Instead of an operator, the voice at the other end of the line says... "this is a recording. Due to operating difficulties, we are unable to give directory assistance at this time. All operators are busy. If you have an emergency, please try again."

In other words, there is a telephone strike and the area's prime means of day to day communication is in a state of delay, but continuing service.

As picket lines formed outside suburban offices of Illinois Bell and as supervisors and management personnel manned the switchboards and work stations, telephone service continued to function, except for an occasional encounter with a recorded voice.

The formation of picket lines at suburban offices seemed to be sporadic.

In Palatine, no pickets formed and there were no pickets at the new Elk Grove Village plant as of yesterday afternoon.

"As far as I know there have been no picket lines in front of our building," said Bill Grinnell, maintenance and installation superintendent. The Elk Grove Village plant at Lee and King Streets is a new one and does not have CWA workers assigned there.

SOME 500,000 Communication Workers of America members have struck Bell facilities across the country. Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, a separate union of Bell employees, has not yet declared a strike. Most IBEW workers appear to be honoring CWA picket lines in this area, but there are instances where they were reported to have crossed the lines.

In Elk Grove Village, a foreman at the building at 10 N. Scott said IBEW workers left the plant early yesterday morning, but five had stayed. "They had come to work before a picket line formed and so did not cross it" he said. The man said the five men were in sympathy with the strike and thought they would not be back the next day.

Outside the Bell system's office near the corner of Dundee Road and Wolf Road in Wheeling, two 19-year-old telephone operators were on the picket line, walking barefoot in the sunshine. They were talkative, cheerful and frequently waved to people in passing cars. The two girls, Chris Caouette and Linda Campbell, said they were both in favor of the strike action.

About 80 operators work in the Wheeling building and the "top pay no matter how long you've been here is $115 a week," Cris said. "We don't get enough. I don't think anyone could survive on it unless they shared an apartment or lived with their family. We make all our money — I guess you could call it blood money — working on holidays and Sundays for overtime."

BOTH GIRLS were skeptical about management's ability to do the work of the striking operators. "They'll have to work 12 hours a day, six days a week, and they just won't be able to keep up," one girl said.

Both operators said they liked the atmosphere at Illinois Bell and the job security, but that they needed more money because "everything's going up."

At the larger Bell office at 44 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, about 170 operators are affected by the strike.

There are four pickets assigned to the building. Each person on the picket line works a three-hour shift. Although union members said they have been told the strike will last at least two weeks, one picket said she heard yesterday morning that it would last at least a month. Members of the picket line in Arlington Heights did not seem to be particularly enthusiastic about the strike, but were supporting the union's action.

"I didn't vote for the strike," said Mrs. Marie Hermann of Des Plaines. I'm supporting a family, three kids and my mother who's retired."

Central Not Affected By Strike

Central Telephone Co. customers in Prospect Heights and Des Plaines are experiencing almost no inconvenience from the Bell Telephone Co. employees' strike.

Martin Brown, a spokesman for Central Telephone, reported that their customers' calls are being placed successfully to areas serviced by Bell. "I don't know of any customers' complaints about Bell. I hope it continues this way."

Because of Bell's automatic equipment, dialed calls are going directly through. However installation and repair work is curtailed and Bell customers may experience some delay in getting long distance and information assistance.

Last summer Central customers were threatened with a similar strike. The Central employees' bargaining committee set a strike for Aug. 10, but after an all-day negotiation session decided to submit a revised company offer to its membership.

Several days later Central employees called off the strike and voted to accept a two-year contract. The new pact provided two raises, one retroactive to July, 1970, and one effective this month. The pay hikes ranged from 15 to 40 cents an hour. The workers also received changes in grievance procedure and improved sickness and disability pay.

Sewage Plant Opposed Due To Pollution

The Wheeling Village Board voted unanimously Monday to oppose further pollution of the Des Plaines River.

In a resolution directed at the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the board said that it opposes the construction of a sewage treatment plant near the Lake-Cook county line on the Des Plaines River unless the plant is designed to remove practically all pollutants before discharging sewage into the river.

The EPA has recommended construction of the plant to handle wastes from Lake County. It would discharge about 18 million gallons of treated sewage a day into the river, according to the village board resolution.

The village board complained that the river already has "a high rate of pollution" and that state and federal water quality standards are not strict enough to prevent further pollution from the proposed plant.

THE STANDARDS, according to the resolution, now require only secondary treatment of sewage before it is dumped in the river.

The board said it "is in complete opposition" to operation of the plant under these standards. The board demanded that if the plant is built that it be "equipped and capable of providing third stage, supplementary and tertiary treatment of sewage capable of removing 95 per cent or more of the organic or oxygen demanding pollutants from effluent being discharged into the Des Plaines River."

The resolution grew out of a series of meetings earlier this year, on the pollution of the river. Representatives of communities along the river attended and at least one, Riverside, has already opposed the sewage treatment plant.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board has also criticized its federal counterpart for proposing the construction of the plant.

The federal agency has defended its proposal saying that the treated sewage from the proposed plant would be cleaner than the highly polluted river itself.

Area Real Estate Transfers Listed

Thirty-five property sales in Des Plaines paved the way to heightened mid-summer real estate activity in Maine Township, according to the latest monthly real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

There were 30 sales in Park Ridge, 21 in Niles, 11 in Glenview, and six in Morton Grove.

The following list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document, with $1.00 in stamps for each $1,000 of market value.

The transfers are:

THE VILLAGE THAT NEVER CHANGES

Can you imagine a village where you will not see a single garbage can? Where there are no property line fences? Where the smallest homesites are an acre? Where there is no industry? Where no two homes are alike? Where every home must receive architectural approval? These are just a few of the unusual features of Inverness that are protected by prudent deed restrictions to jealously guard against changes in the character, value and way of living in the community. How much does it cost to join this exclusive 450-family village? Our acre-or-larger homesites start at $12,000, with only 20% down and an annual percentage rate of 7%. We also have a portfolio of homes for sale for immediate occupancy due to executive transfers. Prices range from $60,000 to $200,000. Drive out today; or, if you prefer, send for a free brochure.

Our picturesque 4-Silo office is open daily on Baldwin Road, just west of Northwest Highway (Rte. 14) between Palatine and Barrington. Convenient to Northwest Tollway (north from Rte. 55 exit).

*Example: $12,000 purchase-$2400 down, 12% monthly payments of $111.48.

Burchard Rallies For Tie

Burchard came through with three rallies and the Optimists and Allen's came up with a real pitching duel in Tuesday action in the Des Plaines Mid-Teen League.

Burchard, which trailed 8-2 at one point, rallied to gain a tie with American League leading Bantam by an 8-8 count.

Craig Zaleski hurled a four-hit shutout to beat Jim Olsen who threw a two-hitter as the Optimists trimmed Allen's 1-0.

Bantam took a 2-0 lead in the first inning as Dave Nelson walked, Gordy Lewis walked, Frank Mitchell singled in Nelson and Gary Warren singled home Lewis.

Burchard tied the score 2-2 in the bottom of the third with the first run being a long homer over the left-center field fence by Keith Heerdegen. Moments later Irv Mindel reached safely on an error and scored on a double to left-center by Ted Godawski.

Bantam went out in front 8-2 by pouring a half dozen runs across the plate in the fourth inning. In that frame, Gary Warren singled, Carl Sjostrand grounded into a fielder's choice, Tom Schultz singled, Bill Olsen walked to lead the bases, Tim Gillespie drove in Sjostrand and Schultz with a single, Roger Spencer was hit by a pitch to load the bases again, Nelson singled in Olsen and Gillespie, Lewis hit a sacrifice fly to score Spencer and Frank Mitchell singled.

Burchard closed the gap to 8-4 in the bottom of the fourth as Alan Hanson singled, Dave Muchowicz doubled and Jeff Smith doubled.

It was 8-7 at the end of five innings with Godawski reaching safely on an error, he stole second, Andy Richardson singled in Godawski, Jeff Kaib doubled home Richardson and Hansen was safe on an error.

The tying run walked in the bottom of the sixth as Smith came, stole second and scored on a single by Smith.

The game was called because of darkness at the end of the sixth.

The Optimists' only run came in the bottom of the third as Dave Sullivan beat out an infield single, Jeff Heist grounded into a fielder's choice, Heist stole second and scored on an error ball which did not leave the infield as he streaked from second for the run.

Zaleski was in complete control all the way and did not allow an Allen's batter past second base. He struck out five and walked none. He did have trouble with Jeff Myers, who went 2-for-3.

Olsen also did not walk a batter and struck out three. The only other hit conducted against him was of the infield variety by Zaleski in the bottom of the sixth.

Bantam now has a 2-0-1 record and Burchard is 0-2-1. The Optimists are 2-1 and Allen's is 1-2.

Today's action has Sellersgren meeting First National Bank and Allen's taking on Bantam at 6 p.m. at Maine West High School.

Sportsman's Notebook

CHECKING BACK AND Catching Up:

Checked back with Denny Johnstone of Dun Rovin Lodge on the Chippewa Flowage, Hayward, Wisconsin. Denny, you may remember, is the fellow who, early this spring, declared his belief that the world record musky was alive and well and living in the Chippewa.

The Chippewa Flowage had held the record for the biggest musky, a 69 lb. 11 oz. fish that Louis Spray had caught in 1949. But the title moved east in 1957 when Arthur Lawton took a 69 lb. 15 oz. musky out of the St. Lawrence river in New York state.

Since the Hayward area produces literally hundreds of muskies each year, Johnstone assumed that somewhere in its thousands of acres of water there lay a 70 pounder. And he got it, and still offers, $10,000.00 to the guy who brings the record "back home." So far his loot is secure, but it's early.

"In total catch," Johnstone phoned, "we are about 75% ahead of a year ago. And we've had some big fish, but no new records." He reported sizes ranging from 26 to 48 pounds, in the whopper class for muskies. But there is more to the Chip than muskies.

"We're trying to keep close records on catches this year," Johnstone said. "Last year, all season, we had about 13,500 pounds of fish caught by anglers who check in and out of the various resorts in this area. That's all kinds of fish. But," he added, "already this year we have been able to tabulate 9,000 pounds of walleyes alone!" Johnstone adds also, however, that the record-keeping is broader and perhaps more accurate this year. "Nevertheless," he insists, "the fishing in all species, is much better this year than it was last ... and don't ask me why."

THE ANNUAL WISCONSIN North Woods mosquito raid appears to be subsiding considerably earlier this summer. So anytime from now on would be a logical time for a trip up that way. But even if the bugs appear to be easing up in their feeding habits — take along a giant size can of "Off!" anyway.

There are State and privately owned campgrounds galore in the Chippewa supply of motels and resorts. Camping fees range from $2.00 to $2.75 per night. Motel rooms run anywhere from $10 to $20 per night, and housekeeping cabins, such as at Dun Rovin, rent for $80 per week, often with a boat included in the package.

Fishing the Chippewa Flowage, as well as isolated lakes in the area, is about as it is anywhere, as long as you are chasing crappies, bass, walleyes or northern pike. But when it comes to muskies, it's something else again.

There are, perhaps, thousands of anglers who like to think of themselves as "musky fishermen" who have yet to land a legal-size musky. Yet this mere technicality dims not their enthusiasm, because being a "musky fisherman" is a lot like being Irish on St. Patrick's Day. You don't need any special credentials — you just need the right attitude.

We'll avoid the temptation to get into a lengthy dissertation on the best way to catch muskies, simply because, like most "m.f.'s," I have been incredibly lucky and unlucky in about equal proportions. No one method or lure works all the time. Live suckers sometimes — surface lures work, sometimes — the big purple No. 5 Mepps works sometimes and sometimes only black lures work. Sometimes you get them in the rain and sometimes you can cast for an entire day under cloudy, misty skies and not a fin.

We would, however, advise that on the first day on any musky waters, take along a local guide. These guys usually charge about $30 per day (you get the lunch check) and they furnish boat, bait, fuel and tackle if you need it. They also row the boat while you cast, because you cannot troll for muskies.

AUGUST, SEPTEMBER and October are prime musky months throughout northern Wisconsin. And if the 70 pounder is caught this year, it will most likely be caught during the latter part of that three-month span. Johnstone keeps himself up-to-date on what's happening on the Chippewa and will readily relate it.

Write or call: Dun Rovin Lodge, Route 4, Hayward, Wisconsin, 54843; Area code 715-462-3834.

CATCHING UP: Carl Lowrance, the Tulsa, Oklahoman who invented the Lowrance Fish Lo-K-Tor, spends a lot of time flying around in his private plane testing his depth sounder, water temperature thermometer, and other inventions, on lakes throughout the country. So, being the cooperative guy he is, he recently jotted down his personal list of the "10 Top Bass Fishing Hot Spots," which we pass along to you as the likely places to find trophy-size bass: El Capitan, California; Lake Kissimmee, Florida; Table Rock, Arkansas; Irvine Lake, California; Amistad, Texas; Toledo Bend, Texas; Dardanelle, Ark.; Millwood, Ark.; Beaver Reservoir, Ark.; Prairie Lake, Minnesota.

Nearly every fishing tackle manufacturer, at one time or another, publishes his own fish booklet. The latest, and one of the more complete ones comes from the Lazy Ike Corporation of Fort Dodge, Iowa (50501). It covers a wide range of fishing information, including all the basic equipment and accessories, locating fish, fishing methods, baits, lures, lure colors, etc. It also has a section on record fish, anatomy and identification, cooking instructions and even first aid information. Write to the attention of Dick Goreham, at the above address and include 25c for postage.

The State of Illinois, Department of Conservation, has benefited again from the needs of electric power companies for cooling water. The latest windfall is the gift of Lake Baldwin, an 8,900 acre natural area with a 4,000 acre lake in southern Illinois near the town of Baldwin. It is still being completed with causeways, launch ramps, etc., but meanwhile, the bass are in there and, we are told, the fishing is superb!

CANOE ENTHUSIASTS are being invited to participate in the National Canoe and Kayak Racing Championships to be held on Pierce Lake in Rock Cut State Park, near Rockford. This is a sanctioned event for the selection of two teams to represent the United States in the championships at Nova Scotia and Yugoslavia later this year. Janet Kuhlman, the special events coordinator of the Illinois Division of Parks and Memorials also noted that it is likely that most of the members of the U.S. team that will compete in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Germany, will be among those in competition at Rock Cut. The race dates are August 7 and 8. Men's and women's events both. More information: Department of Conservation, Springfield, Ill.; The Illinois Paddling Council, Chicago; or the Rockford Chamber of Commerce.

Fishermen, and duck hunters, who have annually bemoaned the senseless damage to the northern Illinois Chain of Lakes that results from the state's Department of Public Works draw-down of water levels are holding their collective breaths. An agreement has finally been reached to try to time the draw-down so that it will not dry up the duck refuges in the fall and isolate the northern pike spawning areas in the spring.

The plan, now, is for the Waterways people to raise the water early in March each year and not draw it down until the northern pike fry have had a chance to mature to the point where they can make it out of the sloughs and into the main lakes. And they won't have their annual "draining" until December each year, which will definitely help keep the ducks from standing in mud up to their hips, as they have in earlier years.

Oh yes, one last thing: The reason the lake levels were always changed at stupid times in earlier years was due to that greatest of all reasons for doing anything stupid — "because that's the way we've always done it!"

Four Teams Scramble In 16-Inch Circuit

Des Plaines Bowl defeated West Side Inn 8-6, in the Rand Park Adult 16" Softball League. Trailing by a 5-4 count Des Plaines Bowl scored 4 runs in the bottom of the sixth to pull out the victory.

E. J. Doyle Pro Shop scored six runs in the sixth inning and four in the seventh to defeat Villa's Lounge 10-7. Mickey McCabe and Mike Kuzich each drove in three runs for the winners. Jim Wencil had three hits and drove in three runs for Villa's. Nick's LaCantina scored six runs in the 7th inning to defeat Badger Mills 10-7. Kurt Felde's home run with a mate aboard capped the winning rally. Ron Ziernann and Chuck Chamberlain each had four hits for the winners.

Kruse Standard won their first game of the season, edging out E. J. Doyle 12-9. The Slapke brothers, Phil and John, combined for seven hits and six RBI's to lead Kruse's. Villa's Lounge struck early and often and were aided by some questionable defensive play in defeating Nie-dert Motor Service 19-5. Paul Ernst slammed a homer and single and drove in four runs to lead Villa's attack. Jim Wencil scattered seven wins in gaining the win.

Nick's LaCantina smashed West Side Inn 15-3. Chuck Chamberlain, by getting four straight hits, has now hit safely in his last eight times at bat. Ed Gibis and Bruce Kaechle each homered to also contribute to Nick's attack. Badger Mills defeated E. J. Doyle 16-13. Denny Toll and Mickey McCabe each homered for Doyle's.

Matron Handicap Slated Saturday

Purchased for $11,000 as a yearling at the Keeneland Kentucky Sales in 1968, Tudor Queen, the stout-bearded four-year-old daughter of the Tudor-Royal Dowry, right now looks as one of the top choices to take down honors in the $50,000 added Matron Handicap, the one mile and an eighth grass feature that highlights next Saturday's thoroughbred program at Arlington Park Race Course.

Tudor Queen is owned by Jack H. Stafford, the 74-year-old Canadian counter-part of Heinz 57 in the United States. Stafford's products cover the vast area that is Canada.

In the world of thoroughbred racing, the Stafford name has long been a fixture in Canadian racing circles. His Stafford Farm's colors have been carried to many triumphs on the Jockey Club of Ontario tracks.

Tudor Queen, a 22 two-year-old was voted the leading juvenile filly of 1969 by the Thoroughbred Racing Associations at their national convention. During that season, Tudor Queen accounted for the richly endowed $100,000 added Frisette Stakes in New York, in addition to the My Dear Stakes (Second Division), Vandal Stakes, Summer Stakes (First Division) and the Clarendon Stakes. Last season, Tudor Queen won the Duchess Stakes.

Making her debut here at Arlington Park in the $15,000 Matron Prep last Wednesday, Tudor Queen displayed her ability to race over the grass course covering the mile in 1:38 over a track defined as "firm." In winning the Prep, Tudor Queen knocked over Mrs. Elizabeth J. Brisbane's Away, herself a proven mare with a record to match.

Tudor Queen will carry the hope of our neighbor to the North, Canada, in the Matron as she matches speed and stamina against such members of her set as Away, Peter Fuller's A. T. "Ole, King-ship Stable's Joans Paris, Waldemar Farms Inc.'s Spoon's Flower, H. R. Reich's Miss Double Holmes, S. L. Alaimo's Toter Back and Cragwood Stable's Tangra.

Victory in the Matron will bring Tudor Queen's earnings close to $235,000 as she has already recorded a bank account of $197,974.

Although defeated in the Matron Prep by Tudor Queen, Away, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth J. Brisbane of Winnetka, could very well be the post time favorite in the Matron Handicap.

The five-year-old Blue Prince-Golly, by Alortor mare, trained by Joe Bolero, the same gentleman who has developed such stars of the thoroughbred world as Fast Hilarious and Mr. Pow Wow, was the winner of the $25,000 Twilight Tear Handicap here at Arlington, June 5, defeating Santiago Lassie and Miss Double Holmes in the excellent clocking of 1:34 1/5.

In 33 lifetime starts, Away has accounted for 12 winning races and purse earnings of $77,942.

Jockey Craig Perret will rein Away in the Matron while Earlie Fires will be in the pilot house guiding Tudor Queen.

This will have Perret and Fires renewing their brilliant stretch duel once again. It was indeed something to behold as these two reinmen and their respective mounts Away and Tudor Queen battled for every yardage in the Matron Prep.

The Racing Scene

by John F. Klusmann

The fillies and mares stay right in the spotlight this Saturday at Arlington Park as they move over to the turf course for the $50,000 Matron Handicap. This week end they must travel 1-1/8 miles in pursuit of the big money.

J. H. Stafford's Tudor Queen won the prep for the Matron last week and will be tough to down Saturday. The fine distaffer is once again flashing the brilliant form that made her one of the top two-year-old fillies in the nation in 1969.

Away, always dangerous on the grass at Arlington, will try Tudor Queen once again. She only lost to "the Queen" by a nose in the one mile prep and was spotting her 10 pounds. With more equal weight assignments, it could be a different story in the Matron.

The lure of the Arlington long green could bring Joan's Paris in from New York. The high-flying three-year-old finished third in the recent Shreeveshead Bay Handicap on the grass at Aqueduct, indicating she is one of the best fillies in the East.

Toter Back is very consistent and likes to run late. She will be running over horses in the stretch and if the front runners falter, she could pull off the upset at nice odds. Toter Back was only 1-3/4 lengths behind Tudor Queen and Away in the prep and the added furlong of the Matron will be to her benefit.

Lucrative Lady did not fare too well in the Pucker Up last Saturday, but this week end the action is back on the turf where she seems more at home. I still have the feeling that this filly is going to spring a big surprise soon and catch us all asleep.

Dream Date was closing fastest of all in the Pucker Up. This legally bred filly by Rough'n Tumble from New Hat by Tim Tam flies through the home lane and if she takes to the turf Saturday, watch out in the Matron.

While you are watching for your Dream Date to come home, here are some more:

Horses to Watch
Nationwide — Closed a big gap in last outing and was ready to go on at the wire. With a favorable post position, will bring home first money in a $6500 claiming race.

Yankee Boy Rich— Two-year-old rapidly learning the ways of racing. Starts slow, but pours on the coals in the stretch.

Last Chain— Gelding is regaining last year's excellent form. Only been out four times so far this season and getting better every trip postward.

Big Pip— Illinois-bred from down Ca-bokia way far outclasses $3000 Illinois claimers. Won handily at that price last week. Could take a class rise and come right back.

Wise Student— Getting used to Arlington's turf course. Swerved out and was disqualified from first to third last time. Will recover quickly from the poor racing luck and win soon.

Run It Out— Five-year-old gelding has hidden class. Capable of winning one of those route races on the main track. Took the lead last week and was barely headed at the wire.

Restless Volant— Been blistering the track in the mornings. If he runs back to those works, will win the next time out.

Lewmalasia, popular Chicago runner, shattered the bones in his foreleg on the turn for home in the ninth race last Saturday and was humanely destroyed. The game gelding was a most colorful performer and area racing fans will miss the patented stretch runs of "old Lew".

Another barn fire was narrowly averted at Arlington Park on July 4. The combination of carelessness, dry hay and wooden barns can be disastrous.

This observer has a recommendation. Instead of wasting their time trying to nail Phillip J. Levin, members of the Illinois Racing Board should study the feasibility of allocating some money from the State's share of the mutual take to assist all Illinois tracks in building concrete stables for the horses.

Roselle Builders Still Paces Rand Park League

In the Rand Park Adult 12" Softball League Woody Croom pitched a two-hit shutout and struck out 12 as Roselle Builders defeated Central Telephone 7-0. Croom also led the hitting with three for three, and Al Petty had two hits and drove in two runs. Dave Kern had both hits for Central.

Johnson's Sporting Goods defeated Dor-o-matic 9-3. Larry Hall had a single and a triple and drove in three runs for Johnson's and Dennis Medema had two singles and two RBI's for Dor-o-matic. Although Rollo Graham surrendered 8 hits he fanned 13 and used this strikeout effectively to escape jams.

Guanaco's won a double header. In the first game they defeated Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth 12-0 as Perry Fifield fired a no hitter. Fifield struck out nine and walked just one. Jim Duhamel had four for four and Dick Goymsbor added a single, double, and a home run and batted in three runs. Guanaco's edged Central Telephone 4-1. Joe Mollner and Olson led Guanaco's with two hits each and Hank Duffy limited Central to three hits.

TYPICAL OF THE ROOMS in the backstretch at Arlington Park, this one is located in one of the new concrete barns which track officials say eventually will replace the 42 wooden barns now on the site. The stable area was criticized in a recent report by village officials.

Track's 'Backside' Is Another World

What is it like to live and work in the backside at Arlington Race Track? What are the attitudes of the people who work each day preparing championship horses for the nine races held Monday through Saturday? The Herald presents an inside look at the men and the conditions that together make up life in the backstretch.

by KURT BAER

For most of the hot-walkers, grooms, pony boys and exercise boys who live and work in the backside of Arlington Park Race Track, horses and how to care for them is the only life they will ever know.

They are migrants, as transient as cherry pickers or the lettuce workers of California. They travel cross-country with their horses in large, diesel vans, and they follow van arrivals and departures as others might read an airline or train schedule.

The vans represent an affordable means of transportation, and even though their destination is always another race track, stablemen see freedom in the large rubber tires.

Indeed, leaving the track and its way of life behind is one of the most frequently uttered and poorly honored pledges in the backstretch.

"After this meetin' I'm goin' home to New Orleans," one stablehand says. "I'm goin' to buy some dairy cows and settle down, I'm tired of always makin' money for somebody else."

"I'M GOING HOME to Ohio," another hot-walker chimes in. He's a black hunchback who says his back was crippled when a horse fell on top of him.

"You been talkin' 'bout goin' home for 20 years," the first man counters derisively.

"Yes I am. There's a van leavin' next week and I'm goin' to be on it — back to Cincinnati."

Medical facilities are unknown on the backside and stablehands get only minimal insurance protection from the Horseman's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA).

For trainers and tack managers, it's a simple matter of priorities. Racing thoroughbreds are valuable animals and as such are insured for thousands of dollars with Lloyd's of London. But stablehands are a dime a dozen and consequently can't even get treatment for a stomach ache. And the complete inadequacy of bathroom facilities makes even self-help a long shot.

The only running water in most of the barns comes from garden hoses used to fill water buckets for the horses. Shower and other bathroom fixtures are huddled together yards away from most of the living quarters and sanitation is a continual problem. Or at least it should be.

BUT THE FACT of the matter is that most of the workers in the backstretch don't complain about conditions except in casual conversation among themselves.

The tackrooms that 1,000 backstretch workers call home are small, about 11 feet square, poorly ventilated and usually unkept. A hot-walker may share his cramped quarters with a row of harnesses and saddles, a rack of horse blankets and other necessary accessories.

Most backstretch workers are just one rung above the unemployed and job security is always in the back of their minds.

The fear of being "put outside the gate" if anyone presses too hard for better conditions effectively checks most reform ambitions. And while only a few workers ever make enough money to seriously consider saving, a hand-to-mouth existence is, they believe, better than the unemployment line.

Fact, fantasy or mere misinformation, the world of the backstretch worker makes little distinction. His is a word-of-mouth culture, and he knows others by what they say as much as by what they do. Relatively freewheeling among his friends, he's been conditioned not to ask too many questions or talk too openly around his trainer or track manager. The spectre of losing the only job he knows keeps him silent.

The backstretch at Arlington Park is an arena of contrasts. Trainers and owners like Arlington Park because, as one of them put it, "it's good money." But the men who live in the stable area intensely dislike it because of its location.

UNLIKE OTHER in-town tracks across the county which offer the escape and enticements of the big city, Arlington Park is a suburban track. Few stablehands can regularly afford the $2.70 round-trip fare into Chicago on the train, and less than half have access to a car.

"We call this place the graveyard, man — the graveyard," said one experienced stablehand who had traveled north to Chicago from Jefferson Downs in New Orleans.

Most of the men, particularly the blacks, only laugh at the idea of going into Arlington Heights for an evening. "We know better," they say.

Since annexation of the track two years ago, village police have been free to enter and patrol the backstretch through Gate 9. Prior to annexation, total police responsibility in the backstretch rested with the track's internal security force, which still does most of the routine police work.

Life On Backstretch Is Tough For Stable Hands

Their workday begins early, usually about 4:30 in the morning. Men stagger sleepily from their rooms.

In a pre-dawn ritual, each horse is saddled and ridden to an exercise ring where he will run, hopefully maintaining his fitness for the mile-long track in front of the grandstand. Each leaves behind a dirty stall which will have to be cleaned and padded with fresh, dry straw before the horse returns.

A harsh, white light from a portable floodlamp brightens a wooden stall.

It's hot for so early in the morning, and the humidity threatens to make this an especially long day. But a dark band of clouds in the northern sky shows the chance for a morning shower.

The trainer worries about a wet track and how it might affect the horse he has entered in the day's sixth race.

A voice calls from the stableyard, announcing the first horse's return.

Hot and sweating, like any athlete, the sleek thoroughbred waits anxiously for a shower after his workout. Two buckets of lukewarm water — one foaming with shampoo suds, a large natural sponge and an experienced groom will do the job in five minutes.

WASHED, RINSED and dried with an aluminum squeegee, the horse stands ready for its "hot-walker," the man who will lead him some 20 times around the barn before putting him back in his stall.

With conditioned care to work from the horse's left side, the hot-walker grips the shank and begins his trip around the well-worn path that rings the stable's stalls. The motion, like that on the track itself is always counterclockwise.

Another hot-walker files in at a safe distance behind the first. Soon there are four or five making the rounds, parade-like.

"Get over on the left, boy!" a veteran orders an inexperienced stableboy. The man has surely witnessed, perhaps even suffered first-hand, the bone-splitting kick thoroughbreds will mete out to those who lurk on their right.

Eventually all the horses are exercised, washed and walked. There is time for a moment's pause.

"Let's feed," the trainer calls, signaling the start of the next round.

Feed buckets are filled assembly line fashion: A measure of oats, a handful of vitamin pellets and a fresh bucket of water. One by one each bucket is filled, mixed and snapped into place in the corner of the stall.

Ten-thirty and the bulk of the day's work is almost finished.

Many of the stablemen walk to the backstretch cafeteria, where, if they order a big breakfast, they'll spend as much as 25 per cent of their day's wage.

That's the backstretch cycle, seven days a week.
